

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why, I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."
The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.
"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest."

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.
HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Taxation Move Is Forecast To Maintain Services

A tax increase may be in the forecast for Elk Grove Village residents, according to a discussion Tuesday of the fiscal situation in the 1971-72 budget.
Trustee Charles Zettek said the village is faced with a "serious problem" in the budget if the village is to maintain services.
If we are to maintain services as we like, there will have to be additional taxation, said Zettek, chairman of the budget committee. He did not say what the increase could be.
"Moneywise, we have a very serious problem," he said, indicating the increase in revenue to the village coffers is not keeping pace with increased services.
Zettek said it was the first time in his 16 years on the board that it has faced such a situation. "Undoubtedly we'll have to curtail services if we do not go to taxation," he said, adding he preferred a referendum be held before making curtailments in services.
GEORGE CONEY, finance director, said yesterday he could present the board with a balanced budget, but there "could be curtailments."
Coney said the village may lose $112,000 from personal property taxes on corporations and individuals.
A recent Circuit Court decision declaring unconstitutional the personal property tax on corporations, and the abolishment by voters last fall of the personal property tax on individuals affect the village. In addition, there is speculation the sales tax on medicine and food may be removed.
In other action at the village board meeting, Paul Rettberg, an attorney, was appointed to the Community Service Board.
The board deferred action on allowing Underwriters Salvage in the industrial park to be permitted to have an auto storage facility.
Trustee Ronald Chernick said he feared the facility would be a "junk yard," causing a "parade of tow trucks" to enter the village. Trustee Zettek said he did not find tow trucks objectionable and that the village attorney said in the "strict sense of the word the facility would not be a junk yard."

Poklacki Thanks The EPA

Erwin Poklacki, newly elected member of the Elk Grove Township Elementary Dist. 59 Board of Education, said yesterday that much of his success as top vote-getter in Saturday's election was due to the efforts of Educators Political Action (EPA).
EPA is a recently formed group of educators in the northwest suburbs, with most of its strength in Dist. 59, Arlington Heights Dist. 25, and High School Dist. 214.
Poklacki, of Arlington Heights, received 1,827 votes with the next highest candidate Allen Sparks of Des Plaines, receiving 650 votes. Both were elected to three-year terms on the board. The two other candidates were Albert Comanico and Theodore Staddler, both of Elk Grove Village.
Poklacki said the group printed his literature, distributed it throughout the district, and worked on election day campaigning near the polls.
He said that they also contacted educators in the district urging them to vote for him.
"I don't know how many votes I can attribute to their help but I'd like to give them recognition," he said.
Earlier EPA held candidate nights with the intention of endorsing candidates in the elementary and high school district elections. Later they announced they would not endorse.

A little gravel on the pavement doesn't bother these girls.

Thanks, Gene, But No Thanks

Trustee Eugene Keith of Elk Grove Village Tuesday challenged the fire and police departments, as well as the Elk Grove Park District Board to a tug of war with the village board at the Lions Club July 4 celebration in Lions Park.
Keith, however, will not be around because he will no longer be on the board come July. His term on the board ends April 27.

Trustee Richard McGrevera, whose term also ends this month, indicated he supported the tug of war.
Other trustees did not comment. They only laughed.

New Elks Officers

New officers of the Elk Grove Village Elks B.P.O.E. Lodge 2423 are Al Krasnow, exalted ruler; Bob Vraney, lecturing knight; Frank Wahl, loyal knight; Ken Buck, leading knight; Ben Kan, secretary; Dave Farley, treasurer; and Mike Bishop, tiler. Former exalted ruler Norm Schneider is a trustee.

Trustees Ask Mayfest Talks With Schools

The Elk Grove Village Board has requested a meeting of High School Dist. 214 officials before it decides to issue a permit for an outdoor gathering of young people May 16 at Elk Grove High School.
Board members indicated Tuesday at a meeting that they want both Richard Bachhuber, school board president, and Robert Haskell, principal, to appear to discuss the event, known as "Mayfest."
Chuck Carroll, a junior at the school appeared before the board and said the principal approved of the event.
Carroll said the principal told the students to scale down the affair, limiting attendance to 1,200 students. Carroll said this would be done.
AT FIRST, village board members wanted approval in writing from Haskell but as the discussion continued they asked for an appearance before them by school officials.
"I do think he's thrown a left hand curve in making this suggestion (the 1,200 crowd limit)," said Trustee Eugene Keith.
Harry Jenkins, police chief, said 1,200 was an "unrealistic estimate," adding, "I say it will draw 12,000 from northern Illinois, southern Wisconsin, and Indiana."
He said the 41-man police department could not handle such a crowd. "If things got out of hand we would not be able to control it," Jenkins said.
Village Atty. Edward Hofert said a large crowd would raise questions of security and safety. It was his suggestion the school board president appear.
The affair has been proposed by the Folk Arts Society, a student group, at the school. Students originally appeared before the board last week requesting the village board allow the 9-hour activity at the high school football field. The board deferred the request.
Tom Villars, a student, said last week he expected 2,000 students to attend. The village manager said last week that he expected more than 2,000 students.
Set Candidate Night
A candidate night for the village, library, and park elections Tuesday will be held today at 7:30 p.m. by the Lions Club at Grove Junior High School, Elk Grove Village. The public is invited.

This Morning In Brief

The World

Premier Chou En-lai met and talked with American table tennis players and said their visit has opened "a new chapter" in relations between Communist China and the United States. He said more Americans would be coming to further lift the Bamboo Curtain.

The Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship has advised against the use of "Here Comes The Bride" and other traditional songs at Catholic weddings. More sacred music was suggested.

Israel's counterproposal on reopening the Suez Canal was reported to have run into a snag because of U.S. delay in outlining safeguards to prevent Egyptian and Soviet troops from crossing the waterway if Israeli troops are pulled back.

The Nation

Four civilians recruited by an insurance salesman left for Laos to offer themselves as replacements for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

President Nixon announced a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Communist China for 21 years.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, accused the FBI of spying on Earth Day rallies held a year ago to glorify the environment. He said Congress should set up a board to monitor all government agencies who gather intelligence on civilians.

The State

The Illinois House unanimously passed and sent to the governor legislation which would prohibit income tax accounting firms from disclosing information concerning their clients.

Highway construction in Madison and St. Clair counties will be resumed April 19 under an agreement reached by labor unions, Negro representatives and contractors in federal court in Springfield.

Four residents of the near downtown Colonial House Apartment Hotel died in a fire that swept the buildings' third floor. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $25,000.

The War

South Vietnamese relief forces lifted a 15-day siege at Fire Base 6 permitting U.S. helicopters to fly tons of food, water and ammunition in to defenders of the strategic outpost.

Funeral arrangements are being handled by Bartwood Memorial Chapel, Route 20, Bartlett.

Le Roy R. Shafer, 26, of 433 Singapore Ln., Carpentersville, charged with the April 10 murder of Daniel Gallagher, 28, of 207 N. Hickory St., Bartlett appeared in Niles County Court Wednesday for a preliminary hearing that was continued to 11 a.m. Tuesday in Niles Court.

Bartlett Police Chief Kenneth Lloyd, investigating the murder with the assistance of the State's Attorney's office, said Shafer has asked the State to appoint legal counsel.

Shafer was arrested in Hammond, Ind., where he works, on the strength of evidence the Bartlett department has submitted to the Illinois Crime Lab for study.

Gallagher was shot and killed in the kitchen of his home Saturday.

Police working on a report from Gallagher's five year old daughter Colleen, apparently the only witness to the murder, at first sought a "mystery woman" who allegedly entered the home to use the telephone and according to Colleen "shot Daddy."

Chief Lloyd said subsequent investigations implicated Shafer and he was arrested where he works at the Rand McNally Co.

Food Stamp Visits Planned

Food stamp agents from the Cook County Department of Public Aid will now visit the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows each Wednesday to enroll and reregister persons in the federal food stamp program.

The agents will be at the center beginning at 9 a.m.

To be eligible to participate in the food stamp program, families must have a monthly income of no more than $150 for a family of one, $200 for a family of two and $300 additional for each additional person in the family.

Those enrolling or reregistering in the program must bring their last full month paycheck stub with them at the time of registration. Papers verifying any other sources of income, as social security or unemployment compensation receipts, must also be presented.

The most recent income tax return, bank books, and rent and utility receipts should also be presented, as well as any unusually high medical bills.

Thirty new persons each week may be enrolled in the program, according to Karen Stanley, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center.

Further information on the registration program may be obtained by contacting Mrs. Stanley at the center, 255-3456.

Award Winners At Speech Meet

Two Wheeling High School students won awards at the state high school speech finals at Illinois State University, Normal recently.

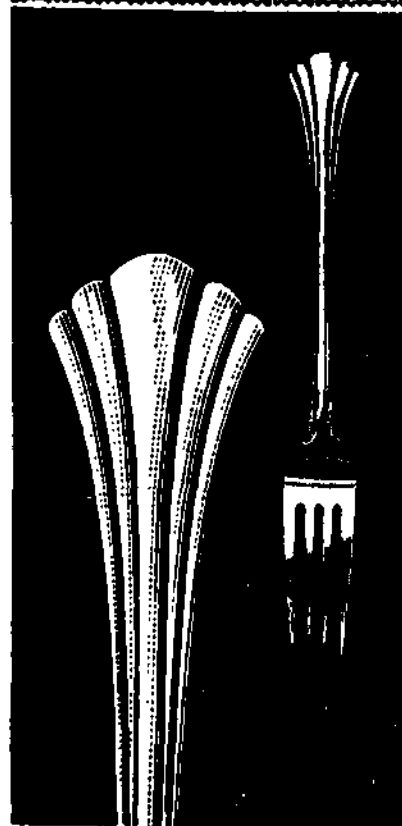

Susie Rich won a second place medal in the serious reading category and George Limberg took sixth place in radio speaking. Each competed against 17 other finalists from high schools around the state.

Miss Rich, a fifth place prize winner last year, presented an excerpt from "I Can't Imagine Tomorrow," a one-act play by Tennessee Williams, to gain her second place award.

Limberg organized and presented a five-minute news broadcast.

Both students are members of the Wheeling High School individual speech events team, coached by Bill Dodds and his assistants, Mrs. Gale Twersky and Mrs. Christine Bartee.

Miss Rich and Limberg won awards in earlier district and sectional competition to earn the right to compete in the finals along with 400 students from 129 high schools.

Election '71:

Ciangi: Ineffective Utilization Of Teen Center

Frank Ciangi said he recognizes the "sincere efforts and accomplishments of the Elk Grove Park District board" but sees "many serious continuing problems."

A resident of Elk Grove Village for seven years, he is seeking a 6-year term on the park board in Tuesday's election to help correct those problems.

As an example he points out, "ineffective utilization of the Teen Center" and credits "the relatively poor teenage group attendance to the basic teen-adult-park district communication problem."

Ciangi recommends appointing a steering committee representing three elements of the community, parents, clergy and park commissioners, to direct activities at the center.

He said, "There's a lot of hearsay about the place and the committee could improve communication."

He added, "I don't mean the parents would run the operation."

Ciangi lives at 598 Middlebury Ln., is married and has two daughters. He is administrative assistant to the vice president of national accounts for Admiral Corp., Chicago and is president of Elk Grove Boys' Football. He is also a member of the Elk Grove Village Civil Defense unit.

He said he believes the district needs more "developed" parks, improved drainage facilities, and mobile sanitary facilities near organized activities at playgrounds.

He also would like to see additional facilities for older boys, girls and adults, suggesting activities such as horseshoe pits, shuffleboard, powderpuff football, pony-tail softball and volleyball.

"I would especially encourage senior citizen activities. This point is of high priority," he said.

Six candidates are seeking election to two 6-year openings on the Elk Grove Park Board of Commissioners on Tuesday. One of the candidates, Gerald Smiley, is also a candidate for a 2-year term on the village board of trustees. Here are interviews with three of the candidates. The stories were written by reporters Judy Mehl and Tom Jachimiec.

Ciangi said he voted "no" on the March 6 bond issue for park improvements and a recreation building. He said, "I think there were higher priorities for the people. The needs of the people were all wrapped up into one package."

He added that the two proposals presented in Tuesday's election "gave the voters a chance to choose." He said he preferred not to publicly state how he would vote saying, "That's my privilege, but if I'm elected I will have to serve according to what the people voted for."

The candidate said he would be in favor of the board considering a park for Centex Industrial Park personnel if "this is what they wanted." He said, "We must give them due consideration, and develop something workable."

He said he prefers leaving the park commissioner term at six years rather than shortening it, since, "When you are on the park board you have to achieve something and you can't do that in two or three years."

He added that he did not think park board members should be paid on a per meeting basis.

His emphasis is on improving existing facilities, possibly eliminating programs where only a few persons attend.

He added, "Our problems of the past can easily be turned into the blueprints of the future. Communications or the lack of them is probably the chief culprit in all of the problems we have discussed or ever will discuss."

He proposes a semi-annual return mail questionnaire to give residents a chance to "evaluate, criticize and commend" the board on policy and programs and the scheduling of "cracker barrel" sessions where board members meet informally in homes of interested citizens as well as with organized groups or clubs.

Durkin: Clamor For More Recreation In Village

The clamor is for more recreation in Elk Grove Village according to Martin Durkin and he wants to be around to help provide the facilities.

An Elk Grove Park District commissioner for two years, Durkin is a candidate for one of the two six-year park board terms in Tuesday's election.

Durkin is a 42-year resident of the village and lives with his wife and five children at 1287 Berkenshire Ln. He is construction supervisor for A. Johnsen Plumbing in Elk Grove Village.

As a past athlete in high school and a Little League manager now, Durkin feels his strength on the board is in the area of sports and recreation.

When he ran for the board position two years ago he said he urged a strong swimming program. "It looks like it's really taking hold now," he said.

Future park district progress requires improvements in the parks and a recreation building with an ice skating rink like the one proposed for approval on the same day as the park district election, he said. Durkin said he voted for the March 6 bond issue and would vote in favor of both parts again Tuesday.

Pointing to board accomplishments in the past two years, Durkin listed continued expansion of programming and work with local Little League and football leagues to provide as many facilities as possible.

HE SAID, "I have never met a more dedicated group of people than the present board members."

Commenting on the Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce letters to employees urging defeat of the March 6 referendum for a recreation building and park improvements, the candidate said, "It's their prerogative."

He said, "The service the park district has given them isn't the greatest, although half the teams from the men's softball leagues are from Centex and we have offered them use of our pools."

Durkin said he was not in favor of buying land for a park in the Centex Industrial Park area because of the prohibitive costs, but that he would favor a lease arrangement if someone would make land available.

In another area, he said he would like to give the Elk Grove Park District Teen Center "a little longer chance" before criticizing it for attracting only a few teens. "I was very much for the center and helped work on it," he said.

He added that the center was also programmed all day long with other activities.

What is the district lacking? Durkin doesn't think it is lacking much of anything.

HE SAID, "Some programs are overwhelmingly accepted. We must expand programs and facilities as the need grows. One shortcoming is the lack of recreation in the north end of the village, but they were developed before the park district."

Durkin encouraged establishment of the lighted schoolhouse, a program of park-school cooperation to provide recreational and educational opportunities to children and adults after school hours.

The incumbent also would favor shortening the park district term to three years, but would not approve of board members being paid on a per meeting basis like most village boards.

"I don't think park commissioners should consider themselves politicians," he said.

Smiley: Drug Abuse Most Pressing Issue

Drug abuse is the most pressing issue confronting Elk Grove Village, according to Gerald Smiley, a candidate for the village and park boards in Tuesday's election.

He based his belief on conversations with teens and the interest shown by parents at a drug forum last January in a school where he is active with the Parent Teacher Organization. Some 200 persons attended the forum at the Admiral Richard E. Byrd School.

"I don't have a solution but we have to get the problem out into the open," he said. A resident of the village for 3 years, Smiley lives at 1156 Cheltenham Rd., with his wife and their four children.

He supported more educational forums though he said he knows they are not in themselves going to solve the drug problem.

The schools, park district, and village board can do something along that line by "acting as a catalyst" for drug abuse programs, he said, adding that none have a drug program now.

Smiley is seeking election to a 2-year term on the village board and a 6-year term on the park board. Employed as an industrial engineer for Continental Can Co. in the village, he brushed off any notion that there could be a conflict of interest if he is elected to both positions.

HE SAID HE is at a disadvantage in seeking two offices at the same time but that he is serious about wanting to be elected to both though he admitted a preference to serving on the village board.

"I just want to help build and develop this community and I think I've got a fighting chance," he said.

If elected to both positions he said he would act as a liaison for the two taxing bodies.

He proposed a life-safety study to deal with the need for sidewalks over Salt Creek at Arlington Heights Road, and other hazardous areas in the village.

He proposed the formation of a coordinating committee of the various groups in the village to work in areas of mutual concern: drug abuse, environmental abuse, teen center use, housing, and community services.

On the housing issue, he said he would favor public housing if it were dispersed within a planned unit development.

"I wouldn't like to see it in one area," he said, adding that he preferred privately developed housing with rent or mortgage subsidies. He said he would not favor "spotting low-cost housing in existing neighborhoods."

Though satisfied with the park district, he said the Teen Center needs improvement.

"IT HASN'T become a center used by teens," he said. "I think the facilities are adequate but the only segment left out are the teens." He said it has become a "community center rather than a teen center."

He said he would work for better programming of activities at the teen center, more dances, a speakers program, and others. It may mean spending more money, he said, but if the park district is to have such a building "it should fund it."

He has also favored the relocation of the village-funded Community Service agency in the Teen Center.

(The park board voted unanimously last week to reject a request for use of the Teen Center by the youth services committee of Community Service.)

Smiley said he favors expanded park programs, namely the pre-school, and more supervision of outdoor winter activities at ice skating and sledding areas.

Smiley said there are some unmet needs in adult recreation but that adults do not let the park board know what they want.

Queried about a park or athletic field in the industrial park, Smiley said he did not think industry wanted one.

"I may be wrong," he said, but added, "We should share our facilities with them."

SMILEY SAID HE supported the March 6 park referendum on the all-seasons building. In Tuesday's park referendum he said he will oppose the building but approve the park improvements.

A park attitude survey has shown, he said, that youth consider the ice rink last among their top 10 desires. Adults rated ice skating facilities fifth and outdoor winter sports facilities last, he said.

"So many other things need attention," he said, citing the precarious financial situation in Elementary School Dist. 59.

Smiley said he would like to see the park board terms reduced from six to three years as well as the size of the board increased from five to seven commissioners. He said he did not think park board members should be paid for attending meetings.

Smiley on other issues:—

A mobile home park — "If it were well planned — yes." Asked about annexation of existing mobile home parks, he said

"I see no reasons for it."

Forest View subdivision — He said he favors a "more reasonable" attitude on the part of the village board with regard to annexation and fire protection.

Home rule — He supports it. "I don't feel the state legislature has as good a knowledge of our problems as we do."

A VILLAGE income tax — "I would be in favor of it as an alternative to sales and property taxes. It's more equitable," he said, adding that he would not support a local income tax if other taxes were not reduced.

Regional government — "I think we'll eventually move in that direction. It's a logical progression as we become contiguous to other communities and begin duplicating services. He added: "I don't know if we are at that point."

Sharing state income tax rebates with the school districts — "I'd be in favor of sharing income tax rebates with Dist. 59, on a temporary basis."

An income disclosure law for public officials — "I would disclose my income if it became a general practice."

An interchange at Biesterfeld Road and I-90 — "I think we need one there. The interchanges at Thorndale and Higgins will be inconvenient for us."

How much are you spending in your campaign? "Zero."

Walker: Suburbia Suffers

"Suburbia gets the short end of the stick in many respects from the Illinois General Assembly," Dan Walker told a political rally Tuesday.

Walker, an independent Democrat seeking the nomination for Illinois governor in next year's election, spoke to members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WIIP), a write in slate of candidates for the Wheeling Village Board.

He called for "state government for the whole state, not just for the City of Chicago," pointing to 31 legislators who hold Chicago and Cook County patronage jobs and whose priorities center around "what's good for the Daley machine" and "what's good for the City of Chicago."

Walker, a resident of Deerfield, plans to seek the nomination for governor next March in the Democratic primary. He has said repeatedly that he will not appear before the Cook County Democratic Central committee for its endorsement.

Walker explained his reasons for refusing to seek that slate making committee's endorsement as "I feel no man can say 'Mr. Mayor, can I run for governor' and then sit in the governor's chair with the kind of independence needed to run the state of Illinois."

"The issue in this election is whether the Democratic candidate for governor will be chosen by a handful of bosses or by the people in an open Democratic primary," Walker told an audience of approximately 50 people.

ADMITTING THAT the slate making committee had picked some good candidates such as Paul Douglas and the two Adlai Stevensons, Walker noted that it had "slated Paul 'Shoe Box' Powell in 1964 and 1968 with full knowledge by every member of that committee of what kind of man he was."

"When I beat the Daley machine, it is going to go a long way toward cutting down . . . Mayor Daley's dead hand over the national Democratic convention," he said.

Walker said the issues in his campaign would include the Vietnam War because money being spent to finance that war could be better used by the states.

"It is a war that has got to end. If the President won't listen to moral arguments or economic arguments, maybe if all candidates in elections on all levels make the war an issue he'll listen to the political arguments," Walker said.

"I'm for law and order," Walker said, "But not just with respect to crime in the streets or student demonstrations."

He said law and order must also be enforced "in the corporate board rooms of corporations that pollute," in the legislative halls and in the government executive offices of this nation."

WALKER STRESSED that Illinois needs "People-oriented government," "business like management" and

"strong leadership."

He cited numerous examples of political graft, tax dodges, and mismanagement.

"It costs the state $500 to distribute every $1,000 bonus check it gives to a Vietnam veteran. I know good and well that if you take a fine tooth comb through the state of Illinois you'll find literally hundreds of similar examples," he said.

The candidate told the Wheeling audience that he is "taking a hard look at local aid to parochial schools" rather than state aid. He said a detailed position paper on his stand on state aid was being researched.

On a third independent political party for the state he said "I hope we don't have to come to a third party in the state. I hope the Democrats and Republicans will be responsive to people politics. However, I don't foreclose the possibility that if I should lose the primary I might run as an independent."

Walker predicted that the favorites of state making committee would be "Tom Foran, George Dunne or Paul Simon, in that order."

HE SAID HE thinks Simon will run for the senate instead of the Governorship. He said he favors home rule through "bills which gives a local community the power it needs to solve its problems but not the problems of areas outside that home rule unit."

Not Like Last Year

Only 40 Show For Town Meeting

by JUDY MEHL

The annual town meeting in Elk Grove Township just isn't what it used to be.

Most of the 170 persons who left the town hall last year muttering "Wait 'till next year," didn't come back Tuesday night.

Less than 40 persons, dwarfed in the 506 seating capacity theater at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, were present at this year's town meeting.

There was no hostility like last year, when participants shouted back and forth about crowded conditions.

As a result of that heated meeting this year's meeting place was changed from the town hall to the high school. Since that time a sign has been hung in the town hall limiting the capacity to 150 persons.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN the two meetings may have been caused by Illinois legislation passed last summer taking the budget approval authority away from voters at the annual town meetings and giving it to the township board of auditors.

The persons present Tuesday were there to listen and question, but had no power to vote.

The budget had been approved last week by the board.

The $166,012 town fund budget approved by the board was $20,000 less than the year before and the $56,800 welfare fund budget was $10,000 less.

This year's town meeting consisted of the reading of annual reports by supervisor William Rohling. The reports included the town fund, town fund No. 2 for land acquisition, road and bridge fund, general assistance fund, and sewer fund.

Auditor Bernard Lee pointed out that in many of the funds there were transfers to the American National Bank and Trust Co. totaling $180,000.

HE SAID, "That has been transferred out of your township and we're not getting one penny of credit for it. It is pending some decision out of the county court which is going to determine ultimately where that money goes. It has been put into the hands of that group in Cook County."

Lee was referring to the Illinois Supreme Court decision last summer putting the township tax collection under the control of the county treasurer's office.

The two per cent fee which the township collector deducted from taxes to support the township office and other local taxing bodies was declared unconstitutional and last year's collection money is being held in the bank until a final decision is made on who gets the money.

Only a few questions were asked at the meeting, with one resulting in a motion by the board to investigate the need and desire for police protection in unincorporated areas.

One resident from an unincorporated area requested police protection from other than the county sheriff.

A committee was formed to study the problem. If all unincorporated areas favor contracting for police protection, only those areas would be taxed for it, said George Busse, town clerk.

Remember Pahl's Housing Talk?

by TOM JACHIMIEC

With the controversy over the Chicago Housing Authority and its proposal to build in 10 undisclosed suburbs and unincorporated areas in Cook County, it is a good time to recall the words of Jack Pahl, village president.

Last March Pahl warned governmental bodies that if they don't come up with long range housing programs soon the federal government would do it for them.

"If we fail to take the initiative, the courts will determine our future land use," he said, adding that municipalities have "never been" satisfied with county court zoning decisions.

"I can't imagine how federal court decisions on zoning will make us any happier," Pahl said in a letter to the DuPage County Mayors and Managers Conference and the Northwest Municipal Conference.

Pahl recommended each community appoint a task force to study housing needs for not only low or moderate income families but for families of all levels of income.

A 51-YEAR-OLD woman who Fire Chief Allen Hulett said "died three times" during the time it took firemen to transport her to St. Alexius Hospital April 4 is doing fine, according to a hospital spokesman. Hulett credited quick action by Fire Fighters John Pilkington and Allen Utter for saving the life of Fanny Asimakopoulou of Oak Park, who apparently was visiting at 1111 Maple Ln. when she passed out. A coronary patient, the woman was given oxygen and heart massage by the firemen, both of whom have been with the department less than six months.

Chicago politics — A friend of mine is a Republican precinct captain in the 25th ward on Chicago's West Side where the vote for Mayor Daley was 327 to Richard Friedman's 71. Of the 440 registered voters, 403 turned out, he said. But that's not bothering him so much as the new garbage can that is now missing from the alley behind his house. He figured that's what the election cost him — one lousy garbage can. Incidentally, it was marked with the Democratic precinct captain's name.

Sportsmen To Hear Fish Biologist Talk

Dave McGinty, fish biologist for the Cook County Forest Preserve District, will speak today at the Elk Grove Sportsmen's Club meeting at 7:45 p.m. in the Elk Grove Village Public Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd.

He will discuss the 26 lakes operated by the district and the new lakes planned to be built near Elk Grove Village.

McGinty is a graduate of the University of Illinois and worked eight and a half years as a fish biologist for the Indiana Department of Conservation. He has worked for the Cook County Forest Preserve District for six months.

Four directors will be elected at this meeting.

Ditch Cleaning Discussed

A cooperative effort to clean storm water drainage ditches in Elk Grove Village was discussed yesterday by the health board and an industrial park representative. Plans are to get under way this spring.

In past months the board has examined the ditches in the industrial areas and discovered practices by some companies in the park are causing flooding and poor drainage in the ditches.

John Lecraw, president of the Elk Grove Village Association of Industry and Commerce said, at a health board meeting, that the association would cooperate in correcting the situation.

The village government and the Northwest Mosquito Abatement District have already committed themselves to providing personnel to do part of the work.

Companies in the industrial area are expected to be contacted by the association and village and asked to cooperate in the cleanup program.

Elk Grove Village Community Service and local Boy Scout troops will also be asked to cooperate.

The program will require correcting the water flow of drainage, cleaning up the refuse and removing weeds from ditch bottoms and sides to allow the flow to continue.

The main drainage ditches in industrial parks are the responsibility of the village and will be corrected by village administration, but the other smaller ditches are the responsibility of the industries.

Debris and silt have been found in many of the ditches, causing the health board's concern last year.

Since then the board conducted a survey of the area and sought help in rectifying the situation.

Jenkins Is Cited

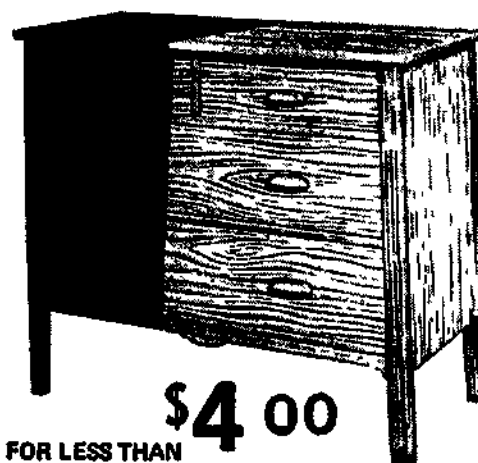

Harry Jenkins, Elk Grove Village police chief, was presented a certificate of appreciation Tuesday from the Elk Grove Village VFW Post #284.

"This kind of award cannot come about without good men in the department," said Jenkins. Also, the village board honored a request by the VFW post to proclaim May 1 as Loyalty Day.

CHANGES THIS - TO THIS!

WITHOUT Removing THE OLD FINISH

Anything that can be painted can be changed to take on the appearance of rich wood grain, of aged antique or beautiful marble. The process is so simple a child could do it. Yet the realism you can achieve with Old Masters will amaze and delight you. The grand part about achieving these effects is that you don't have to remove the old finish. This means no scraping, no sanding, no staining, and no special tools are required to obtain any of these effects. Any piece of furniture that doesn't fit its surroundings or woodwork that doesn't fit the decor can be easily changed to complement its setting. The oldest assortment of furniture and fixtures can be made to look as though they belonged to each other. Regardless of how dark or light the item is, Old Masters can completely change its appearance without removing the old finish. See how. See it demonstrated. And see how little it costs to make these amazing changes....

CHAS. A. STEVENS & CO., RANDHURST, MT. PROSPECT. SHOP LATE MONDAY THRU FRIDAY

Summer School Session Is Slated

Dates for High School Dist. 214's summer school session have been announced, though a brochure listing course offerings will not be available until May.

Generally, first semester will begin Monday, June 14, and end Friday, July 9. Second semester will begin Monday, July 12 and end Thursday, Aug. 5. Registration for most summer school courses will be open in May, but Driver Education will have a special limited registration period for both summer school sessions from April 20 to 30 in the district's six high schools, according to W. L. Randle, director of summer school.

As was true last year, summer school in Dist. 214 will be tuition free. Limited bus service will be available for students enrolled in classes scheduled from 8 a.m. to noon and will operate from Friday, June 18, to Friday, July 30.

Bus transportation fee is $5 per semester. Bus routes will be announced after it is determined where students who have paid live.

A small book fee is the only charge made for summer school, since the district receives state reimbursement for most costs from the Office of the Supt. of Public Instruction. Transportation reimbursement is not available from the state for summer school.

LAST SUMMER more than 6,000 students registered for all phases of summer school. Reuben Conrad, associate director of summer school, is working with staff members to offer more experimental and innovative programs this summer.

About 200 teachers are expected to be teaching in summer school this year, including 35 for driver training. Adults and students from outside the district can attend the Dist. 214 summer school. Cost is $30 per semester.

Most students receive one unit of credit for summer school, though it is possible for a student to enroll in afternoon and evening classes.

Additional information about summer school will be released as plans are finalized, Randle said. For answers to specific questions, residents can contact the summer school office, 253-1700.

Township School Officials Elected

Township school trustees were elected by suburban voters last Saturday during their regular school board elections.

Trustees were chosen in Elk Grove, Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Maine Townships.

In Elk Grove Township Thomas Mayernick of Elk Grove Village defeated Ned Basile, also of Elk Grove Village for a six year term. The vote was 1,870 to 1,153.

In Palatine Township James Johnson Jr. of Palatine, who ran unopposed, got 1,187 votes. He will serve six years.

Wheeling Township voters voted for two unopposed candidates. Frank Alexander of Mount Prospect received 3,648 votes. He will serve a six-year term.

Raymond De Maertelaere of Arlington Heights got 3,311 votes. He will fill out two years of an unexpired term to which he was appointed.

William Fitzgerald of Schaumburg beat out incumbent Richard Ritchie also of Schaumburg in the Schaumburg school trustee election.

Fitzgerald got 470 votes to Ritchie's 427. Fitzgerald will serve a six-year term.

ELECTION RESULTS are not yet available in the Maine Township school trustee election. Incumbent George Scharringhausen ran unopposed for a six-year term.

Township school trustees sit on a board which holds title to property owned by schools within their township. Each board holds scheduled meetings twice a year.

The trustees also select a treasurer who is authorized to sign checks for school expenditures within their townships. In some townships they co-ordinate school district accounting.

Project '70s Group A Constructive One

"The Hunger Hike-Walk for Development" will be sponsored May 9 by the Project 70's organization, a group of high school and college students promoting constructive youth involvement year round.

Goals for the hike are to gain community and government awareness of hunger and developmental needs locally and in the world.

There are seven domestic projects receiving nearly half the funds collected by Project 70's organization.

One is Lakeview Pantry offering emergency relief, referrals to other helpful agencies, and job and individual guidance.

The Fifth City Pre-School, on Chicago's west side, serves as a laboratory in early education in addition to helping working residents with pre-school children.

Other local projects helped by Project 70's are Respond Now, Benton Settlement House, the Chicago Welfare Rights Organization and Project Grantsman.

On an international scale the group helps sponsor agricultural training and building programs in foreign countries.

The American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, started by John F. Kennedy in 1961 receives 15 per cent of Project 70's money.

More information on the group and "The Hunger Hike-Walk For Development" can be obtained by writing Project 70, 5248 Washington Street, Skokie, Illinois 60076 or by calling 677-0979.

Scott Pollution Talk Planned

Illinois Attorney General William Scott will be the keynote speaker at a businessmen's seminar on the "Economic Implications of Pollution Control" May 7 in Wood Dale.

The seminar will include discussions on innovative solutions to pollution control by three Chicago area business executives.

Lorenz Aggens, public service director for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission will comment on "Planning for Environmental Quality."

S. A. Bortz, senior engineer in Ceramics Research for the Illinois Institute of Technology, will explain the theories for the "Recycling of Waste Material."

Dr. Kenneth Ries, assistant manager of the Corporate Environment Control Department of Armour and Co., will discuss "Reducing Cost of Water Pollution Control" and Dr. Donald C. Kleckner, president of Elmhurst College, will speak on "Higher Education and Its Environmental Challenge."

The seminar, which starts at 9 a.m., will be held at the Elmhurst Country Club. It is sponsored by Elmhurst College and will be the fourth annual President's Council of Business Associates' Seminar.

It's Time To Beware Of Gyp Artists

to blacktop a man's driveway cheap. Several such operators have been reported in the Northwest suburbs.

No neighborhood, old or new, is immune.

"They'll come by in a pickup truck and tell you they just happened to be in the neighborhood and have some material left over from the job they just finished down the street. But when it buckles on you, you won't get any service. It's a lost cause."

"Get references from him. Ask for the names of people he's done work for and contact them. Call your local chamber of commerce and see what they have to say.

"CHIMNEY SHAKERS are one of the worst. They work the old neighborhoods and swindle old folks who are forgetful and unsuspecting. First a man will climb to the top of house house, shake the chimney loose, perhaps even toppling it. . . then tell you how lucky you are because he's willing to fix it for an enormous price. And once you sign the contract, it's too late to do anything about it."

"Then there are the furnace people. This isn't a spring racket, but you have to watch out for them. They'll ask to see your furnace, disassemble it and leave it that way unless you buy a new one. They'll say the old one is worn out or that gas is escaping and may kill you if it isn't fixed. They have to use their judgment on which tactics to use on a particular person, but usually pull it off. "Then there are the landscape people. They'll come to your door posing as tree surgeons and don't really know the sap from the suckers . . . unless that sucker happens to be you. But they'll charge as if they did and you might lose some valuable trees to boot, because they'll find something wrong and cut one down, charging you a high price. Others do landscape work, but don't do good work and aren't around in case you are unsatisfied later.

"AND STILL OTHERS will dump a huge load of earth on your front lawn and say you ordered it and you better pay now for it. The dirt is usually dumped by a pair of husky men you won't want to argue with, so your best bet is to call the police," said Ugelow.

He said most people, unfortunately, call the police or the BBB after they've been stung, after they've paid for the work or signed a contract for it. And by then, he said, it's too late.

They've already paid the piper.

Area 4-H Members Win Poster Contest

Five area 4-H members recently won in the club's state poster art contest.

They are Kathy and Karla Rindal, Arlington Heights; Susan Black, Mount Prospect; Chris Lyons, Barrington; and Kathy Senne, Roselle.

The five were selected in statewide 4-H competition and will be among 14 members who will go on to national competition.

The sum of the poster contest is to give members a chance to show what 4-H is. The art work will be used for national posters, calendars, leaflets, exhibits and displays.

Social Security and You

Q — I HAVE been offered part-time work by my employer when I retire next month. Since I have already applied for monthly social security retirement benefits, will my employer still have to withhold social security contributions from my wages?

Outdoor Teaching

Two Mount Prospect residents were among 28 Northern Illinois University students who spent three days recently learning about outdoor teaching at Oregon, Ill.

The two were Jill Doerr, daughter of Fred B. Doerr of 1003 Greenwood, and Karen Polkow, daughter of Mrs. B. Polkow of 2110 Jody Ct.

The students, all majoring in elementary education, spent the three days at the Lorado Taft Field Campus, the university's outdoor education center, studying instructional methods and materials.

On Dean's List

Marcia Clarke of Mount Prospect has been named to the dean's list for the fall semester at Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond.

To qualify for the dean's list, a student must maintain a grade point average of 3.5 on a four-point scale for 14 hours of credit or more.

Marcia is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clarke, 1829 Forest Ave.

A — Yes. The fact that you draw monthly social security benefits has no bearing on the requirement that your employer withhold and report social security contributions on your wages.

Q — I GET social security payments as a widow. I do not work, but I own a small apartment building. Does my rental income count toward the $1,680 a year that I can earn before social security payments are reduced?

A — No. Only wages and self-employment income count as earnings for social security purposes. Rental income will not affect your cash benefits unless you are a real estate dealer.

Q — I AM a laborer in heavy construction. Since I work for different contractors throughout the year, I request a statement of my earnings from social security every few years. The last statement I got did not agree with my own records. How can I get this corrected?

A — Get in touch with any social security office promptly so that the differences can be cleared up. You should bring along with you any wage receipts, work records, or any other record you have of your earnings.

Q — I'LL BE 72 on April 23, 1971, and I'm still working. Is it true that I can collect monthly social security cash benefits even though I continue to work?

A — Yes. Retirement benefits are not reduced for people 72 and over who continue to work. You should apply for these benefits 2 or 3 months before your birthday at any social security office.

Marjorie Olson

She'll Attend NEA Meeting

Marjorie Olson, an Elk Grove High School teacher, has been elected as delegate to the National Education Association (NEA) constitutional convention July 1 in Colorado.

Miss Olson, division head of foreign languages and social studies at Elk Grove High, was elected as one of 10 delegates to the convention, to be held at Colorado State University in Fort Collins.

George Ergang and Margaret LeFebvre, both teachers at Elk Grove High, were elected by state-wide ballot to serve as alternates.

Miss Olson was the first president of the IEA Northwest Suburban Division, and is now a member of the division social studies chairman committee.

A former member of the IEA board of directors, she is now on state association legislative committee, and chairman of that committee for her division.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I used to jog one and one-half to two miles six days a week and felt fine. On reading a recent book on exercise, I became alarmed because the book said that 10 minutes after exercise your pulse should be less than 100 beats per minute. Mine is always around 110 after 10 minutes, and sometimes 120. I assumed the exercise was too much for me, so I quit jogging and now I don't feel near as fit. I reduced my distance to one mile and still, after 10 minutes, my heart rate was 105 to 110 beats per minute. I am 48 years old and weigh 155 pounds. My doctors have checked me out and said it was O.K. for me to jog. I would like to start again. This pulse beat has me all confused. What do you recommend?

Dear Reader—arbitrary rules produce arbitrary results. The heart rate is only one of the several indicators of how hard the heart muscle is working. I know it is difficult to take your heart rate during exercise, but if you stop suddenly and count it, you should probably be only about 140 beats per minute to stay within safe levels of exercising without supervision by medical personnel.

From what you have described about yourself, I see no reason why you could not jog regularly and I think the chief danger is in trying to cover the distance in too short a period of time. That is where most people, particularly men, get into trouble. Jog at a comfortable speed that doesn't cause you to feel over-exerted and enjoy the scenery.

For a set distance, you really do not improve the expenditure of energy an awful lot by increasing the speed a great deal. Then the amount of oxygen required for exercise increases steeply, to levels I do not consider safe for middle-aged men, with or without medical evidence of heart disease.

SINCE MOST American men have fat deposits in their coronary arteries, I am not inclined to suggest that they push their exercise programs to the limit. The amount of slow jogging a person should do depends on physical stamina. One should build up to longer distances.

I am vigorously opposed to the idea of running as fast as you can. That is totally unnecessary and often dangerous. Exercise is wonderful for the body but, like most medicines, there is a right way and a wrong way to take it. Our most useful medicines are two-edged swords and they can kill as well as cure. The same is true of exercise.

DEAR DR. LAMB—A few months ago I coughed and felt something pushed out of my navel. It is about the size of my little finger. I can't feel it too much, only when I cough or push out.

Please tell me if it could be cancer or what. I told my doctor. He didn't look at it or say anything. He said he didn't have time to look.

Dear Reader—I doubt it is cancer. It sounds more like a small hernia through the navel, if anything. It will need to be examined before anyone can tell you if it is a small hernia or not. If it is a hernia, it will probably not cause any serious trouble unless it gets a little bigger.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Now that the honeymoon is over even the fair Juliet cannot restrain herself occasionally from a witty comment. She took Romeo's hand out of the board, looked it over carefully and murmured, "Romeo, Romeo, wherefore has't thou not raised my suit, Romeo?"

Romeo, who was looking at the next hand, did not answer. When the game was over he showed her that his plus 130 for making four diamonds undoubled was an absolute top score.

Club bidders had all reached six or failed to find the way to make five. Romeo on the other hand had really given diamonds a magnificent play and deserved his top.

The first three tricks were a heart to the ace, a trump to West's ace and a second heart to dummy's king. Now Romeo ruffed a third heart to get to his hand and led a second one of his trump equals. West won and led a fourth heart which Romeo trumped. He led his high trump and didn't worry when East showed out. He would make the hand anyway.

He led a club toward dummy. West couldn't afford to trump and now Romeo played ace of spades, ruffed a spade and led another club. It didn't matter if West trumped or discarded, Juliet's club and spade king were sure to win tricks.

Early spade leads would have defeated the contract, but once the defense got started on hearts, Romeo was home. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Veterans' News

Q — I PURCHASED a home under the GI Bill, and have now been notified that the property is going to be condemned to make way for a Federal highway. Can I have my loan eligibility restored to purchase another home?

A — Yes. The VA may restore the amount of a veteran's entitlement previously used for any loan on a home which has been taken by condemnation or otherwise by the United States, any state, or any local government agency for public use. However, before there can be any restoration of entitlement, the GI loan on the property must have been paid in full, or the VA must other have been relieved of liability under the guaranty.

Q — SEVERAL YEARS ago, my "old law" pension was terminated because my annual income exceeded $1,600. I understand that the income limitation for a single veteran has been increased to $1,900. Can I be reinstated under the "old law," since my income is now within this limit?

A — Yes. A change in the law which became effective on Jan. 1, 1971, increased the income limit to $1,900. Any veteran whose pension was terminated after July 1, 1960, because of excessive income may now requalify under the new income limit, provided he has not elected to receive "new law" pension.

Practical ideas, creative services, concern for the people he serves... these are the things that moved Dick David to the top in 1970 as a member of Metropolitan Life's President's Conference. His performance in 1970 earned him a place alongside the truly outstanding Metropolitan salesmen in the United States and Canada. But success in life insurance is really a two-way street. That's because it's the nature of the profession for an outstanding man to do well while doing good for others. Dick's outstanding record means that the families and businessmen he served are better off too. Korvettes

OPENING THURSDAY
APRIL 22nd

A famous philosopher once said "There's nothing new under the sun." He was right. There are only variations on existing themes. Korvettes Arlington Heights is a case in point. We're not the first department store. We're not the first discount store. We're not even the first Korvettes discount department store.

But we do have a new concept, a revolutionary approach to merchandising. Under one roof, on one convenient level is a variety of merchandise so broad that every family need can be satisfied in one shopping expedition. And the atmosphere is so spirited, so alive, so colorful that you'll find yourself strolling appreciatively down wide aisles, browsing contentedly in our boutique-like departments.

All discount department stores attempt to save you money. We believe we accomplish this goal better than most because our huge buying power enables us to purchase in volume. All discount stores offer convenient credit plans. We offer a choice of three.

There are other "variations" at Korvettes Arlington Heights. See, enjoy, participate in them all. Opening day... and on!

'Fresh Ideas' In Legislature

The current Illinois General Assembly has been criticized frequently for its failure to move a little faster in what is expected to be the state's busiest legislative year.

Little progress has been made to date, and the session is now more than half over. Still to be resolved are implementation of the state's new Constitution, redistricting of Congressional and legislative districts, and appropriation of funds for the next fiscal year.

We believe much of the criticism has been justified. We have offered some of our own, we will continue to do so as long as the legislators practice politics, rather than statesmanship, and think of the needs of their parties, rather than the needs of the people of Illinois.

But we also believe credit should be given when it is earned and the 77th General Assembly deserves praise, as well as criticism.

Of particular interest to us are numerous bills which have been introduced thus far and which indicate that various legislators are, in fact, thinking of solving problems and coming up with fresh new ideas for the state.

Several of them are safety measures and the logic behind their introduction makes us wonder why someone didn't think of them before.

For example, a bill has been introduced in the Senate by Sen. Terry L. Bruce, D-Olney, which would require installation of safety belts on every seat in school buses.

Another Senate bill, this one sponsored by Sen. Jack T. Knuefer, R-Elmhurst, would require a safety test to be given to all used cars before they are resold.

A bill introduced in the House of Representatives by Rep. Robert Day, R-Peoria, would require motorists driving in rural areas to have their headlights on whenever conditions require the use of their windshield wipers. The bill is intended to make it easier to see oncoming vehicles on open highways in inclement weather and it makes a great deal of sense.

Rep. John Connolly, R-Waukegan, has introduced a bill that would require a woman to be tested for, and immunized against Rubella before a marriage license could be issued.

A local representative, Robert S. Juckett, R-Park Ridge, has offered legislation which would control the amount of phosphates allowed in detergents sold in the state. Numerous municipalities have already taken this wise step but Juckett's bill would offer a statewide solution to one of our major pollution problems.

Another sensible bill aimed at pollution control would establish a state commission on recycling to study ways of more effectively disposing of and recycling waste products. The bill was introduced by Rep. Leland Rayson, D-Tinley Park and is cosponsored by Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and Rep. Aaron Jaffe, D-Skokie.

A bill now before the elections committee in the House would change primary election dates to Saturday, thus encouraging more voter participation.

Another election related bill would require all school referenda to be held on days on which school board elections are held, thus attracting more interest and putting the burden of proving the need for additional funds on the shoulders of the candidates.

These are just a few examples of some of the pending legislation in Springfield which seem to make some sense and which show that the legislators are thinking progressively.

Most of these bills are not of major interest in the state and are not expected to generate a great deal of attention or controversy. In fact, many of them probably will be forgotten while the legislature tackles the major issues facing it between now and its June 30 adjournment date.

We hope that doesn't happen with all of them. There are many good ideas there and they are the kinds of bills that would have little or no political implications if legislators support them.

We encourage our local legislators to give careful consideration to these bills and we commend the sponsors and cosponsors for their initiative. We also thank them for giving us something nice to say about the General Assembly.

'Davies-Baker Coalition' Credibility Questioned

In a recent letter to the editor, Hanover Park Village Attorney Davies made the observation that the village should run its own affairs and not be subject to outside interference including his own. I say — commendable and timely but unfortunately, too little and too late.

Thanks to his legal interpretations during the last two years this village is currently involved in several law suits, a rather unique and questionable distinction. Thanks to Attorney Davies, the future direction and financial obligation of every man, woman and child in Hanover Park has been mortgaged for the sake of the "Growth Neurosis" of "The Davies-Baker Coalition." The ridiculous "Davies-ism" that he was attacked by Frank Dalla Valle is typical of the half truths and innuendo that Davies has introduced to our village scene. The real division here is the credibility of the "Davies-Baker Coalition." The most frequently asked question in this village in recent years is "What are the facts?" "What is the truth?" The answer to these questions is as elusive as a legal opinion of Our Own Attorney Davies — "A Matter of Interpretation."

Now as to sore losers, Davies finally had one of his opinions challenged in court and was ruled against by the court. And what was his reaction? An unprecedented personal attack by a village employee on a resident candidate for office from the forum of his appointed position at the Village Hall. We know who the sore loser is and so does every other village resident.

Davies "Carpetbagging" performance is typical. Frank Dalla Valle at least is a resident who will have to pay the price in taxes and living conditions for any of his decisions. Let the "Carpetbagger" go tell Streamwood how to operate and pay his Corporate Memory Is Short For . . .

An Old Man Who Made A Mistake

by BRAD BREKKE

After 47 years of dedicated service, Tony the ticket agent was "retired by the railroad."

"Retired" for a single mistake he made switching trains recently.

He sent one down the wrong track. It could have been serious, but luckily it wasn't.

The only trouble was, it was a BIG MISTAKE and Tony was 66-years-old. His biggest enemy was time.

The decision to retire the old ticket agent was made at a special hearing conducted by the railroad a few weeks ago.

He was tried and found guilty, but his age was more on trial than his job.

"How old are you Tony?" one investigator asked.

"I'm 66," bellowed Tony, fingering his old felt hat.

"Okay, you have a choice. You can sign your retirement papers now or you'll be dismissed."

"Well give me a day to think it over, huh?"

"If you don't sign now, you're fired," said another railroad official.

So Tony signed reluctantly, defeated.

He figured he got bum-rapped, but he certainly didn't want to be dismissed from a job held for 47 years, even if the verdict did seem unfair.

Tony griped and complained some. After all, he still had his pride and dignity to protect. But he did so privately.

At 66, Tony was young in spirit, had his health, and didn't want any part of sitting in a cock-eyed rocking chair. Not yet, anyway. Age hadn't beaten him that far down.

But the railroad's move to force his retirement, after 47 years of service, crushed his spirit a bit and almost broke his heart.

It was something the railroad had been laying in the weeds to do for some time, because old Tony didn't want to retire.

The railroad, you see, was Tony's whole life. His eyes would twinkle whenever he talked about trains because he loved his job. It was an affair that lasted nearly half a century.

Suburban Scene

Everyone, it seemed, knew Tony. Mostly commuters who took the train to Chicago every day and bought monthly tickets from him the first of every month.

For 47 years Tony was programmed to rise before the sun and walk to the station by 5 a.m. Sometimes the railroad would call him late at night and he'd have to leave a warm bed and trudge through a blizzard to get to the station, because they had no one else to switch the trains.

And two years ago, Tony didn't even take a vacation. The railroad couldn't get anyone to take his place, so rather than walk out on them, he said to hell with his vacation, he'd work anyway.

He was like that.

But they forgot.

They forgot railroad was his whole life. The only job he ever had. The thing that kept him young, kept him going.

He told his boss years ago he needed help in the station at the first of the month because he was so busy selling tickets, counting money and keeping books, that sometimes he didn't have time to keep his mind on switching trains. And the trains, he knew, came first.

It wasn't much of a job he clung to for so long. The pay was poor. The hours murderous. The tasks thankless. The fringe benefits almost zilch. But it was a job. A job he was dedicated to. And it was all he had.

Short and dumpy, friendly and shy, Tony was as much a part of the town as the train which ran through it. You could set your watch by him, too, because he was always on time. It was part of his makeup to be punctual, even though sometimes the trains he sold tickets for were late.

Of course, like any man, he had his weaknesses. He had an enormous appetite for home-grown lettuce and cooked dandelions, real estate, stocks and bonds, baseball and a bet on the ponies, now and then.

At 2 p.m. every day, after his job at the station was over Tony would shuffle along up the hill to his home wearing a workman's shirt, baggy pants and Army surplus shoes, which for years was his uniform of the day. Home was just a few blocks from the railroad station and during the spring and summer, he'd spend an hour a day working in his backyard garden.

Gardening was his second greatest love in life, besides the railroad. In fact he raised everything from green peppers to corn to plump, red tomatoes. What he couldn't eat, Tony always gave to his friends. And there were many, to be sure.

A man not given much to talking, especially about himself, Tony says he planned to work until December before retiring, so he could clear up some bills.

But he'll have to do it on his pension now. The first check is due in 90 days.

He held a part-time job in a hardware store. He used to say it kept him out of mischief. But the railroad pension board has "certain rules" and made him quit that job, too.

So now Tony's got plenty of time. And to launch his retirement, he's going on a trip to California with his wife. And he's taking his car this time, instead of a train. He says it will be good for his soul.

Large corporations sometimes forget a man is human, that he has a family and feelings. They forget all the years a man has worked. They forget the extra things he did. They forget the odd hours in the middle of the night he left a warm bed to go to work. They forget his loyalty and dedication.

Instead, they see him only as an old man who made a mistake. A man who must go, like an old dog who can't perform his tricks. A man who has outlived his usefulness, like an old shoe from yesterday's fashion catalog. A man who must be forced to retire, like old Tony.

Tony never took a plane. Until this week, he always traveled by train. He believed in them.

The trouble was, the railroad didn't believe in him.

Tony the ticket agent's time had run out.

Democrats Run Clean Campaign: Party Leader

On behalf of the Schaumburg Township Democrat Organization, I as president wish to make clear a few points. Not in answer to the Republican campaign manager who made dastardly charges that the Democratic Organization received outside financial help from the county or state. This is a complete untruth! This is not an answer to this person.

This is an answer to the people of Hoffman Estates. The reason I am making this statement, a number of people worked very hard in 1970 at fund raising events and increasing membership for dues. These people indeed should be heard from. I will try to act as their spokesman.

During 1970 I had, when elected, three goals in mind. First electing a committeeman of the people's choice. Our first goal achieved; the second was to raise money to make our organization financially solvent. This was accomplished through the efforts of many. Money came from cocktail parties, picnic, dinner dance, ad book, etc. Indeed we became solvent. The third goal, a successful Democratic result in the November election. This was accomplished. For this I am very grateful.

The remainder of my statement deals with this election and the complete domination of the Republican party in Schaumburg Township. We as Democrats felt a great need for checks and balances. This is when we decided to run a slate for trustees in the village of Hoffman Estates, or the minority would not be heard from. While undertaking this venture, a question of finance arose. We voted unanimously to support them from our treasury. Our slate members selected possible candidates, and their qualifications were brought forth to the organization. Again we voted unanimously for them. They will run as they have been running a clean non-smear type campaign because they know and we feel they are the best candidates and will be elected, if the people of Hoffman Estates weigh the facts. Think about it, it is important to you.

False Testimony Is Charged

Having lived in Wheeling for a number of years and being interested in its progress and its politics, I took it upon myself to attend an electoral board hearing on Feb. 26, 1971. This hearing was open to everyone in Wheeling who cared to attend.

It was truly an experience and an education. Educational, because I feel that I am one of the few citizens who truly knows the truth which was brought out by testimony of those people called by the objectors' attorney.

One of the present "independent" candidates of the WHIP Party gave false affirmation under oath. I would have thought better of those independent candidates if they would have told it like it was, and publicly admitted to their errors.

Yes, by their own admission they are "neophytes" when it comes to completing and submitting nomination petitions, but they are not "neophytes" when it comes to mistruths.

How long can the WHIP Party expect the people will believe that they are "neophytes" and still so naive?

How then can this present WHIP candidate who gave false testimony under oath in court be expected to uphold the oath of an elected office?

No Quick Solutions To Problems

Since I have two more years to serve as Trustee of the Village of Buffalo Grove, I have been watching the candidates for village offices very closely because I will be working with six of them on the many vital issues that are facing the board. There will not be time for a "breaking in" period that a new official usually has to get acquainted with the job. Consequently those elected must have the experience to by-pass the "breaking in" period and the time consuming "briefing" necessary to be brought up to date on the history of village matters. They have to be able to face up to the pressure of the responsibilities and render an effective decision for the betterment of the whole village, not any one pressure group.

There are never any quick easy solutions to village problems. One reason is because being a public body, we work under restrictive laws which at times does hamper expediency, but these laws are necessary to protect the public. The other reason is we must deal with other public bodies who have their own rules and authority, and at times the cooperation is not forthcoming. For those reasons just mentioned, I am wary of those candidates who voice quick easy solutions because it reveals a naivety that will take precious time to overcome.

For the above reasons I believe that the United Village Party with candidates Donald Thompson, Rosalie Kaszubowski, Jack Maichel, Donald Wilson, Charles Moodhe and Henry Cimaglio, are more qualified for the positions of village officers because of their experience, professionalism and the ability to identify problems, face and carry out the decisions that are needed for orderly growth and service to the village.

Instant Face Lift For Quick Glamour

by MARIANNE SCOTT

No woman in her right mind really wants to look old — and this bit about age adding character to a face may be true, but who wants character if you can have youth?

Just about to hit the market is an instant face lift that will smooth out crows-feet around the eyes and give a smoother, firmer contour to the jawline and neck. No, it's not permanent, but it will last up to three or more days — perfect for that high school reunion or even for everyday glamor.

It is the same type of beauty device used by actresses of stage, screen and television to give a youthful look to the face also by younger women to slim plump cheeks or smooth smile lines. The kit contains clear, plastic, adhesive tapes which are placed at the temples and in front of, or behind, the ears. To the tapes are attached elastic bands with hooks and eyelets, which when drawn up across the back of the head literally pull out wrinkles and sags. The elastics are concealed in the hairdo and the tapes are hidden by hair brushed forward.

AMONG THE FIRST in the Midwest to see a demonstration of the Traynor Lift were members of Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Illinois Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association. Demonstrator was Rocco Bellino of Chicago, a member of the national Official Hair Fashion Committee who specializes in make-up.

Using Mrs. George Breust of Arlington Heights as his model, Mr. Bellino explained that "skin is never old, just experienced."

The non-allergenic tapes are applied to a scrupulously clean skin, edges are coated with eyelash glue to seal out moisture. Using just enough tension so as not to alter the facial structure, he smoothed the skin by gently pulling the elastics, fastening them together and securing them under the separated back hair.

Besides moisturizer, Bellino used a cream base applied slightly heavier over the lifts. For Mrs. Breust he also included a carefully-measured eyebrow arch applied with a brush, eye contouring, shadow, liner, upper and lower lashes, and facial contouring with darker cream to reduce the jaw line and lighter cream to point up the chin.

ROUGE, POWDER and lip gloss were the final steps in making an already pretty Eleanor Breust look even prettier.

The lifts are said to be comfortable and to tauten rather than stretch the skin. "Unchecked sagging only gets worse," explained the make-up artist who believes that temporary face lifts will one day share the popularity boom now enjoyed by wigs.

The Traynor Lift will be selling in selected area beauty shops for around $5 per kit, extra tapes will be sold at $1.75 per dozen. There will be an additional service charge for women who wish to have the lifts applied by their beautician.

FASTENED UNDER the back hair, elastic bands supply tension to clear, plastic tapes which have been applied to temples and jaw line in a new temporary face lift.

Suburban Living
ESPECIALLY FOR THE FAMILY

FACE SCRUBBED, Mrs. Breust is ready for a temporary face lift that will smooth away wrinkles around her eyes and firm up her jaw line.

A MORE YOUTHFUL and glamorous Eleanor Breust is given a light dusting with powder as a final step in make-up application that included an instant face lift. Tapes at temples and behind the ear will be covered by hair, brushed forward.

Men's Lib Here?

by GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Men's Liberation Movement has started Men's Lib! That's right. And women to a large measure are responsible.

The revolution, although still not at the noisy stage of marches and picketing and er, shorts burnings, definitely is here. No organization comparable to, say, the Women's Lib now which has some male members is behind the movement — yet. But when the men saw what the activist women's groups were doing to arouse public opinion, they caught on fast.

"The men began to think about themselves. The men are saying, 'I want more freedom, too,'" says Dr. Ernest Dichter, a pioneer in the study of behavior and social mores.

DICTER HEADS up the Institute for Motivational Research, Inc., with headquarters at Croton-on-Hudson, and offices in Zurich, Munich, Barcelona and Paris.

"Men have reason for complaint," said Dichter. "The concept of the man as the dominant factor in family life has given way to that of equality with the woman in decision making, particularly since a high proportion of wives are also breadwinners.

"Male domains seem to be on the wane. Family vacations and backyard sociability appear to be more acceptable than hunting and fishing trips and the neighborhood tavern."

In a way he said, man has brought all this on himself — "Not enough self-assurance, a certain degree of momism, the fear of he gives woman equality, he will give up his own superiority."

Women's Lib started the men asking "What about us?" said Dichter. The man asks, "Why am I always the one to pay the alimony? Why should I be the sole provider? She (the wife) can work, why doesn't she?"

The man is saying "I want more freedom, too."

Dichter sees a lot of the liberation slow in arriving — the women paying alimony for instance — for some things are deeply entrenched in our thinking.

But one day he said, there might be "AWOL's from marriage" — not a bad idea either. Might cut down on the number of divorces.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

The column about the Scripture Cake brought many variations of the recipe and, as bonus, many lovely interpretations of the good life in poetic form. This one from Rhonda Klumb because of her age, is particularly apt. "Dear Dorothy: Am only 11 years old and after reading about the Scripture Cake thought I would give you my version. Measure a cup of friendship and thoughtfulness, cream together with a pinch of powdered tenderness, beaten very lightly in a bowl of love with a generous cup of faith and hope. Add a spoonful of gaiety and laughter, moistened with the sudden tears of heartfelt sympathy, and bake in a good-natured pan. Serve often so that from our homes will emanate serenity, faith, discipline, an awareness of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God."

Thank you, Rhonda. It's a recipe all of us grownups need reminding about.

Dear Dorothy: This is how I clean my suede coat. I apply fuller's earth freely to grease and food spots and around the collar and cuffs. It's left on for a couple of hours then removed with a clothes brush. Then I use the very finest steel wool (0000) to brush lightly one way. —J.M.L.

You're brave. I'm for taking suede to the best cleaner available — one who can re-dye should it be necessary.

Having one of those "maybe" experiments work when the man of the house requests it can sure make the day. His nibs received a leather (or it could have been made of one of the magic materials) folder which looked ideal for papers to carry to meetings. However, all over the front of it was an extravagant "commercial" message. I wonder if they know how much this "turns off" those who receive these things? Anyway, could all this printing be removed? Poured on some nail polish remover and barely scrubbed it with the kitchen vegetable brush. It was off in less than 30 seconds — as if the printing had never been there. He didn't say anything but it regaled.

Nursing Scholarship Is Still Open

Applications are still being accepted for the Mount Prospect Nurses' Club annual nursing scholarship. This is the 13th consecutive year the club has awarded this scholarship to promote an interest in the nursing profession.

All applicants for the $400 scholarship must be residents of Mount Prospect and have been accepted for admission to an accredited school of nursing. Application forms may be obtained from the senior counselors at Forest View, Prospect Sacred Heart of Mary, Maime West and Hensley high schools.

All applications must be completed and received by Wednesday, April 21. For additional information or application forms those interested may contact Mrs. Ronald Pankow at 439-3482.

Some Advice On Toothpaste

Some parents are confused over whether they should buy a toothpaste that will whiten teeth, prevent decay or kill germs.

The Chicago Dental Society points out that the role of a dentifrice is to aid the toothbrush in cleaning. In addition, certain dentifrices have proven decay-preventive qualities, and those that have been approved by the American Dental Association carry the ADA statement of recognition as "an effective decay preventive."

The extent of effectiveness of these dentifrices depends upon their use, the Dental Society notes. To obtain maximum protection, teeth should be brushed as soon as possible after eating, including snacks. Decay-causing bacteria begin work shortly after food has entered the mouth.

However, the Dental Society adds, even approved dentifrices are not cure-alls. They are designed only as aids in combating decay and will not substitute for fluoridation of community water supplies and regular visits to the dentist.

The Dental Society warns against use of so-called tooth whitening dentifrices by patients with exposed dentin, the calcified tissue beneath the enamel of the tooth or cementum, the thin tissue covering the roots of the teeth. Also it should be avoided by those with tooth restorations of soft synthetic materials. Before using tooth whitening pastes, the Dental Society suggests getting the dentist's advice.

So-called bacteria killing dentifrices have not been found effective according to the dentists' group in reducing the number of decay-causing bacteria or reducing decay.

Standard Oil Price Bid Foiled By Competitors

by LEA TONKIN

Standard Oil Division, American Oil Co., tried unsuccessfully this week to start a trend toward normal, or higher, gasoline prices.

The company announced a curtailment of subsidies to gasoline retailers this week, bringing up the suggested retail tank price at its stations. The competition killed this plan, reported Herbert Hugo, Midwest bureau chief of Platt's Oilgram, a daily publication of petroleum industry information. "If this move had any chance of succeeding, it would have gained support of other major oil companies early this week," he said.

The normal price level is 40.4 cents a gallon in metropolitan Chicago. Hugo said that during gas wars between dealers, the majors may lower the pump price in order to compete with independent gas retailers. The difference between the normal pump price and the reduced price is usually split, with the oil company paying 70 per cent and the dealer paying 30 per cent of the loss.

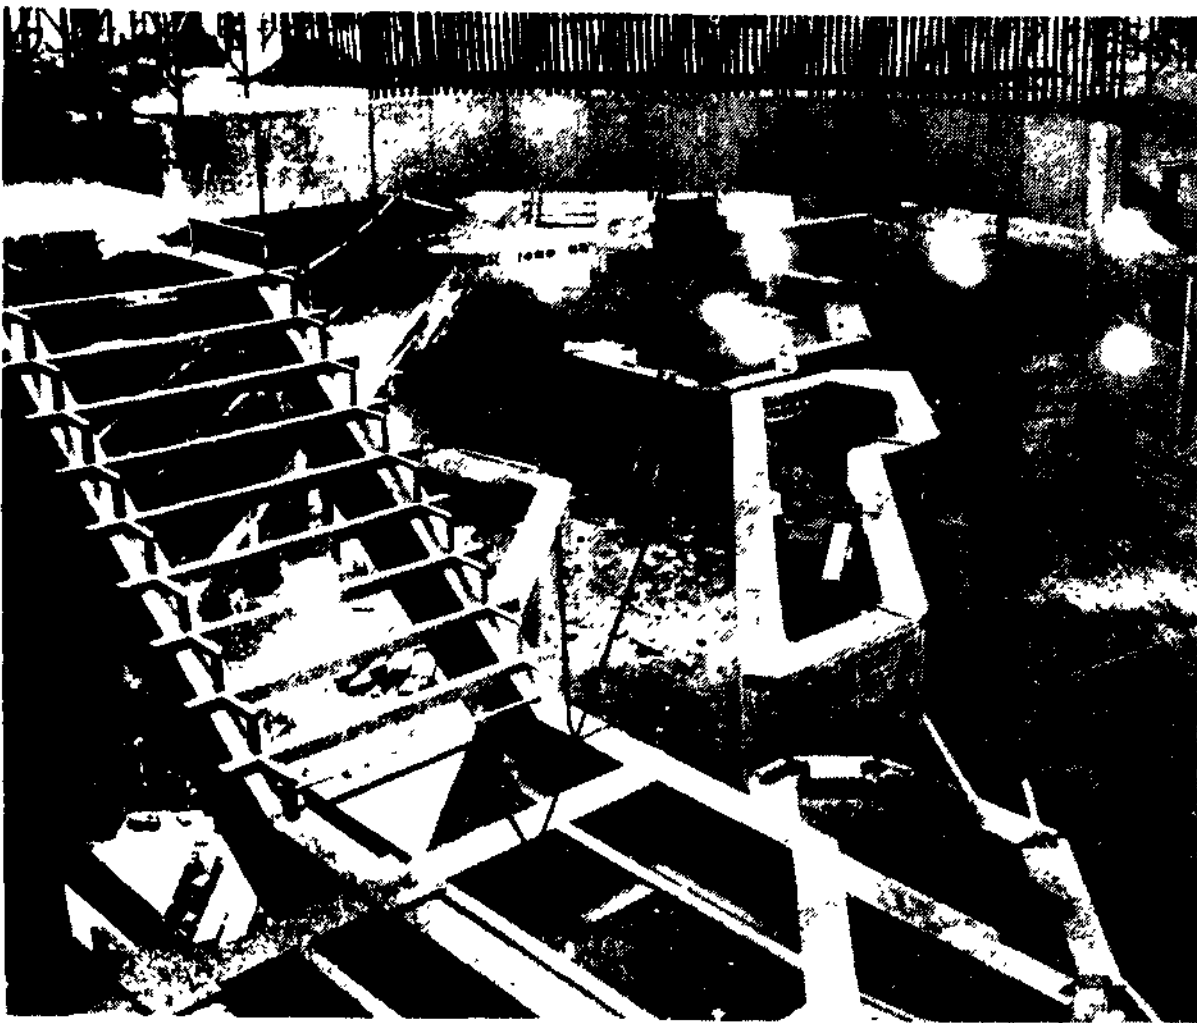

Standard reduced its supports this week, which was intended to raise suggested pump prices to 36.4 cents a gallon, from the previous 33.4 cents a gallon. Other majors did not follow Standard's lead. Hugo said that each of four previous restorations won some degree of competitive support, but failed within a week or two as competitive independent dealers held back at sharply lower prices.

"It looks as though the consumer can continue wheeling and dealing and choose his own price for gasoline," said Hugo. "This is the longest gas war in the last 15 years. With each attempt to stop it ending in a resounding failure.

"The public is wise up, since they know the higher gas prices will only last a few days. The major oil companies will be screamed at by the public if normal prices are restored. For now, they're just losing money."

Miller Thanks His Backers

Ross Miller, elected Saturday to the Harper College board, on Tuesday thanked those who voted for him and pledged to "work hard and long hours if necessary to be a good board member."

The Mount Prospect attorney also pledged cooperation to any investigation of the conduct of the Harper College election, in which Milton Hansen and D

Eugene Nugent were also elected to the board.

He stressed he "felt strongly" Harper's best interests will be served by those elected, and added, "I know, speaking for myself, that the faculty and students will always be heard, listened to and given impartial consideration."

HE ADDED, "I want to congratulate the individuals who actively campaigned, for their efforts and their concern in the college and community."

"Further, I congratulate those students, some of whom I personally saw working for other candidates and those who actively worked for me, for showing they have interest and willingness to work within the system."

"It's through this type of work, albeit opposition in some form or other, our wonderful system of government performs on behalf of the people."

Miller, in response to charges from defeated candidate Larry Moran, said he personally had examined 25 different pieces of campaign literature from five school board elections.

He said the literature is "same or similar in content." "However, since Larry Moran has the desire to have campaign material reviewed, I have and will cooperate in any way possible in any investigation or hearing."

MORAN HAD CHARGED that literature distributed before last Friday by a group called Citizens for an Outstanding Harper College Board was illegal, as it was unsigned by individuals.

On Monday, Moran said he was in communication with the State's Attorney's office, the Illinois Attorney General's office and the Cook County Board of Election Commissioners.

Miller said he had called the state's attorney for this judicial district on Friday and on Monday.

"As a result of my Friday conversation and as a result of Larry Moran's charges, I felt that any literature passed at the polls should lean heavily in favor of any legal technicalities."

He added, "Consequently, after a discussion with campaign workers, it was agreed that any literature passed should be imprinted. I have met with an investigating team who have assured me that all county literature will be examined."

IN RESPONSE TO Moran's charges, Miller said he was not "a politician." He added, "As far as party politics are concerned, I have found both Republicans and Democrats agreeing with my Harper board philosophy, and I feel it rather incidental that any of the interested people were of either party."

"Perhaps Mr. Moran, as our former President Truman so well stated, to modify his phrase, 'couldn't stand the heat in the kitchen.'"

Miller said the issues raised by Moran will probably benefit future elections and that the publicity has interested more people in the Harper election.

"Hopefully, more public interest will be generated toward the end that qualified board members at all educational levels will be elected."

Housing Counselor

Sought At Center

A position as a housing counselor at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows is now open.

The housing counselor's duties will include relocating low income families in housing in the area, compiling statistics on housing in the northwest suburban area, working with federal housing programs and working with local communities to improve housing.

Applicants should be able to speak both Spanish and English and have had some experience in real estate or the housing field.

Salary is open, and will depend on each applicant's qualifications and experience.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Karen Stanley, center director, at 255-3456.

Two Hunger Hikes Merged

Two proposed hunger hikes in the Northwest suburbs to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and Norwesco have been combined into one hike.

One hike will now be held May 16. It will start at Mount East High School in Park Ridge, and wind through Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, and end at the opportunity center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd. The distance covers about 20 miles.

Originally, two hikes were planned for May 9, one for people in the Mount Prospect-Arlington Heights area and one for people in the Palatine-Schaumburg area.

Rena Trevor, over-all coordinator for the hike, said that the date for the hike was changed when many area young people indicated that they would not be able to march in a hike on May 9, Mother's Day.

Mrs. Trevor said the proposed hike in the Palatine-Schaumburg area was called off because it was decided that a second hike would be too difficult to organize in such a short time period.

THE "HIKE FOR THE HUNGRY" will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Walther League, an organization of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. The sponsorship will enable the hike coordinators to use the publicity materials and other hike material provided by the Walther League. It will also enable them to use the title "Hike For the Hungry."

The name has been copyrighted by the Walther League.

Mrs. Trevor said the goal of the hike is to raise $75,000 from pledges of money from those sponsoring the hikers.

Of the funds raised, 50 per cent will be donated to the center and Norwesco, and the remainder to the Mississippi Delta Ministry and a Guatemalan relief project, both projects of the Walther League.

"Our goal is to get 3,000 to hike in the march. We hope to have recruiters in all the high schools in Dist. 211 and 214, plus East Maine and West Maine high schools in Des Plaines, Barrington High School, parochial high schools, and Harper College," Mrs. Trevor said.

A SIMILAR "Hike For the Hungry" in 1969 attracted 1,500 hikers and raised $17,000 for the opportunity center.

"This march should be a more in-depth march than the one two years ago. We're contacting more high schools and so we should be able to attract more hikers," Mrs. Trevor said.

Hike money donated to the center will be used to help provide a variety of programs for low-income people, including legal aid, employment and housing referrals, family planning, English lessons and sewing lessons.

Norwesco will use the funds to help run its Head Start program for pre-school children from low-income families. The program is designed to give the children extra help in preparing for elementary school through nursery-school related activities. Head Start centers are located in Palatine, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

Persons desiring to participate in the hike should contact Mrs. Trevor at 255-7352, the opportunity center at 255-3456, youth coordinator Hilda Seavers at 392-2846 or adult coordinator Doug Mosel at 259-5163.

The hike is part of an over-all fund raising drive being conducted by the opportunity center and Norwesco. The two organizations hope to raise $50,000 by Sept. 1 to help fund their programs.

Hospital Bonds Go On Sale

Northwest suburban residents can now buy hospital bonds from the nation's largest financier of hospital bonds in a new office opening in Arlington Heights.

B. C. Ziegler and Co., in its new office at 217 S. Arlington Heights Rd. is now selling $2.75 million in bonds for St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan.

The hospital is owned and operated by the Missionary Sisters of Techny in Northbrook, who have guaranteed the notes.

DEMNOMINATIONS OF $1,000 to $5,000 and $10,000 or multiples thereof are available, and pay interest ranges from six and one-half per cent to 8 per cent on Aug. 1, 1971 and semi-annually after that on Feb. 1 and Aug. 1 to maturity.

Ziegler and Co. is the firm which sold $1.75 million in bonds last August for expansion at Northwest Community Hospital.

Investors can purchase two and three year notes at six and one-half per cent, 4 and 5 year notes at 7 per cent, 6 to 9 year notes at seven and one-half per cent, 10 to 13 year notes at seven and three-quarter per cent and 14 and 15 year notes at 8 per cent.

According to Warren Coultas, Arlington Heights resident manager of B. C. Ziegler, five previous issues of St. Therese Hospital have always received excellent national reception. With credit dating back to 1928, the notes of St.

Therese are rated "AA" by Fitch Investors Service, New York.

No commissions are charged to the buyer and the notes sell at par plus accrued interest from March 1, 1971.

The present renovation and construction program at St. Therese is estimated to cost $6.75 million and is expected to be completed by late 1973.

For more information, investors should contact Coultas in the new Arlington Heights office, 394-4524.

Correction

The Herald reported erroneously Tuesday that a front window was broken Saturday in the law office of Ross Miller, an elected candidate to the Harper College board. An employee in Miller's office said the window had been broken accidentally some weeks before the election.

Wing-Bee Assures Hunters Of A Good Bag

DUCK WING — These are checked by biologists for age and sex at the wing-bee to help establish trends of the birds to insure better hunting for the flyways. The event was held in Wisconsin this year.

Ripping silk, that's the way they sound.

Thousands of wings beating and flapping in unison.

Thousands of birds flying in a wedge, high up.

A movement of duck wings and goose feathers.

These are migrations. Migrations south, then north, then south again.

And each year, shortly before these waterfowl begin winging north, migrating up the Mississippi Flyway to their summer nesting areas, game biologists get together for a big annual affair known as a wing-bee.

A wing-bee helps insure hunters in the 14 states which make up this flyway, will always have plenty of ducks and geese to hunt, and that no species will be killed off.

Here is how it works:

Each year waterfowl hunters from different locales are given envelopes provided by the U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife. They are instructed to send in the wing from each duck and the tail feathers from each goose they kill.

The envelopes are then sent to the wing-bee, which this year was held in Foyette, Wis., at the state game and conservation center.

Wings are then checked to determine the age and sex of the duck and counted to establish an approximate harvest figure of each species. Each third year the wings are checked for DDT pesticide residue and mercury residue analysis, although this wasn't the year for these checks.

The wing-bee helps the U.S. Bureau of Sports Fisheries and Wildlife personnel establish a count of how many birds of each species were harvested during the last season and how many can be harvested safely during the next season.

The envelopes ask the hunters for information as to where and when the birds were killed, which is a help to biologists in studies of the movement patterns of the birds.

Each year there are four wing-bees held in the United States, one for each flyway.

The Mississippi Flyway is the largest of the four flyways and contains the most migrating waterfowl. The 14 states included in it are Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

This is the 11th year wing-bees have been held.

Air Derby Slated May 22

Tickets to Jamaica will be the grand prize for this Year's Illi-Nines Air Derby to be held May 22 at Moline.

Local women are helping with plans for the event in which men and women pilots will be competing for an estimated $1,000 in prize money and trophies to be awarded to the first five place winners in each category.

In honor of the derby, Illinois Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie has proclaimed May as "General Aviation Month" in Illinois.

The Illi-Nines Air Derby is an annual event sponsored by the three Illinois chapters (Chicago area, Quad-City Area and Central Illinois) of the Ninety-Nines Inc., the International Organization of Women Pilots. The purpose of the derby is to encourage general aviation in Illinois and surrounding states.

Entry kits and more information may be obtained for $1 from Marion Jayne, 1918 W. Banbury Rd., Palatine, Ill. 60067.

The race route will be kept secret until the night before takeoff and it will be approximately 275 miles long. The route will start at Moline, pass two or three other airports as pylons, and end less than three hours later back at Moline. The final entry deadline is April 30 and competition will include 60 planes.

Competition will be separated into two categories, speed and proficiency.

Five local women are in charge of various parts of the derby's planning. They include Marion Jayne, Palatine, entry and handicaps; Arlene Odegaard, Rolling Meadows, trophies and registration; Pamela Stowell, Arlington Heights, publicity; Mary McKillip, Arlington Heights, chairman of the speed category; and Sharon O'Keefe, Mount Prospect, transportation.

Last Teacher Association Recital Slated

The last recital for the 1970-1971 year will be presented by the Northwest Suburban Music Teachers' Association on Sunday, April 18. It will be held at Harper Junior College.

There will be three separate recitals at the following hours: 1:30 p.m., 2:30 p.m. and 3:40 p.m. The public is invited to attend the free program.

Teachers and performers are as follows:

Arlington Heights teachers are Patricia Cavers, Joan Drollet and Ruth Peterson; students, Jill Kemper, Dotty Mary Massey, Emily Barton, Kim Gugin, Julie Gugin, Renee Kaskisto, Karen Padgett, Lisa Elder, Pam Fall and Cindy Lau.

the first Signs of Suburban Springtime!

Many things take on a whole new appearance in the Springtime... the trees become suddenly enriched with budding beauty, grass becomes alive with color and softness and the entire suburban atmosphere suddenly becomes alive with the fresh charm that heralds the arrival of the pleasant warmth of summer.

It's also that time of year when more people think of buying or selling a home, especially in the Northwest Suburbs, where quality homes are always on the market.

If you're buying... selling... or just thinking about a home change... follow the Thursday HERALD Real Estate section and see the hundreds of springtime home values available.

The Accepted Influence in the Northwest Suburbs

9 questions to ask yourself before you buy a home.

Mortgage money is available at Bell Federal Savings. And with it, there are a lot of new people looking for homes. Unfortunately, many of these people don't know everything they should about getting a mortgage.

If you're one of them, it's nothing to be ashamed of. After all, mortgage money has been so scarce in the past that many people held back buying a home. So they felt there really wasn't any need to know about mortgages.

But now there is. So we're providing you with this helpful guide to getting a mortgage. If it doesn't answer all your questions, come on in and we will.

If you're not in the market for a home right now, cut this out anyway.

It will come in handy when you are.

Cut this out and keep it handy.

What is a mortgage?

A mortgage is a legal agreement conveying property as security for the payment of a debt. The borrower agrees to repay the loan in a specified period of time and number of payments. In return for the loan, he grants a lien on the property to the lender. The title remains in the hands of the borrower.

Is there more than one type of mortgage?

Yes, there are three basic types of mortgages: conventional, FHA and VA.

CONVENTIONAL MORTGAGES are granted by savings and loans and other local financial institutions. On conventional mortgages, you can usually borrow up to 80% of the appraised valuation of the property.

FHA (FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION) MORTGAGES are granted by some lending institutions including Bell. The significant difference between these and conventional loans is that the FHA guarantees payment to the lending institution in case of default by the borrower. FHA mortgages generally require smaller down payments. They are available on property approved by the FHA.

VA MORTGAGES are available only to certain eligible veterans. The amount of the loan is guaranteed by the Veteran's Administration up to a maximum of $12,500. The interest rate is sometimes lower than that of other mortgages and you can often borrow the full purchase price without having to make a down payment.

What other charges and closing fees should I expect?

In addition to the down payment you should plan for additional expenses: Many lenders charge service charges and these vary from institution to institution. Some lenders also charge appraisal or closing fees (Bell does not charge for either of these on conventional loans). Title insurance can cost you $50 to $100, and you should plan a legal fee for your lawyer.

How long is the average mortgage?

Most mortgages made today are for 25 years. Of course, it is possible to make a mortgage for a shorter period of time, but this requires larger monthly repayments. In recent years, there have been some mortgages for 30 years. Still the 25 year mortgage remains the standard of the lending industry.

How do I know what I should spend on a house?

What you spend on a house should be determined by two things. How much do you have available for a cash down payment? How much are you able to pay for your monthly payments? Obviously if you're young and expect your income to increase in the years ahead, you can afford to spend more than if you're older and have achieved your maximum income level.

As a general guide for younger buyers, sound economics suggest your monthly mortgage payment not exceed one quarter of your monthly income. Or that the purchase price of the property not exceed two and one half to three times your yearly income. However, your individual circumstances will dictate exactly how much you should spend, and your real estate broker or attorney can be extremely helpful in suggesting the price range of the home you should be looking at.

What are points?

On certain types of mortgages, particularly FHA, the lending institution sometimes makes an additional charge for handling the loan. This is done to bring the return up to what they can get on other types of investments. When this charge is made to the seller, it is called "points". When it's to the buyer, it is referred to as a "service charge".

How long does it take to get a mortgage?

Normally, from the time application is made, it takes about two weeks to process and approve a conventional mortgage. FHA and VA mortgages generally take somewhat longer to process and approve.

Do I need a lawyer?

For the average person, the purchase of a home is probably the largest single investment of a lifetime. Buying a house is a complex transaction, and we would certainly recommend you use the services and expertise of an attorney. He can help you determine such things as exactly what property is included in the sale, the date of possession and the proper pro-rating of such items as insurance, taxes and utilities.

What is included in my monthly payment?

Your monthly payment includes charges on the principal of the loan, interest on the unpaid balance, and escrow payments for real estate taxes and insurance.

Discussion Slated On Drug Abuse

The afternoon sessions of the 1971 Illinois Retail Merchants Association's annual meeting, on April 21, at the Hotel St. Nicholas in Springfield will be devoted to discussions of drug abuse and freight problems and solutions. The announcement was made by George Bates, vice president, Carson Pirie Scott & Co., who this year serves as chairman of the IRMA annual meeting committee.

"Mitchell Ware, Superintendent, Illinois Bureau of Investigation, will be the featured speaker for the Drug Abuse session," said Bates. "Ware will discuss the effects of drug use and abuse by retail employees and customers and what merchants, as business men and community leaders, can do to curb this growing problem."

Freight problems and solutions, will be the topic of a panel discussion moderated by George Scanlan, president, Scanlan Traffic Service. Serving on the panel will be Herbert Bowker, assistant general traffic manager, freight claims, Montgomery Ward & Co., and Edgar Hichens, manager traffic operations, Sears, Roebuck and Co. These three men will review aspects of the freight business, from routing to filing claims.

These two sessions are a part of the day-long workshop and business program that IRMA has scheduled for the April 21 meeting. Special sessions dealing with the youth market and advertisements that make sales are also on the agenda.

Merchants and other business leaders interested in attending this retailing event should contact the Illinois Retail Merchants Association's Chicago office, 36 South Wabash Ave. Registration is $17 in advance and $20 at the door. Registration includes luncheon.

Hope For Home Buyers

by LEA TONKIN

Area savings and loan associations are gearing up for a new mortgage program aimed at middle-income families priced out of the housing market.

Allocations were announced last week for savings and loan associations which will participate in the new Housing Opportunity Allowance Program (HOAP), offering subsidized loans to middle-income families. In order to qualify for the program, a family must be ineligible for a conventional, unsubsidized mortgage.

Receiving a $20 a month subsidy for five years these qualifying middle-income families were termed by Federal Home Loan Bank Board chairman Preston Martin "the forgotten Americans, overlooked and underhoused, when funds for the program, set at $85 million, were allotted last December."

Each savings and loan association (S&L) decides whether or not to participate in this program, according to James Richter, vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank in Chicago. "We have reserved a certain amount of HOAP funds for each S&L in the Seventh District (Illinois and Wisconsin)," he said. "We anticipate that some will not choose to participate. After their first response, we will then reallocate the remaining funds."

"The Seventh district allocation is $8,942,000. That translates into 6,439 HOAP loans," said Richter. "We would like to see some of these funds flow into all part of the district — to cover the waterfront."

For families living in Cook County, outside Chicago city limits, the income limits set for HOAP are: two-persons, $8,505; three to five persons, $11,745; six-eight persons, $13,973; and nine or more, $14,378. Income limits in the city of Chicago are higher.

A SCHAUMBURG family was the first to qualify for HOAP funds through First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Chicago. "Under normal circumstances we would have rejected this loan," said

George Ekeberg, assistant vice president. "This is a young family, with one child. By taking the full allocation for this program, it will help the housing industry and families who could not get a regular conventional loan."

Donald Morton, president of Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, said his institution will offer HOAP loans. He noted that the regulations just came out for the program, and that it will take time to work them out.

"We are definitely going to HOAP," said Roland J. Barstow, president of Bell Federal Savings and Loan Association in Chicago. "The people who qualify for the program are generally just going into the housing market. They must select a house and then come to us for approval, rather than coming here first to see if they will qualify."

No decision on HOAP participation had been made early this week by the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Des Plaines according to John Eagleson, president. "One of the terms of this program is that the subsidy funds are paid to the S&L in the form of a credit on the interest owed on borrowings from the Federal Home Loan Bank. Since we do not owe them any money we have to clarify this situation," he said.

Mount Prospect Federal Savings and Loan Association and Douglas Savings and Loan Association reported that no decision had been made on the HOAP program.

Mitchell Will Speak Tonight

The Chicago Chapter of the National Association of Accountants will meet on Thursday, April 15, at the Flame Steak House in Oak Brook Terrace.

The guest speaker will be Bryan H. Mitchell, of Arlington Heights, controller for the A.C. Neilson Co. Dinner will start at 6:15 p.m.

Mitchell is in charge of all accounting operations, banking relations, acquisition investigations and corporate investment policy for the A.C. Neilson Co. He has held controllership positions at Oppenheimer Casing Co. of Chicago and Chambers Corp. in Rolling Meadows.

Mitchell is a graduate of Northwestern University. He spent three years in the Finance Corps. of the U.S. Army. He also received an MBA degree from Northwestern University.

TIPS TO HOME BUYERS AND HOME SELLERS

FROM MAP MULTIPLE LISTING
REAL ESTATE SERVICE

The advantages of the "Multiple" Real Estate sales system

The "multiple" Real Estate sales system has been in operation throughout the country for several years. It is accepted as one of the most effective methods for assuring maximum sales coverage in a given geographical area and operates on the simple principle of many individual companies cooperating in a professional, ethical effort to offer a broad scope of customer service.

The MAP Multiple Listing Service, for example, was organized to offer a cooperative sales and service system here in the Northwest Chicago suburbs, serving the communities of Mt. Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows, Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Hanover Park and Roseville, with a total of 84 participating Real Estate offices and over 400 professional Real Estate sales people.

When you list your home with any participating cooperating MAP Multiple Listing Company, your home automatically gets the attention of the entire MAP membership who ethically and efficiently use all their individual sales efforts to sell the home. You get the personalized supervision from the Real Estate company you list with PLUS the day-to-day sales effort and dedication of the 84 participating MAP offices.

There are many additional advantages when listing with a MAP office such as total market coverage, mass advertising and nationwide referral system, which will be reviewed in future issues.

Buying or selling... there are many advantages when you place your home and your confidence in the hands of a local MAP Multiple Listing Service Real Estate Company.

Builders To Hear Blaser

William Blaser, director of the Environmental Protection Agency of the State of Illinois, will be featured speaker at the first in a new series of luncheon meetings being sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Chicago (HBAC).

The inaugural noon meeting will take place on Wednesday, April 21, at the Furniture Club in the Furniture Mart in Chicago, according to Fred Hillman, chairman of the HBAC program and entertainment committee. Blaser will discuss the relationship of the EPA with the home building industry, including regulations in the state regarding sewage, pollution and other environmental matters.

The luncheon meetings will be held on a monthly basis, said Hillman. Topics will provide a forum for builder questions.

Blaser's background includes a variety of civic and governmental activities both on the state level and on the local level in his former residence of Park Forest. He graduated from Northwestern University with a B.S. in business administration and attended Harvard Law School. He is president of Blaser, Anderson & Co., a management consulting firm.

Reservations for the meeting can be made by calling Winnie Monahan at the HBAC office, 782-8657.

Cool From The Top

If you plan to add air conditioning to beat the summer heat, remember that cooled air falls.

To take advantage of this scientific principle, the Chicago and Better Heating Cooling Council advises you to locate all cooling outlets close to the ceiling. When cooling is introduced from above, the air falls gently to the floor without causing drafts. If the outlets are near the floor, only your ankles may feel cool, the council said.

Conserve Energy And Save Money

Concern for energy conservation can reduce demand pressures for natural gas, residual fuel oil, bituminous coal and electricity in the United States, according to the federal government.

Slowing demand would also slow price increases, according to the federal government. An additional benefit would be a reduction in environmental pollution. The National Bureau of Standards, together with the Office of the Special Assistant to the President on Consumer Affairs, has prepared a brochure describing several ways for the consumer to conserve energy.

If you feel a cold draft coming from a door or window facing against the direction of the wind, this indicates that the window or door, or its framing, is leaking air, according to the report. The remedy is to install weatherstripping at movable joints and to caulk the frames of windows and doors. The report said to continue the process until a light mist of moisture develops occasionally on the windows on the downwind side.

Storm windows should cut half the heat that is lost through the windows of the house, according to the report. In addition, it should cut in half the difference between the room air and window temperatures which produce a cold draft on the floor. The report estimated that storm windows would pay for themselves in a decade, including interest at 6 percent, in areas of the country where the average winter temperature from Oct. 1 to April 30 is lower than 45 degrees F. In regions where snow lies on the ground all winter, return on the investment will occur in seven years.

If you have air conditioning, storm windows have the same benefits, because they are effective in reducing heat gain.

The equivalent of six inches of insulation is needed under most conditions, the report said. It should pay for itself in reducing winter heating bills and reducing air conditioning costs. In regions where the average temperature is 45 degrees between Oct. 1 and April 30, the insulation investment will be returned in one year. Increasing the thickness of insulation from four inches to six inches will pay for itself in eight to 12 years. In colder regions, the savings should be greater.

Environment Is Realtor Concern

Bill N. Brown, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards (NAREB), urged Realtors to become involved in the effort to clean up the environment. He spoke at the recent annual convention of the Oklahoma Association of Realtors.

Brisk Sales In Existing Homes

Half the people in the United States who purchased existing single family homes during February 1971, said $24,200 or more for them, a boost over a year ago. This was reported in a recent survey of 113 selected boards of Realtors conducted by the Department of Research of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

This median price of $24,200 represents an increase of 7.7 per cent over the same month a year ago according to Mrs. Catherine E. Martini, director of the department. Sales in the existing home market have continued brisk, with volume in February 29 per cent above the same month a year ago, she added.

On a regional basis, it cost more to purchase an existing single-family home in the Northeast portion of the United States than any other region. The median price was $26,600 in the Northeast, dropping to $25,520 in the West, $23,620 in the South and $21,480 in the North Central region of the country.

Of the total number of existing single family homes sold during February, 1971, 19.9 per cent had two bedrooms or less and 24.7 per cent had four or more bedrooms. The fact that 55.4 of the homes had three bedrooms emphasizes the continuing popularity of this size home, Mrs. Martini said.

In comparing the past four months, the survey revealed that the median price dropped in December 1970 from November's level of $23,170 to $22,840. The median price climbed to $23,870 in January, 1971 and then to the current level of $24,200.

By price category, 14.9 per cent of the homes sold in February, 1971, had a sales price of less than $15,000, while 46.6 per cent sold for prices of $25,000 or more, Mrs. Martini concluded.

Improvement of the environment is everybody's business," he said. "It is possible, and there are several approaches. First, we must determine to recycle, reuse, and recover byproducts from our refuse. The sludge from our sewage may well be the matter that gives life to our impoverished soils."

"Second, we must look at our technology in advance. Will a supersonic transport plane be a boon to society, or will it affect us adversely?"

"Third, we must develop technological changes so as to reduce the amount of emissions from our machines."

"Fourth, we may have to change the nature of our consumption and the pattern of our life. Eventually, one person driving to and from work in one automobile may have to be discouraged. It all adds up to the fact that we must reverse the present trend of degrading our environment — air, land, and water," Brown said. He noted that cleaning up the environment is going to mean added cost.

Turning to the housing market, Brown said it is good and getting better. "Starts are at a rate of 1.75 million, an impressive increase over the rate last year. Sales of existing homes started an upturn last June, and the volume of sales each month has been ahead of the corresponding month a year ago. It appears now that about 2.5 million existing properties will change ownership this year — more than twice the volume of new homes," he said.

"All were gratified when interest rates began to drop, and although they now appear to have reached a plateau, and may increase in the fall, as some have forecast, we must keep in mind that the interest rate has never been the major factor in buying property," he said. "You may pay higher rates by buying at one time instead of another but you likely will more than make it up by increases in value of the property." He concluded that this is the best time to buy a house.

More people are finding that rehabilitation can be profitable, and can have an enormous influence for good in the community, Brown said. Fix up one house, and a neighbor might be inspired to shore up that porch, replace those rotted boards, and roll on a coat of paint, Brown concluded.

Lincoln Realty Builds Offices

Construction of two new offices has been announced by Paul R. Williams, general manager of Lincoln Realty.

The office locations are at 901 E. Irving Park Road in Streamwood and at 30 Phelps Ave., Romeoville. Each building will cover approximately 3,000 square feet. Completion is slated for mid-May.

The new offices will house the two divisions of Lincoln Realty and Investment Corp. Williams heads up the real estate division and George Manakis is in charge of the insurance division. The real estate division will offer residential, commercial and industrial service.

The company now has 10 employees. Lincoln Realty will double its staff by next June, Williams said.

Williams has achieved the GRI (Graduate, Realtors Institute) designation and has taken several appraisal courses. He is a member of the Elgin Board of Realtors and the Joliet-Will County Board of Realtors. His firm is also a member of the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

The corporation was started 12 years ago. However, the company did not enter the real estate brokerage business until late in 1970.

WILLOW CREEK apartments in Palatine were recently sold by the Centex-Winston Corp. to Keeper-Nagel

Real Estate Investments, Inc. The Lake Forest-based investment firm specializes in real estate syndication.

Centex-Winston Sold Apartments

The Willow Creek Apartments in Palatine have been bought by Keeper-Nagel Real Estate Investments, Inc., for more than $2 million.

Karl F. Nagel, executive vice president for the Lake Forest firm, announced that Keeper-Nagel purchased the 100-unit apartment building from Centex-Winston Corp.

The apartments, located near the interchange of Northwest Highway and U.S. Route 53, are part of a planned unit development by Centex-Winston Corp. called Willow Creek. The 90-acre development plan includes a shopping center, 640 units of condominiums, two 10-story office buildings, a medical center, a movie theater, a Howard Johnson's motel and restaurant, a lake and 20-acre park plus the apartment building.

Rents in the apartment building range from $150 to $315 a month. Amenities include swimming pool and a clubhouse and recreation room soon to be built.

The purchase of Willow Creek Apartments marks Keeper-Nagel's sixth major acquisition during the past 12 months in the north and northwest suburban area for group investment program, said Charles R. Catalano, vice president of marketing.

Keeper-Nagel specializes in the syndication of real estate investments in the north and northwest suburban areas.

Agency Moves To Arlington

The David M. Jacobson Co., a public relations agency, will move from Chicago to Arlington Heights on May 1.

Jacobson established his agency in 1966 after service with other agencies dealing with industrial, theatrical, and non-profit organizations. He received his degree in journalism from the University of Illinois and a bachelor and master degrees from the Chicago Musical College, where he majored in composition.

The new office will be located at 1040 S. Arlington Heights Road. "As a resident of Palatine for the last seven years, I have seen the phenomenal industrial and cultural growth which is taking place in the Northwest Suburbs. It is only a natural step to establish my business where there is so much dynamic activity," said Jacobson.

A veteran of 23 years in the public relations field, Jacobson served as president of the 500-member Publicity Club of Chicago last year, and has received that organization's Pub Clubber of the Year Award.

Jacobson lives at 1223 E. Plate in Palatine. He and his wife Joanne have two sons.

A composer, Jacobson has had a number of his musical works performed. He has written songs for supper club reviews. Jacobson is now completing a major stage musical.

Fioretti Promoted

At Illinois Bell

Tony S. Fioretti, district installation superintendent at Illinois Bell Telephone,

Tony S. Fioretti

Fioretti, who lives at 715 E. Greenwood Ct., Palatine, has been an Illinois Bell employee for 18 years.

Guyette Gets New

St. Alexis Post

Eugene J. Guyette, 226 S. Webster Lane, Schaumburg, has been promoted to assistant director of material management and purchasing agent at St. Alexis Hospital, Elk Grove Village, it was announced by Brother Charles Moyer, CFA, director of material management at the hospital.

Guyette joined the hospital staff in June, 1970, in the inventory control division and has served as a buyer for the past several months. His previous experience in the field has been gained with Allied Radio Corp., W. T. Grant Co., G. C. Electronics and Montgomery Ward & Co.

A native Chicagoan Guyette studied liberal arts at the University of Pittsburgh. He has also studied symbolic programming and basic electronics in night school.

Dilley Promoted

By Prudential

George W. Dilley, 1126 E. Algonquin, Schaumburg, was recently promoted to the position of division manager in the

George W. Dilley

Prudential Insurance Co.'s Oak Brook agency, 600 Enterprise Drive. He was formerly a special agent in the agency.

Agency manager Patrick J. Gillopie, CLU, said that Dilley has represented Prudential since April, 1966. He has been associated with the Oak Brook agency since 1970.

Dilley, a 1961 graduate of Arlington High School, served with the U. S. Marine Corps from 1961 to 1966 and was assigned to duty in Cuba, Japan, Vietnam, and the Philippines.

He is a member of the DuPage Association of Life Underwriters.

Engineers Will Hear Arbitrator

B. L. Luskin, a labor-management arbitrator and past president of the National Academy of Arbitrators, will address the North Shore Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Industrial Engineers on current collective bargaining problems and the arbitration process. He is the featured speaker for a meeting on April 20, at Holiday Inn, 5300 W. Touhy, Skokie.

Luskin, of Highland Park, will discuss problems confronting management in obtaining ratification of agreements; current incentive programs under the 1968 basic steel agreements; communications breakdown in the grievance procedure; responsibilities of plant industrial engineers in the day to day relationship between companies and unions; role of plant industrial engineers in the grievance and arbitration procedures.

Newly elected officers of the AIIE are: president, Richard Engwall of Arlington Heights; vice president, Cliff Miller of Arlington Heights; secretary, Richard Christensen of Sycamore; treasurer, Robert Thompson of Wilmette; director, Gerry Loebman of Northbrook and director, Peter Cattapan of Skokie.

Weight Completes Retailing Course

Edwin F. Weight, of Schmerler Ford, Inc., 1200 Busse Road, Elk Grove Village, has completed a retail selling course conducted at Ford's Chicago Marketing Institute.

The course is one of a number offered by Ford Marketing Institutes to benefit Ford and Lincoln-Mercury customers by emphasizing after-purchase service and customer relations.

Heat An Add-On Room

Heating an add-on room can be done at a minimum of cost and bother, said the National Better Heating-Cooling Council. In many homes the existing hydronic (modern hot water) home heating boilers have been installed with enough capacity to take on an extra load such as heating a new room, finished basement or attic, said the council.

The latest installation methods recommend using finger-size flexible tubing to extend the heat from the boiler to the baseboard heating panels in the new room. With such tubing, there is no need to tear down walls or make extensive changes in the original construction. The tubing can be snaked through wall spaces or through old ducts and pipes for concealed installation.

To distribute the heat in the new room, you can install floor-level, wall-hugging baseboard units. Only ankle high, they create a curtain of warmth against the cold when installed on outside walls, especially under the windows.

Home Sales Set Record

Two sales records were set by Robert L. Nelson Real Estate during the first quarter period of 1971.

The 87 home sales during March topped the previous record of 84 established in February of 1969 and the total volume of $3,426,700 set a new one-month company record.

The sales figures represent exclusive sales by Robert L. Nelson Real Estate plus sales made in cooperation with

The March sales brought the total number of home sales for the first quarter of 1971 to 236, representing a record three-month sales volume of $9,049,445.

Jim Maloney, newly appointed executive vice president of sales announced the record sales figures at a recent meeting of the companies five office managers. Maloney said, "A general sales increase has been noted since mid January 1971 when mortgage money became more readily available to home buyers. This fact, plus an increase in executive transfers has had a definite effect on the entire Northwest Suburban Real Estate market."

Remus Attends Sales Conference

Melvin A. Remus, FIC, 156 N. Williams St., Palatine, district representative in this area for Aid Association for Lutherans was among a select group of 236 representatives who attended the 1971 President's Executive Club sales conference recently at Honolulu, Hawaii.

To qualify for AAL's President's Executive Club, district representatives must have a minimum of $1 million or more in combined interpolated volume in life and health sales.

Tips Available Plumbing System

A home's plumbing system is important for the comfort and health of a family, according to the Plumbing Heating Cooling Information Bureau.

The bureau said it is important for the homeowner to know how this system works. He should know which maintenance jobs he can handle himself, and which should be referred to a qualified plumbing contractor.

A 21-page booklet with this information is available for 25 cents and a 6 cent stamp from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, 35 E. Wacker Dr., Chicago, Ill. 60601. These are among the subjects covered in the booklet: How to keep your drains open, and what to do if one becomes clogged; what to do if your pipe springs a leak; where and how to shut off the water; how to take care of your bathroom fixtures and fittings; general care of the kitchen sink.

Visitors to Photo Expo 71 at McCormick Place, Chicago, April 17-25, will see prize-winning pictures, and also will have many picture-taking opportunities.

Karate experts will toss each other around for stop-action shots and a national beauty contest winner will bounce high off a trampoline. A multi-mirror set will permit camera fans to portray their companions from several aspects at once and in the same photograph. A motorcycle set against a moving background and with a wind machine facing it will provide a realistic, if simulated, ride. A classic antique car will allow visitors to be photographed in turn-of-century attitudes.

The biggest challenge will be to photographers, amateurs as well as professionals, to take pictures which capture the spirit of Photo Expo 71. The winner will get a free trip to Hawaii for two, with lesser prizes for those who do not win the top award.

Photo Expo also will feature exhibit of photographic equipment. The show will be open to the public until 10 p.m. each evening. It will open at 2 p.m. on the first weekend and at noon on the last weekend. Monday through Friday, the show will open at 5 p.m.

Admission charges are $3 for adults and $2 for those under 12. Discount tickets, available at camera shops, admit adults for $2 and children for $1.50.

Ego And Empathy Needed In Sales

At the recent Gallery of Homes dealers convention in Mobile, Ala., a joint announcement by Tom Dooley, executive vice president of Gallery of Homes, and Dr. Herbert Greenberg, president of Marketing Survey and Research Corporation revealed that the training facilities of Marketing Survey and Research Corp. would be available to Gallery of Homes 147 members.

Gallery of Homes is a group of real estate brokers throughout the country.

Dr. Greenberg said, "Our multiple personal inventory test reveals those two qualities necessary to all good sales persons, empathy and ego drive. But just as an individual's dynamics can vary, so do his training needs. Our program tailors the training to the individual."

Training programs will be set up in various regions of the country. The result of these programs will be that member companies will be able to select top people and then offer them personalized training.

"Gallery of Homes has long been offering the Marketing Survey and Research Corp. multiple personal inventory test to its members," said Dooley. "This test quickly and positively selects candidates for sales positions on the basis of a candidate's ego drive — the factor that makes him need to make the sale, and empathy — his ability to obtain 'feedback' from his client, and adjust his approach to suit the customer's needs."

Hough Appointed Buyer For Wards

William E. Hough of 508 Chippendale Road, Hoffman Estates, has been appointed buyer of interior paints at Montgomery Ward & Co.

Hough joined the 99-year-old retailing firm as a management trainee in Falls Church, Va. in 1964. He became a department manager in the store in 1965, import development manager in Chicago later that year, and buyer of optical instruments in 1967. He was named buyer of office furniture in 1968.

A native of Collinsville, Conn., Hough received a B.S. degree in foreign business management from Georgetown University in 1964.

Conard, DiFatta Get New Positions

Walter M. Conard Jr., of Mount Prospect, has been named manager-commerce in the sales and marketing department of the Chicago and North Western Railway Co. At the same time, Robert J. DiFatta of Palatine, was named assistant manager-commerce.

Walter M. Conard

Robert J. DiFatta

ment of the Chicago and North Western Railway Co. At the same time, Robert J. DiFatta of Palatine, was named assistant manager-commerce.

They are responsible for the preparation and presentation of data and evidence in freight rate litigation before the Interstate Commerce Commission and various state regulatory agencies and represent the company's pricing department in many of these proceedings.

Conard, who was formerly assistant manager-commerce, brings to his new position almost a quarter century of railroad sales experience, most of it with the North Western. A Philadelphia native, he attended Michigan schools, earning a degree from the Business Institute in Detroit. He came to the North Western in 1949 as a clerk in its Portland, Ore. office.

In 1952 Conard became a chief clerk, and in 1955, became a sales agent in Oakland, Calif. In 1962, he came to Chicago as assistant manager-commerce.

DiFatta, who was formerly assistant manager-rates, joined the North Western as a clerk in 1964 after graduating from Palatine High School, becoming assistant manager-rates in 1969.

Typographic Units Merger Announced

Cliff Jensen, 1101 W. Lincoln, Mount Prospect, president of Logan Square Typographers, 901 W. Monroe, and Kenneth P. Petersen, of Deerfield, president of Hayes-Lochner, Inc., 160 E. Illinois, has announced the merging of the two typographic houses. Jensen stated that Hayes-Lochner will continue to operate at their present location, as a division of Logan Square Typographers.

The merger offers their customers the expanded total typographic services of both firms. The combination creates the largest typographic organization in the City of Chicago, and one of the largest in the United States.

Askey Named To Marketing Post

Edwin V. Askey

Appointment of Edwin V. Askey to marketing manager of Fluid Power Systems has been announced by W. J. Stoloski, general manager of the Wheeling firm. Fluid Power Systems is a Division of AMBAC Industries, Garden City, N. Y.

In his new position, Askey will be responsible for the marketing of Fluid Power Systems and Michigan Fluid Power product lines. Michigan Fluid Power was recently merged with Fluid Power Systems and moved to Wheeling from its previous Detroit, Michigan, location.

For the past four years, Askey has been the west coast regional manager for Fluid Power Systems. For the 12 years prior to joining Fluid Power, he gained wide experience in the hydraulics components field as sales engineer and territorial manager, successively, for major west coast distributors of fluid power equipment.

A graduate of Stanford University, Askey holds both a bachelor's degree and a M.B.A.

Summer's coming to Three Fountains. Why don't you?

Three Fountains On-The-Lake

Ready for 125 discriminating families. And no more.

Here, at last, is what you have been waiting for. Three Fountains On-The-Lake. The finest in condominium apartment homes where you can enjoy country estate kind of living, near everything that's good about the big city.

A private lake, pool and cabana, tennis courts, pitch and putt golf—all for the personal enjoyment of your family and 124 others who are looking for a new gracious life-style.

More to enjoy. More time to enjoy it.

When you're an apartment home owner at Three Fountains, you can forget your role as a part-time painter, garbage collector, gardener, carpenter, snow shoveler and all around handy-man. You've earned the right to enjoy your leisure time. The way we look at things, working around the house should be left to people who get paid for it.

Your own apartment home.

Elegant. Spacious. Secluded. Private.

Through the stately entrance gate. Across the bridge. Down the winding roadway. You're at Three Fountains On-The-Lake condominium apartment homes.

Ready for your inspection. AND IMMEDIATE OCCUPANCY. From the time you enter the prestigious foyer with its deep plush carpeting, authentic colonial wall coverings, hanging chandelier and dramatic winding stairway, you'll know this is the home for you. And you'll find the apartment home just right for your taste. Every amenity, every luxury for the life you want to live, including convenient elevators and inside parking. And nearby, the modern shopping centers, fine restaurants, theatres, churches, transportation facilities and other big city attributes.

Putting your money in a Three Fountains condominium apartment home is like putting money in the bank.

You build equity instead of collecting rent receipts.

You build a hedge against inflation. Chicagoland condominium owners have been realizing a very sizeable increase in the value of their homes each year.

You ease the pain at income tax time. As a condominium owner, you're entitled to deduct all mortgage interest payments and all your share of property taxes, just like any home owner.

Choose from 1 bedroom, 2 bedroom and 2 bedroom with study apartments.

Featuring:

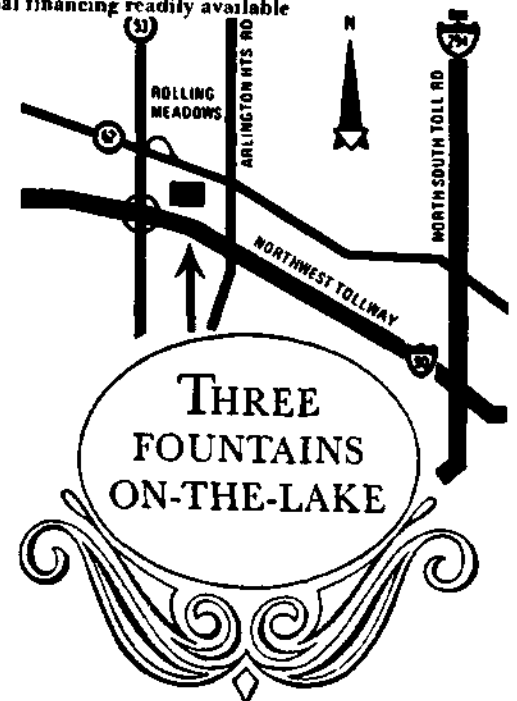

- lakeside views • private game rooms • ceramic tile baths
- elegant dressing rooms • wood-burning fireplaces • balconies
- color coordinated kitchens • full kitchen appliances
- wall-to-wall carpeting throughout • elevators • walk-in closets

• IMMEDIATE POSSESSION

30 minutes from the Loop. As the car drives. Three Fountains On-The-Lake.

Take Northwest Tollway (Interstate I-90) and get off at the Route

#53 North Exit, then go immediately East on Route #62 (¼ mile to the Three Fountains entrance). Come see. Come live. Phone: 255-2565. Models open daily 10 A.M. to 6 P.M. Exceptional financing readily available.

Kenny Gains Recognition

The Society of Real Estate Appraisers' board of governors has awarded the Senior Residential Appraiser (SRA) designation to Robert E. Kenny, a loan officer for Dovenmuehle, Inc., Chicago. He is a resident of Arlington Heights.

Kenny is a member of the society's Chicago chapter and has had more than 10 years' experience in appraising residential, commercial and industrial property. He received a B.A. degree from St. Thomas College and has completed appraisal courses sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers and the Chicago YMCA.

The SRA designation is awarded to appraisers of recognized ability and who have at least five years of experience in appraising residential property.

The appraiser must meet the rigid requirements established by the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, have knowledge of fundamentals and must pass extensive written examinations and must adhere to the society's standards of professional practice and conduct.

A total of 4,500 real estate appraisers throughout the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico have qualified for the SRA designation.

The designation carries the professional endorsement of the Society of Real Estate Appraisers, the largest independent professional association of real estate appraisers in North America.

Boydell Gets Marketing Post

Appointment of John F. Boydell as assistant marketing manager of Fluid Power Systems has been announced by

John F. Boydell

W. J. Stoloski, general manager of the Wheeling firm. Fluid Power Systems is a Division of AMBAC Industries, Garden City, N.Y.

Boydell will be responsible for assisting with marketing plans for both Fluid Power Systems and Michigan Fluid Power, another AMBAC Division, which was recently merged with Fluid Power Systems and moved to Wheeling from its previous suburban Detroit, Mich., location.

For the past year Boydell has been manager of distributor sales for Fluid Power Systems and Michigan Fluid Power. For the previous seven years he was associated with Michigan Fluid Power in sales and marketing positions.

Petrone Promoted In Army Reserve

Louis G. Petrone, 118 Audrey Lane, Mount Prospect, has been promoted to lieutenant colonel in the U. S. Army Reserve, it was announced recently by Maj. Gen. William P. Levine, commander of the 85th Division.

Hard Water Can Cost You Money

Hard water means hard work and it also costs you money, the Illinois Association of Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Contractors said.

Here are some of the reasons the group listed:

You have to use more soap to do your dishes, laundry or general cleaning. You need more hot water to get rid of loosened dirt. Even then, your dishes are likely to have a film and your clothes and floors an off-color, dull look. Soap, water and the cost of heating the water all drain dollars from the budget.

Clothes, bedroom linens, towels and other things that have to be laundered repeatedly don't last as long when the water is hard.

Hard water leaves a scaly deposit in pipe and water-using equipment and shortens their useful life.

The only way to eliminate hardness in water once and for all, the Illinois Association said, is to remove it with an automatic softener before the water enters the piping system.

In the modern unit, the water flows through a tank where a chemical removes the hardening minerals. As the chemical becomes saturated, it is automatically regenerated. For details on the type of problem you may have with water in your area and the kind of equipment you need to correct it, consult a qualified plumbing contractor.

American Airlines Fetes Stewardess

American Airlines stewardess Marlene Kunz of Schaumburg, was presented with a Gruen wristwatch for her outstanding passenger service. The gift was awarded her by the airline based on the quality and quantity of passenger comments written to the company on her behalf.

The awarding of four wristwatches each week to employees whose performance has been outstanding is the basis of American's "Customer Comes First" program.

Miss Kunz, who joined American Airlines in July, 1966, was complimented by passengers for her ability to recognize and remember passengers names.

Born in Niles, she attended Northern Illinois University where she received a B.S. in Education. On her days off, she is a substitute teacher.

She and her sister, Marguerite, who is also an American Airlines stewardess, also help their father in his hardware store.

In addition to her avocations of teaching and selling, she enjoys travel which she has shared with the rest of her family.

She'll Take Time For Leisure Now

She and her husband, George, live at 202 N. Dryden in Arlington Heights. Mr. Elsberg is also a telephone employe, an engineer in Arlington Heights.

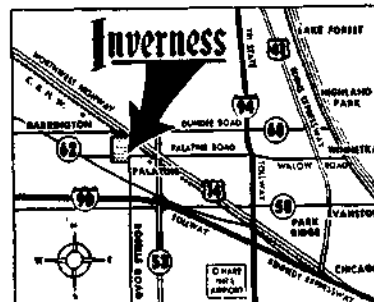

Mrs. Elsberg is a member of Faith Lutheran Church and Northwestern Women's Bowling League. She has always been active in the Telephone Pioneers of America, a civic and social organization of telephone employes with 21 or more years of service. She is currently secretary of its Northwest Council, where her husband recently held the office of president.

1-acre Inverness homesites from $12,000—20% down, 7% annual percentage rate*

Here is an unusual opportunity to purchase a choice homesite in the northwest suburban's most prestigious, picturesque village for as little as $2400 down. The homesites are a minimum of one acre with boundaries determined by the natural contour of the land to provide a perfect setting for your future home. The protective restrictions which have made this unique community the model of good taste assure that, whatever the future may bring to Inverness, the basic residential character, excellence of architecture and way of living in the village will never change. Architectural approval is required and no two home designs may be alike. Sites vary from $12,000 to $30,000.

Drive out to Inverness today. Our picturesque 4-silo office is open daily on Baldwin Road just west of Northwest Highway (Route 14) between Palatine and Barrington. Also convenient to Northwest Tollway (north from Route 53 exit). Or Call for an appointment, if you prefer.

*Example: $12,000 purchase—$2400 down, 120 monthly payments of $111.48

The No Problem Company

Created to make sure that building your dream home isn't a nightmare.

If you've talked to friends who have built their own homes, they've probably tried to talk you out of building yours. There are so many things that can go wrong. The wrong land. The wrong architectural plan for the land. The wrong builder for the architectural plan. The wrong financing for the building. And, after the home is completed, there are still many little things that can go wrong. Faced with all these problems, many people reluctantly settle for a subdivision "package"—a characterless adaptation of a model home built by a subdivider on the subdivider's land.

That's why we created The No Problem Company—Leigh A. Wilson & Associates. We build custom homes. But we are not just builders. We prevent problems, not make them. We literally start from the ground up to provide you with every service needed to assure that building your dream home has a happy ending.

The Land Problem. No problem. We know where the best land lies in every quality suburban community. Since we own no land, we can give you unprejudiced assistance in selecting the right land for your needs at the right price.

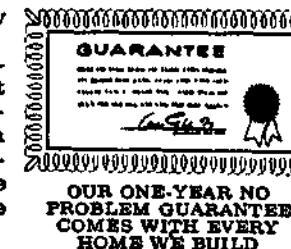

The Architectural Problem. No problem. We have available many of the most prominent architectural minds in the midwest, and can create an individual design which will reflect your precise taste within the confines of your budget.

The Construction Problem. No problem. Spencer Rieke, long considered to be the finest builder of quality homes in the northwest suburban area is in charge of all construction, to assure you a residence of lasting value.

The Financing Problem. No problem. Our extensive experience in quality land and construction markets has provided us with an unique knowledge of the best sources of funds to meet your needs at the lowest possible interest rates.

The Servicing Problem. No problem. Our responsibilities don't end when we finish your home. We give you a written 1-Year No Problem Guarantee of workmanship and materials. You have peace of mind. And you never have to give us a piece of yours.

If you're thinking about building a home, don't you think that you should look into us before you leap into problems? Send for a free brochure, or call. No problem.

WALLOPING WALLY. Harper College's Wally Wiener strokes a mean stick. The Hawks' left fielder belted two grand slam homers this week in leading Harper to a nearly unbelievable 29-0 Skyway Conference victory over hapless Elgin College. Wiener went 4-for-5 at the plate and knocked in eight runs.

GALLONS OF SWEAT, bottles of liniment, yards of tape and assorted aches, bumps, bruises and breaks litter the path to becoming an outstanding football player.

Jeff Selleck, Arlington High School's gifted gridder, will bare this out and add still another hurdle — following in the footsteps of a talented older brother.

"I almost quit, really," said Jeff while recalling his first high school season. His older brother, Dan, had made the varsity as a sophomore and Jeff thought his coaches were comparing him to Dan.

"I hadn't developed or anything and I had a lot of baby fat," he remembered. "And so I got a little depressed. Then I started to grow a little and change . . ."

The rest is history. Jeff — a still growing 6-0½, 220 pounder — stuck it out, matured and went on to be one of the greatest players the school's football program has produced.

Anyone who followed Arlington through its brilliant football season knows what a fabulous year Jeff enjoyed. After earning berths on all-conference, all-area and all-state teams, Jeff was named to Scholastic Coach Magazine's All-America team, an honor that only 100 prep men in the United States can make.

That guttiness he had as a freshman really paid off following his senior season as letters poured in from every part of the country with scholarship offers. When a prep hears from the likes of a Notre Dame or a Southern California, choosing which school is best suited for him becomes, possibly, the toughest decision of his young life.

Jeff visited about a half dozen campuses before making his choice. He described a typical weekend:

* Fly in on Friday, coach takes him to his room, go out to dinner and take a tour of the town.

* Eat breakfast with a coach on Saturday go to the football offices, tour the campus, eat lunch, look at freshman films at the offices, talk with the head coach, have dinner and go out on the town.

* Eat lunch with the coach on Sunday before returning home.

Of the six visits, Jeff liked the University of Minnesota the best. There were several reasons — the possibilities of starting as a sophomore, the business school, the campus atmosphere and the post-graduate business possibilities. However, one other thing stood out in his mind, as he explains.

* At most of the other schools you slept in a motel away from everything. I slept in one of the dormitories (at Minnesota) I could meet a lot of people and could see what it was really like.

* At Wisconsin or Tennessee they throw you in a big, plush motel and you're not even on campus. You really can't get at it or talk to anyone except the football feel he has an excellent opportunity to start as a sophomore either at offensive center or defensive linebacker. We'll take a Walther-coached boy any time."

Gongola had a great deal of respect for Bob Walther, Jeff's head varsity coach. Walther and his varsity assistants, especially line coach Bob Henderson, received plenty of praise from their newest all-stater, too.

Jeff, who like many a lineman had the dream of becoming a quarterback, has one athletic ambition in college — to start as a sophomore. Both Chandler and Tollefson accomplished that.

Asked if he thought he might want to play in the pros, Jeff answered, "Only if they draft me."

This former team leader passed along this advice to any athletes who have a chance for college scholarships:

"Don't be fooled by the treatment they give you. If they want you, it will be red carpet. If you go to one school and it is really nice, don't think 'Well, I won't go to another one.' The more you visit the better it is."

If Minnesota is playing on television two years from now, look for Jeff Selleck. It's a good bet he'll be in there.

29 Straight For Viator Linksmen

The St. Viator golf team kept their streak of 29 straight victories intact by whipping West Leyden, 164-188, at the River Forest golf course.

The Lions, in their second outing of the season, equalled the 165 they posted in an opening victory against conference rival Notre Dame last week.

Terry MacDonald and Dick Evans tied as the meet's medalists by firing identical 39's over the par 36 River Forest layout. Larry Wittack added a 42 and Frank Fenton a 44 to make Leyden easy prey for their 29th triumph.

The frosh-soph outfit also nailed down an impressive win by drubbing their Leyden counterparts, 169-211.

Viator should get a stiffer test when they meet St. Patrick, Barrington, St. Francis DeSales and Arlington in their next four outings.

Conant, Fremd Win; Only Outfits Still Unbeaten In Mid-Suburban

Conant took advantage of seven Wheeling errors for six unearned runs and a wild 8-4 victory on the Wildcats' field Wednesday.

The Cougars wiped out an early deficit with five runs on just one hit in the fourth inning, then coasted to the win which made them 2-0 in the Mid-Suburban League. Wheeling is 1-1.

Bill Arkus got the pitching win on a yield of nine hits, three earned runs, four walks and five strikeouts. He got relief help from John Macdonald in the last inning.

Wheeling's first two batters of the game scored for a 2-4 lead. Rob Richter walked and stole second and Jim Kass was safe on an error that allowed Richter to score. Kass tallied on Tony Fricano's double.

Four Wheeling miscues in the fourth gave Conant four unearned runs and helped them to a 5-2 lead. Rich Gawron's leadoff single was the only hit of the frame. Two walks also figured in the outburst that saw eight Cougars bat.

Conant added another run in the sixth on singles by Dave Valerio and Bob Bain and a wild pitch. The Cougars' lead grew to 8-2 in the seventh as they scored two more runs on no hits, two walks and two errors.

Wheeling scored twice in the seventh after Arkus walked Fricano and Newman to lead off. Macdonald then took over and gave up singles to Fred Benicuccio and John Neiwemer for two more runs — one charged to Arkus.

Fremd Triumphs

A two-out uprising in the fifth and a brief appearance by ace twirler Mark Wicklund at the end of the game allowed Fremd to hold off Hersey for their second conference win in as many starts yesterday, 6-3.

Wicklund, who went the distance Monday, came on with one out in the seventh to save the verdict for Viking starter Rick Peekel Wednesday. Peekel ran into jams in each of the final two stanzas after breezing along on a two-hit shutout the first five frames.

The visitors also owned a four-run advantage going into the sixth after Dave Hauswirth had poled a home run to right to lead off the game and Peekel had doubled and Dave Wickersham had singled him home in the third. In the top of the fifth the decisive runs scored with two away when Wickersham was nicked by a pitch off Huskie starter Mark Leonhard. Doug Pettit walked, Gene Bell singled home Wickersham and Pettit tallied on an erring pickoff play.

The lead was cut in half in the sixth.

Ken Morales reached on a miscue and Ken Kennepp rapped a single to right and two outs later Bill Ludwig lined a one base hit through the box bringing in both runners.

Fremd got back both those runs in their half of the seventh, Bill Cheney singling home one and the other trotting in on another error. But the Huskies rallied in the bottom of the seventh and had one tally across, runners on second and third and the tying run at the plate with only one out when Wicklund came in to put out the fire.

Prospect Wins

Prospect jumped on Elk Grove for five runs over the first two innings and that proved to be more than enough for Knight righthander Casey Rush who hurled a three-hitter and struck out nine Grenadiers en route to a 5-3 conference victory.

Elk Grove dug its own grave with three errors in the opening frame and couldn't climb back out, even after Grove starter Jeff Stewart settled down and hurled hitless ball for three innings.

Prospect's Stu White and Dave Lundstedt carried home gift runs in the first when the Grenadiers were having throwing troubles.

A trio of Knights also crossed in the second on back-to-back walks to Dennis Tite and Brett Huske and singles by Dave Harbach, White and Mike Tolzien, his second of the game.

Elk Grove came back with a pair in the fourth after two were down when Bob Chen walked, Nick Adams singled, Steve Scholten walked and Scott Clinton punched a two-run base hit. The Grenadiers' final score came on an error, a balk and Gary Proehl's hit to center.

Palatine Rules

Palatine raced out to an early 6-0 lead and then had to hold on right down to the final pitch before winning 7-5 at Arlington yesterday.

The Cardinals, 0-2 in the Mid-Suburban League, had the tying runs in scoring position with two outs and the count full on Chuck Fill. Then Jim Sander, Palatine's relief pitcher, fired a called third strike to end the game.

Palatine, now 1-1 in the league, jumped out to an early lead on a two-run single by John Berley and a single by Jon Fee-kin. The Pirates scored three more in the third on another single by Feekin, a balk and a bloop hit by Jim Bambrick.

Arlington rallied in the third for two on a walk to Jim Locascio and the other on a fielder's choice.

After Palatine scored one in the fourth on a walk to Andy Knotek, Arlington came back with one on a fielder's choice. The latter got two more in the sixth on another fielder's choice and an error.

Mike Hughes was the winner for Palatine and Bill Moore took the loss.

Falcons Shocked

Forest View, heading into the seventh inning, rallied for four runs to take the lead only to have host Glenbard North also score four to win a squeaker, 9-8, yesterday.

The Falcons, 0-2 in the MSL, tied the game in the last inning on a Bob Kasper single. Bob Sobieski, Forest View's starting pitcher, kept the big surge going after two outs by being hit by a pitch which forced him out of the game. Three more scored on an error and singles by Mike Pryor and Ed Bansfield.

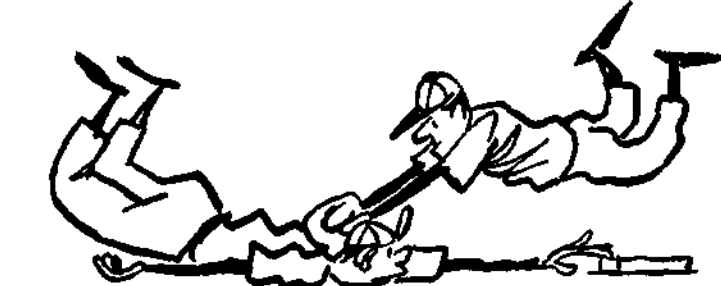

However, the Panthers, 1-1 in the league, came back with the help of a single, wild pitch and double off Dennis O'Keefe and an error which allowed the winning run to score.

Forest View tied the game for the first time in the third, 1-1, on a double by Bansfield and took the lead in the fourth on a two-run single by Sobieski.

After Glenbard hammered home three in the fifth, the Falcons pulled to within one when Kent Koentopp singled and scored on an error.

St. Viator Posts Two Wins; One In Loop Play

After spotting visiting Marian Central leads of 2-0 and 4-3, St. Viator exploded to claim a 9-5 conference triumph yesterday, their second of the season against one defeat.

Mike Pettenuzzo pitched the middle three innings for the Lions and picked up the victory when his teammates rallied in the bottom of the fourth to assume a lead they never relinquished.

Trailing 2-0 in the second, the Lions batted around after two outs with an error on Ken Martin's fly to left and an infield hit by Joe Bombicino, sparking the rally.

Viator matched Marian's duce in the fourth as Martin and Bombicino carried home tallies off three Central misplays. The victors added three more in the fifth on a double by Bob Quinnett and singles by Martin and Mike Walsh and iced the cake in the sixth when Pettenuzzo singled and scored on Mark Rossi's sacrifice fly to right.

Martin started on the mound for Viator but was relieved by Pettenuzzo in the second. Craig Zander came on in the fifth and hurled one-run ball over the final three frames for a save.

A sacrifice fly off the bat of Mike Garbus in the seventh inning gave St. Viator a 10-9 victory over Schaumburg. Schaumburg held an 8-7 lead heading into the sixth, but St. Viator rallied to move in front by one. Schaumburg then tied the score again. See complete details in Friday's Herald.

Wheeling Golfers Shade Prospect

by KEITH REINHARD

Yes, Virginia, there is red-hot Wheeling golf team this year.

The Wildcat linksmen opened their 1971 campaign by copying runnerup honors at a 27-team invitational meet at Champaign last weekend but area golf fans might have shrugged it off as either a fluke or a misprint in the paper.

Wheeling has always been a middle of the roadier in golf . . . never a contender. Last spring the 'Cats finished sixth in the overall standings after posting a 5-4 conference dual meet campaign.

Jack Berry, dean of Mid-Suburban League golf mentors, must have something brewing besides coffee over at Wheeling this year however. His gang inaugurated loop play Tuesday by spanking last year's loop meet champs — perennially tough Prospect — by a 152-157 tally.

The Knights were overall runnersup in the league last spring and their frosh-soph were circuit champs. This has to put the 'Cats in the running for loop laurels in 1971.

Berry's group is basically a young one with only one senior among three returning lettermen and only two seniors on the squad all told. Terry Nied is the veteran letter holder, coming off a seventh place finish in last spring's conference meet.

Nied and junior vets Jack Kennedy and Bob Winter figure to head up Wheeling's title aspirations. They all posted sub-40 rounds against Prospect at the Wildcats' home Chevy Chase layout Tuesday and Winters missed medalist honors by just one stroke when he shot a 79 on the orange course at Champaign last Saturday.

The other 'Cat senior this year is Jim Reupert. He and junior Chris Krolach are the only other returnees with any varsity experience.

To augment this group Berry has elevated sophomore Dave Mehler, who lettered with the frosh-soph in 1970. Also up from the soph club are juniors Mike Nils and Rick Schultz. Another junior out for the first time, Bob Moran, rounds out the team.

In the Prospect meet Art Hagg paced the losers with a 37 while Curt Manning contributed a 39. Tom Newman a 40 and John Von Berg a 41. The fifth man in for the visitors was Scott Anderson at 44.

Behind Winters (36), Kennedy (38) and Nied (39) for Wheeling were Krolach at 40 and Mehler at 45.

Prospect gained some retribution by crushing the hosts 175-201 in the frosh-soph affair. Medalist honors went to Knights Rick Meyerhoff and Bob Horwath with 43 apiece.

Fremd Runs Past Knight Trackmen

Hurdler Jon Hodge and weights man Tim Tuerk each copped two first places to lead Fremd to a 79-48 whipping of Prospect in a Mid-Suburban League track dual Tuesday at Fremd.

The Vikings collected nine blue ribbons in all to six for the Knights.

Hodge took both the 120-yard high hurdles in a time of 15.9 and the 180 lows in 22.0. Tuerk was triumphant in the shot put with a throw of 48 feet, seven inches and in the discus with a 120-5½ toss.

Other firsts for Fremd were Dan Pittenger with 9:49.9 in the two-mile run, Bill Jarocki with 1:58.9 in the 880-yard run, Dan O'Brien with 19-1¼ in the long jump, Brock McNeerney with 12-0 in the pole vault, and the mile relay team with 3:29.0.

Prospect's first places came from Scott Szala with 10.5 in the 100-yard dash, George Busse with 52.2 in the 440-yard dash, Ron Hinkel with 4:31.0 in the mile run, Paul Hacker with 23.5 in the 220-yard dash, Terry Rohan with 6-2 in the high jump and the 880-yard relay team with 1:34.1.

The frosh-soph meet went to Fremd by a 87-39 score.

Both teams have Mid-Suburban meets again today (Thursday) when Fremd is at Elk Grove and Prospect goes to Forest View.

59ers Plan Meeting

The Hoffman 59ers Golf League will hold a general meeting on Tuesday, April 20 at Helen Love's home beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Mrs. Love's home is located at 191 Hillcrest Blvd., Hoffman Estates.

Ladies are reminded that if they cannot attend, they should call Ginny Dilger at 885-1489.

Tasty Wagers

Mayor Kevin White of Boston and Mayor Jean Drapeau have made a wager on the outcome of the current Stanley Cup playoff series between the Boston Bruins and Montreal Canadiens.

White has wagered a jar of Boston baked beans and three lobsters against Drapeau's gallon of Quebec maple syrup and a pound of Oka cheese.

Since the Bruins hold a 3-2 edge in the best of seven series, it is rumored that White can almost taste the maple syrup and cheese right now.

MONEY Adds $8

The 19th annual Tournament of Champions, to be played April 22-25 at La Costa Country Club, will be offering more loot than ever before — $165,000.

The money will be coming from MONY, the Mutual of New York insurance company, a new tourney sponsor. First prize will be $33,000 in the all-winners tournament which has been given a boost of $15,000 in overall prize money.

All the big names will be there except Billy Casper. He'll be busy entertaining the king of Morocco, a golf pal of Billy's, who will be in the United States on business.

Lewis Another Lew?

Another center named Lewis will be roaming under the baskets of the National Basketball Association next fall.

His full name is Dana Lewis, a 6-10, 210-pounder who compares his style of play to that of Lewis Alcindor, stand-out with the Milwaukee Bucks.

Lewis signed with the Philadelphia 76ers, a club which has "been hurting at center since the departure of Wilt Chamberlain," said 76er President Irv Kosloff. He termed Lewis "a good center and a good talent."

Hersey Golfers Debut With Win

by KEITH REINHARD

Winter is over but it doesn't look like Hersey wants to stop throwing their hat in the ring.

The Huskie golf team for one appears ready for a title chase.

After a winter campaign that saw them snare two Mid-Suburban League crowns and barely miss a third, Hersey's golf team moved quickly to maintain the school's circuit prowess by knocking off Glenbard North in opening round action Tuesday 168-176.

The opponent may not have been impressive but the winning score was.

The match was conducted at the Panthers' home Indian Lakes layout. The last time coach Ken Carter's group visited this course was for the conference meet last spring. A pair of 168's by the Huskies at that time would have equaled the winning tally put together by Prospect — 328.

"This is the best team Hersey has had yet," Carter observed of his current group, noting that a combination of balance and depth has made for a fine overall crew. "They're very young but very consistent," he added.

Mark Boyett, who paced Tuesday's triumph with a 40, is the only senior on the squad. He, Dean Taggart and Mike Zakula are all returning lettermen and they've been bolstered by some fine underclassmen up from last year's league runnerup frosh-soph unit.

Heading up the newcomers is Kurt Miller. He was medalist in the sophomore conference meet in 1970. Mike Henry placed fourth in that same gathering and Ray Peterson was also among the top 20 even though only a freshman at the time.

"Peterson is a fine sophomore prospect this year," Carter observed. "I brought him down to tournament at Champaign last weekend just for the experience and he turned in the team's best score. Now he's come through with a 41 for the varsity against Glenbard and I guess we'll have to make him a permanent fixture with them."

Elevating Peterson to varsity status might have hurt another frosh-soph team. Evidently Hersey's depth is spread all the way down though. While Ray was turning in his 41 for the upper level unit, John Hack and Al Glaser were carding similar scores for the Huskie pups Tuesday, and they went on to thump GBN 168-226.

A pair of 168s at Indian Lakes last spring would have easily topped the winning 350 composite posted by the under-level Knights then.

Glaser also teamed with mate Tom Schnell to gain medalist 43s in a 176-210 frosh-soph win over Stevenson last week. In the varsity battle with Glenbard, Taggart backed up Boyett and Peterson with a 43 and Mike Henry and Kurt Miller turned in 44s.

The Huskies won't have to wait long to test the best this year. After a meet with Niles East and the Lake Park invite this weekend, they'll tangle with the defending champs from Arlington next Tuesday.

Cards' Golfers Eye Title Repeat

by PAUL LOGAN

The Arlington golf team and its coach, Tom Walthouse, thoroughly enjoyed themselves last May when they became the first Mid-Suburban League to ever completely dethrone Prospect, the perennial winner.

However, this season the Cardinals will experience what those championship Prospect teams went through year after year — being the team to beat in the MSL. It's a challenge for Walthouse's team and he hopes that it can measure up to it.

"Naturally I'm hoping the team can be better than last year," says Walthouse. "But whether we're good enough for the other teams is something I just don't know right now."

"I think it will be a tight race. Prospect is always there. I'm also expecting Forest View to be tough and maybe Hersey."

Walthouse will have one of the top players in the Herald area in Chris Marzalek.

"He's been an outstanding golfer since his freshman year," says Walthouse of his junior. "He was low man last year with a 39 average for 12 meets."

The Arlington coach has two other lettermen back — senior Jack Van Veen and junior Gordie Kaser. This veteran threesome is expected to lead the rest of the team.

Presently in the top running for positions on the seven-man starting team along with the returnees are seniors Mike Rossi and Todd Rasmussen, junior Jake Maas and sophomores Bill Sluka and Jeff Palmer.

Also out for the team are seniors Bill Wolod, Rich McKay, John Gibbel and Pete Luedeking and junior Dan Hahn.

Pirate Trackmen Head Triangular

Palatine's track team continued to roll on in impressive fashion Tuesday, easily taking a triangular meet against St. Viator and Glenbard North. The Pirates of coach Joe Johnson totaled 82 points, St. Viator 40 and Glenbard 36.

Palatine spread its first places among eight events and also dominated the seconds with nine St. Viator had the only double winner, sprinter Tim Gillespie, who took the 100-yard dash in 10.0 and the 220 in 22.4.

The Lions had just two other blue ribbons — by Ed Klingberg with a fine throw of 152 feet, eight inches in the discus and Tom McNamara with a long jump of 19-5 1/2.

Palatine's winners were Brian Barnett with 10:08.0 in the two-mile run, Fred Miller with 2:03.2 in the 880-yard run, Charley Phillips with 53.8, Jan Fitzgerald with 21.5 in the 180-yard low hurdles, Phil Neidinger with 5-8 in the high jump, Scott Williams with 4:46.4 in the mile run, and the 880-yard relay team of Barry Schultz, J. Dubiago, Paul Strealer and Larry Mennes with 1:36.4.

Palatine was edged in the frosh-soph meet as Glenbard North had 59 1/2, Palatine 57 1/2 and St. Viator 42.

The Pirates will be the guests of Hersey in another Mid-Suburban League meet Thursday on Saturday, St. Viator will participate in the Niles North Invitational at noon and Palatine will be in the Lake Shore Invitational at Arlington beginning at 10 a.m.

Elk Grove Thinclads Top Conant

While the blue ribbons were almost evenly distributed between Elk Grove and Conant, the Grenadiers stocked the second and third place chutes often enough to post a 75-52 conference dual track victory.

The Cougars netted seven first place finishes behind the double gold medal performances by George Swegies in the 100 and 220-yard dashes and Dan Wendoll in the 120-yard high and 180-yard low hurdles.

Conant's Dave Guarno added a first in the 880-yard run while teammates Russ Windholz and Bill Anderson dominated the shot put and pole vault events, respectively.

The victors got winning performances from Damian Archbold in the two-mile, Jeff Jarocki in the 440, Tom Ziffra in the mile, Warren Jacobson in the high jump, Jeff Schroeder in the long jump, Jim Leopardo in the discus and both ends of the relay races enroute to their opening conference triumph.

The Elk Grove frosh-soph team also won 72-55.

Cards' Trackmen Romp To Win Over Falcons

Arlington flexed its muscles before visiting Forest View in a track meet Tuesday afternoon.

The Cardinals, led by Mike Burke — a double winner weight man, nearly tripled the Falcons' point total in winning a 90-37 Mid-Suburban League dual.

Burke accounted for two of Arlington's dozen first places by winning the shot put (49 1/2) and the discus (115-8). His effort in the latter helped Bruce Samore's team to one of four sweeps.

Leading the winners in the three other sweeps were Dennis Foreman in the 100-yard dash (10.95), Dave Mills in the long jump (18-11 1/2) and Mike D'Angelo in the 220-yard dash (21.5).

Notching the other Card firsts were Scott Teuber in the two-mile run (10:27.6), Tom Jarm in the 880-yard run (2:00.3), Mike York in the 440-yard dash (53.6), Mike Graham in the 180-yard low hurdles (21.4), Greg Morand in the pole vault (12-0), the 880-yard relay team in 1:36.9 and the mile relay team in 3:56.8.

Coach Bill Mohrmann's Falcons took firsts on the efforts of Dean Ballotti in the high hurdles (16.0), Rich Leach in the high jump (5-8) and Bill Bates in the mile run (4:43.8).

However, the Falcon frosh-soph team — paced by triple winner Rick Murro — won a narrow decision over Arlington, 69-58. Murro took first in the 100-yard dash, the 220 and the long jump

Peach Crowned Spice Cake

Spice Cake:

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter, softened
- 1 1/4 cups cake flour
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
- 1/4 teaspoon ground cloves
- 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1/4 cup buttermilk
- 2 eggs

Peach Sauce:

- 1 can (1 lb., 14 oz.) sliced cling peaches
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
- 1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
- Dash of cloves
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1 cup whipping cream
- 2 tablespoons confectioners sugar

To prepare Spice Cake: In a large mixing bowl heat butter until creamy. Sift together flour, sugar, baking powder, baking soda, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; add to mixing bowl along with brown sugar and buttermilk. At low speed of mixer, beat until dry ingredients are moistened; then beat at medium speed for 2 minutes. Add eggs and beat 2 additional minutes. Turn into buttered 8-inch square pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 30-35 minutes. Allow to stand 5 minutes; turn onto wire rack to cool. Meanwhile, prepare Peach Sauce: Drain peaches reserving syrup; add sufficient water, if necessary, to make 1 1/2 cups. In a 1-quart saucepan combine sugar, cornstarch, cinnamon, nutmeg and cloves; gradually add reserved syrup. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until thickened. Cook 2 additional minutes. Add butter and stir until butter is melted; stir in lemon juice. To serve: Split cake in two layers. Whip cream; add confectioners sugar. Spread on bottom cake half. Set aside half of the peach slices; layer remaining slices on whipped cream. Cover with top half of cake. Arrange reserved peach slices on top of cake; drizzle sauce over top to glaze peaches. Cut into squares and serve with remaining sauce. Makes 9-12 servings.

Cranberry Upside-Down Cake

- 1/4 cup (1/2 stick) butter
- 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
- 1 1/2 cups cranberries, halved
- 1/4 cup chopped walnuts
- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
- 1/4 cup sugar
- 1 egg
- 1 1/4 cups regular all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 cup milk

In oven-proof 10-inch skillet melt 1/4 cup butter; sprinkle brown sugar evenly over bottom. Add cranberries and nuts; set aside. In a small mixing bowl cream 1/2 cup butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add egg and beat thoroughly. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk, beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Spread evenly over cranberries. Bake in a preheated 350 degree oven 35-40 minutes. Invert immediately onto serving plate. Serve warm topped with Rum Hard Sauce or sweetened whipped cream. Makes 10-12 servings.

Rum Hard Sauce

- 1/2 cup (1 stick) butter
- 1 1/4 cups confectioners sugar
- 1 tablespoon hot water
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 1 teaspoon rum extract
- Dash of salt

In a small mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in water, vanilla and rum extracts and salt. Chill.

Yield: Approximately 1 1/2 cups.

Marbled Bundt Cake

- 1 cup (2 sticks) butter
- 1 1/2 cups sugar
- 4 egg yolks
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 3 cups sifted cake flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup milk
- 4 egg whites
- 1 square (1 oz.) unsweetened chocolate, melted and cooled

In a large mixing bowl cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks one at a time beating thoroughly after each addition. Blend in vanilla. Sift together flour, baking powder and salt; add to creamed mixture alternately with milk beginning and ending with dry ingredients. Beat egg whites until soft peaks form; fold into batter. Divide batter in half; fold chocolate into one-half. Alternate light and dark batters by spoonful in a buttered 10x3 1/4-inch bundt pan; run wide knife through batter. Bake in a preheated 325-degree oven 45-60 minutes. Allow to stand 10 minutes on wire rack. Remove to wire rack to cool completely.

Butter Cakes to remember

When people yearn for "a piece of real cake," they're talking about home-baked. And when they begin to reminisce about mouth-melting cakes they've eaten, chances are they mean butter cakes. Nothing else produces quite the same memory-making flavor.

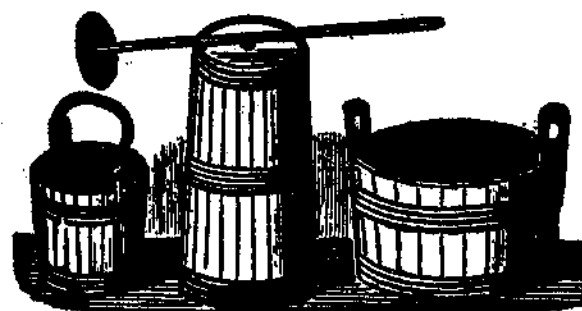

Bake up a memory yourself soon — a real butter cake. Make it in a bundt pan and marble it with a combination of light and dark batter. Or choose a spice cake, filled for luscious whipped cream and topped with peach slices, glazed for glamour. Or try a new kind of Upside-Down Cake — made with cranberries. Any one of them is a special compliment to your guests, a gala touch for your gathering. And think of the pride and pleasure you'll feel when you turn out one of these cakes.

Peach Crowned Spice Cake is a real party cake with its glorious looks and taste. But — surprise! — the recipe uses the easy one-bowl mixing method. With a butter cake you can mix and bake the cake a day ahead, then fill and frost before serving. Only butter keeps a cake moist, tender and flavorful the second and third day, just as on the first day of baking.

If your knowledge of how to use cranberries stops at cranberry sauce, it's high time you discovered flavorful Cranberry Upside-Down Cake which magically bakes on its own "frosting" — so attractive and colorful. Serve the still-warm cake with the pleasing contrast of cool, sweetened whipped cream — or with rich Rum Hard Sauce.

A real beauty of a cake, elegant in its simplicity, is Marbled Bundt Cake. Its texture is similar to that of pound cake and, like a pound cake, its flavor depends on butter. The bundt pan makes a cake so handsome it can stand alone — but you can add a simple confectioners sugar glaze, if you like.

Bake one of these recipes — and next time people recall a wonderful cake they've tasted, it may be yours they're talking about!

Chicken Calcutta

Sauce Makes Chicken Dish

Tomato sauce special — the newest tomato sauce variety at your supermarket — and chicken show up in an interesting and glamorous way in superb Chicken Calcutta. It's one of those great concoctions that looks inviting but tastes even better. Chicken halves are marinated in a wine and oil mixture before grilling. Broil the poultry indoors now, but as the weather turns nice, grill outdoors. The good little sauce to go over the chicken is of the chutney variety — made that way with tomato sauce special, canned peaches and peach syrup, raisins, onion, vinegar and an array of seasonings. Tomato sauce special is convenient, colorful, compatible and as easy to use as opening the can.

For dinner, show off the chicken halves atop saffron rice and pass traditional Indian condiments of flaked coconut, chopped salted peanuts and crumbled cooked bacon. An enticing family meal and a gracious offering for guests too.

Did you know that there are now seven kinds of tomato sauces available? Besides regular tomato sauce, Hunt's markets tomato sauce with cheese, tomato sauce with mushrooms, tomato sauce with onions, tomato sauce with bits and the two newest — tomato herb sauce and tomato sauce special. Keep a wide variety handy on your shelf to suit all your cooking needs.

CHICKEN CALCUTTA

3 (1 1/2 to 2-pound) broiler-fryers
1/2 cup pure vegetable oil
1/4 cup white wine or wine vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 (8 1/2-ounce) can sliced peaches
1 (15-ounce) can tomato sauce special
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup seedless raisins
1/4 teaspoon mustard seed
1/4 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon ginger
1/4 cup brown sugar, packed
2 tablespoons cider vinegar

Halve chickens, removing back bone and neck; place in shallow glass dish. Pour mixture of Wesson oil, wine and salt over chicken. Let stand 1/2 hour, turning occasionally. Place chicken skin side down on rack 5 inches from source of heat. Broil or grill 50 to 60 minutes, turning and basting often with oil mixture. Meanwhile chop peaches and combine with peach syrup and remaining ingredients in saucepan. Simmer 20 minutes, stirring occasionally. Serve sauce over chicken. Makes 6 servings.

NOTE: Serve with saffron rice and pass condiments of flaked coconut, chopped salted peanuts and crumbled cooked bacon if desired.

A Good Meat Buy

This is the story of the American homemaker and her quest for a good meat buy. It centers around her family, the meat budget, the butcher and lamb.

Right now many meat markets are offering consumers a three-meals-in-one lamb combination. Starting with a full leg of lamb weighing about 9 pounds, the butcher will cut three sirloin lamb chops . . . each 1 to 1 1/2 inches thick. You can then ask the butcher to cut off enough from the shank to provide meat for shish kebabs or a small stew. The result is three meals in one . . . chops to broil, a roast for the family with some left for sandwiches, and shank meat for a small stew or for soup.

The cost is not high, for this heavier lamb is meatier and an excellent buy when you consider its versatility. If you plan to use the roast first, then try the recipe with plum jam. It makes an excellent glaze and sauce. Wrap the lamb chops in heavy-duty aluminum foil wrap and freeze for a future meal; do the same with the shank.

PLUM GLAZED LEG OF LAMB

1 leg of lamb (3 sirloin chops and shank removed)

Salt

Freshly ground pepper

1 1/2 cups chicken broth

3/4 cup plum jam

1 teaspoon dry mustard

1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

1 teaspoon soy sauce

1 teaspoon Worcestershire

Rub lamb with salt and pepper. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Roast in 325-degree oven 30 to 35 minutes per pound, or until meat thermometer registers 175 degrees for medium doneness. One hour before cooking is completed, remove from oven; skim excess fat from pan drippings and add chicken broth. Return to oven for thirty minutes. Combine jam, mustard and ginger; brush over roast. Continue roasting and baste occasionally with pan drippings. Remove roast to serving platter. Strain pan drippings into small saucepan; add soy sauce and Worcestershire. Heat to serving temperature and serve with lamb. Makes 6 servings.

GRILLED SIRLOIN LAMB CHOPS

1/4 cup salad oil

3 tablespoons lemon juice

1/3 cup chopped pimiento-stuffed olives

1 clove garlic, crushed

1/2 teaspoon salt

1/4 teaspoon oregano leaves

1/4 teaspoon basil leaves

1/8 teaspoon pepper

4 sirloin lamb chops, 1 inch thick

Mix together oil, lemon juice, olives and seasonings; pour over lamb chops in shallow dish. Chill 2 or 3 hours, turning chops once. Grill chops 3 to 4 inches from source of heat 8 minutes per side, or until desired degree of doneness. Heat olive marinade in small saucepan and pour over chops before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Roast Lamb And Vegetables

A Springtime Feast

Lamb is a great favorite for spring feasts. It is traditional in old world countries where often a baby lamb is roasted whole with flavorful herbs and vegetables. In this country, although tender, fine quality lamb is available the year around, during the spring months it is particularly succulent and fine grained.

It makes the most savory and brimming - with - juice roasts if cooked with tender loving care. But for years, we in this country have overcooked lamb. Only recently, as a result of our growing familiarity with continental cuisine are we beginning to enjoy lamb cooked to the "rosy pink" stage.

To be sure of just right rosy pink doneness, a meat thermometer should be used and the temperature to watch for is 165-170 degrees. Remove the roast from the oven just before it reaches this temperature, as the meat continues to cook for 10 minutes or so after it is removed and you will note the thermometer going up.

For that extra loving care for lamb, roast it in a wrap of foil with special herbs and seasonings. First put it into a hot oven with the foil spread open so it browns beautifully, then reduce the temperature and close the foil loosely to hold in flavors and help them to penetrate.

For a lovely bouquet of vegetables to serve with the lamb, pre-cook small white turnips, carrots and onion rings to the just tender stage, open the foil and arrange them around the roast, turning them over and over in the flavorful juice in the package.

Roast and all may be lifted in the foil and transferred to a wooden plank-lined carving platter for a delicious feast of Roast Lamb Bouquetiere.

ROAST LAMB BOUQUETIERE

6 to 7 pound leg of lamb
1 clove garlic
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1/4 teaspoon rosemary
1 tablespoon olive or salad oil
1 tablespoon honey
1 carrot, cut up
1 onion, quartered
1/2 cup dry red wine or 1/4 cup each lemon juice and bland canned fruit juice Whole carrots
Turnips
Cornstarch

Trim excess fat from lamb. Arrange a large sheet of heavy duty foil in a shallow pan and place lamb in center. Fold foil close to meat. Crush garlic into salt, add pepper, rosemary and olive oil and honey. Rub this mixture over the meat. Sprinkle carrot and onion around meat.

Place in a 450 degree oven and brown the meat. This takes about 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees. Slide the pan out of the oven and pour the wine or fruit juice over the lamb. Take the ends of folded foil on the long sides of the lamb and bring up over the meat, partially closing it. Turn up the foil at either end so juice cannot run out. Wrap loosely; do not seal.

Insert meat thermometer between edges of foil and put lamb back into the oven. Roast for 1 1/4 hours or until thermometer registers 155 degrees. Cook carrots and turnips in boiling salted water during last half hour and drain. At end of this time, open the foil on the lamb and fold it back. Arrange vegetables around roast and baste both lamb and vegetables with juices in foil. Return to oven for 15 minutes or until the thermometer registers 16 degrees.

Remove from the oven, tip pan and drain off juices into a saucepan. Lift the foil and transfer roast and vegetables to a carving board. Skim fat from juices, add boiling water to make desired amount of sauce and thicken with cornstarch mixed with wine or fruit juice. Season to taste and serve with roast. Makes 10 or more servings.

ROAST LAMB BOUQUETIERE

Time For A Flavor Change

The air is warmer, the trees are budding, it's beginning to look a lot like spring — and you are coming down with a bad attack of get-out-of-the-houseitis! Well, this is a common malady at this time of year, so go ahead, get out of the house and enjoy the fresh, invigorating air. You can still have a hot, tasty entree ready when the family arrives by planning ahead and having seafoods on the menu. Fish and shellfish are noted for fine flavor, excellent nutrition, and quick-cooking.

Shrimp, in particular, are great when time is important and good eating is paramount. Webster defines shrimp as "a small or puny person or thing" but the only part of that definition that applies to shrimp is that they are small. There is nothing puny or unimportant about these little crustaceans, after all they do have the reputation of being "favorite" with thousands of people. Their versatility is well known and they are shrilly-delightful whether in appetizers, canapés, cocktails, salads, or gourmet entrees. Shrimp are power-packed with high-quality protein and other nutrients while being low in fat and calories. They may be purchased raw or cooked, peeled or unpeeled, and fresh or frozen in many parts of the country as well as being available in convenient 4 1/2 ounce cans.

Phil Roedel, Director, National Marine Fisheries Service, United States Department of Commerce says: "Shrimp, particularly those from the Gulf and the North Pacific, have been in excellent supply this year. Much of the catch was either canned or individually quick frozen for your preparation ease and eating enjoyment."

You'll win accolades with a tempting, low-calorie Shrimp Broccoli Bake. This recipe, flavor-accented the shrimp in an Italian dressing, catsup, onion, and parsley mixture. The shrimp are heaped on top of and surrounded by buttered bro-coli and baked in a covered casserole for about 20 minutes. Just before serving, sprinkle the shrimp entree with cheese and pop back into the oven until the cheese melts, or omit the cheese if you are seriously counting calories.

For more exciting, refreshing, low-calorie recipes, "Seafood Slimmers" has the answer. For a copy of this full-color booklet readers may send 25 cents to the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D. C. 20402, and request Seafood Slimmers (I 49-49/2.7) Fishery Market Development Series No. 7.

SHRIMP BROCCOLI BAKE

1 1/2 pounds raw shrimp, cooked, peeled, and deveined, or 3 cans (4 1/2 to 5 ounces each) shrimp
1/3 cup commercial Italian dressing
1/4 cup catsup
1/4 cup finely chopped onion
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
2 packages (10 ounces each) frozen broccoli spears, cooked and drained
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup finely shredded process American cheese (optional)

Rinse canned shrimp, if used, in cold water; drain well. Combine and mix Italian dressing, catsup, onion, and parsley. Pour over shrimp; mix carefully. Cut broccoli stems into small pieces. Arrange in bottom of shallow 1 1/2 quart baking dish. Arrange broccoli flowerettes at either end of casserole. Melt butter or margarine; stir in lemon juice. Drizzle over broccoli. Spoon shrimp mixture between broccoli flowerettes. Cover with aluminum foil, crimping it to edges of dish. Bake in hot oven 400 degrees about 20 minutes or until hot. Uncover; sprinkle with cheese, if desired. Return to oven to melt cheese. Makes 6 servings.

BRAISED ENDIVE WITH CHERRY TOMATOES

1 1/2 pounds endive
1 pint cherry tomatoes
3 tablespoons butter
salt, pepper and nutmeg
Trim and rinse the endive. If very thick, slit it in half lengthwise. Rinse tomatoes and if stems are fresh, leave them on. Melt butter in a large skillet and add the endive. Sprinkle with seasonings. Cover and cook over low heat, shaking skillet occasionally until endive is tender. Tilt cover when almost tender so moisture evaporates. Remove to serving plate. Add tomatoes to the skillet, a little additional butter, if needed and sprinkle with seasonings. Again cook quickly, shaking the skillet. Do not cover tomatoes and cook only until skins burst. Serve with the endive.
Makes 6 servings.

What's Thawing For Dinner?

Using Those Leftover Easter Eggs

by CHARLOTTE ERICKSON

Do you have a surplus supply of leftover Easter eggs? Dying the eggs before Easter is fun and you can't make enough. But no one likes to eat the leftover eggs.

Eggs have a high nutrient value, particularly protein. Two eggs give more than 18 per cent of the daily adult requirement for protein, plus calcium, iron, phosphorus, vitamins A, B1, B2, B3, B6, B12 and D. They are economical and should be included in the weekly menu. Custards, salads, sauces, omelets and cakes all accommodate eggs and add to daily family nutrition.

The following are ideas to help use the leftover eggs.

GREEN SALAD WITH EGGS

Dressing:

1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream

1/4 cup chili sauce
1 hard cooked egg, chopped finely
2 tablespoons finely chopped ripe olives
2 teaspoons chopped chives
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 tablespoons dill gherkin, chopped coarsely
Salt and pepper to taste
Combine all the ingredients for the salad dressing, mixing well. Chill.

Salad:

Salad greens for 6 servings (a mixture of spinach, iceberg and bibb lettuce)
3 green onions, snipped
Several sprigs of parsley, snipped
6 eggs, hard cooked and quartered
2 medium tomatoes, cut in wedges
1 avocado, peeled and cut in lengthwise strips

Wash the greens and drain well. Cut and tear into bite size pieces; add parsley and onions. Place in a salad bowl and toss. Arrange tomatoes and hard cooked eggs around the top of the bowl, alternating with the avocado in an attractive manner. Serve with fresh baked rolls and this can be a meal in itself.

Yields 6 servings.
Other additions include a can of lobster or crab meat. Cooked cut up shrimp, julienne strips of ham, Swiss cheese, salami or prosciutto are also good.

DEVILED EGGS

6 hard cooked eggs
1/4 cup mayonnaise
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash freshly ground pepper
Peel hard cooked eggs and cut in half lengthwise. Remove yolks into a mixing bowl. Mash well and combine with mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard and seasonings. Fill egg whites with this mixture using a spoon, or for a more professional look use a pastry tube.

For variation, add 1 or 2 teaspoons of any of the following ingredients: anchovies or anchovy paste; horseradish; chopped parsley; minced onion; chopped green or ripe olives or crumbled crisp-cooked bacon.

In the case of the olives, bacon, parsley, anchovies, etc. you may wish to decorate the top of the deviled eggs by sprinkling a bit of these ingredients over the top. Paprika is another good addition for color.

HAM 'N CHEESE DOGS

1/2 pound boiled or baked ham
1/2 pound sharp cheddar cheese
4 green onions

1/2 cup pimiento stuffed olives
3 hard cooked eggs
1/2 cup tomato paste
2 tablespoons mayonnaise
8 hot dog buns

Cut ham and cheese into 1/4-inch cubes. Snip or slice green onions into small pieces. Also chop stuffed olives. Either coarsely chop hard cooked eggs or put them through a food mill. Combine all the ingredients, mixing well. Spread mixture generously down the center of 8 hot dog buns, split almost through. These buns may be wrapped individually in aluminum foil or they may be stacked together on a large cookie sheet and the entire pan covered with foil. Refrigerate until ready to use.

To serve: Remove cookie sheet from refrigerator and place in a preheated 350-degree oven for 15 minutes or until rolls are heated through and cheese is melted.

A GREEN SALAD complements almost any meal. Jeannine Burdick has created her own Green Salad with an eye to both color and flavor. She combines cucumbers, celery, red onions, black olives, radishes and cherry tomatoes in well-seasoned olive oil and wine vinegar. The marinated vegetables are tossed with lettuce and Feta cheese.

Mrs. William R. Burdick

She Loves Unusual Foods

by LOIS SEILER

"Cooking has become my most creative outlet," explained Mrs. William R. Burdick of 210 N. Eighth Ave., Des Plaines, who, after 13 years, left the advertising world of J. Walter Thompson to raise a family.

Coping with two energetic little boys, Billy, 4, and Mike, 3, leaves her little time for outside interests, so she capitalizes on kitchen activities, deriving satisfaction from the preparation of interesting and unusual foods.

Jeannine Burdick has always liked to cook and credits her mother for encouraging her in this endeavor. "She always let me help out in the kitchen, and I learned primarily from her teachings rather than by recipes," Jeannine remarked.

When first married, her husband, Bill, had certain pre-conceived notions about food — with definite likes and dislikes. Undaunted, Jeannine plunged right in, trying this and that, and before long Bill became her greatest fan.

Now open-minded to anything new, Bill encourages Jeannine to experiment and even presented her with a subscription to "Foods of the World" cookbook series published by Time-Life.

It was this gift that prompted Jeannine to organize a neighborhood progressive dinner group. Seven couples, all of whom live on Eighth Ave. in Des Plaines, now meet bi-monthly for a festive gourmet-type meal.

The distaff side of this couples' club gets together over coffee to plan the menu. Because all the dinners have an ethnic theme, the hostess chooses the country and also the main dish. The remainder of the meal is planned around her choice. All of the recipes used are from the "Foods of the World" series.

"BEING A 'PROGRESSIVE' dinner, three couples entertain in their homes for the various courses, five are involved in food preparation, and two couples come as guests," Jeannine explained. "One of the couples brings the wine to accompany each course."

This good cook often experiments with different ethnic dishes at home, too, and one of her favorites is a Grecian method for preparing chicken.

"I learned how to make this from my cousin, who married an architect from Athens," she explained.

As with many Greek dishes, lemon juice is a prominent ingredient. In this recipe it is combined with olive oil, garlic and oregano and used as a basting sauce.

Small, boiled new potatoes are baked along with the chicken, and both acquire a delicious flavor from the sauce.

As accompaniments Jeannine suggests sauteed zucchini squash well-seasoned with parmesan cheese, garlic bread and a tasty green salad.

The salad she devised herself, with an eye to both color and flavor.

The salad combines several colorful ingredients — cucumber, celery, red onions, black olives, radishes and cherry tomatoes — marinated in well-seasoned olive oil and wine vinegar and tossed with lettuce and Feta cheese.

To complete this appealing meal, Jeannine recommends fruit and cheese or a light dessert such as Italian ice or brandy ice and cookies.

GRECIAN CHICKEN

1 chicken (2 1/2 to 3 pounds)
1/3 cup olive oil
1/4 cup fresh lemon juice
1 or 2 cloves garlic, pressed, or 1/8 to 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons oregano leaves
12 small new red potatoes
Cut chicken into serving-size pieces. Wash and dry thoroughly. Season with salt and pepper and place in roasting pan.

Mix together the olive oil, lemon juice, garlic powder or juice and oregano. Pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered, for 20 to 30 minutes until nicely browned.

Meanwhile, boil potatoes with skins on until fork-tender. Peel skins off and place in pan with chicken after it has been browned. Bake chicken and potatoes with pan liquids. Cover pan, reduce oven temperature to 350 degrees and bake another 30 minutes. Uncover pan, baste chicken and potatoes again, and bake an additional 10 to 15 minutes to crisp chicken. Serves 4.

SAUTEED ZUCCHINI

6 small zucchini
Butter
Olive oil
Parmesan cheese

Wash zucchini; do not peel. Cut off each end and slice zucchini 1/8-inch thick. Saute in half butter and half olive oil in a skillet until transparent. Sprinkle liberally with parmesan cheese. Serves 4.

GREEN SALAD

1/2 cucumber
2 ribs celery
1/2 medium-size red onion
12 black olives
3 radishes
8 cherry tomatoes
1/3 cup olive oil
Garlic-flavored red wine vinegar
1/2 medium-size head romaine lettuce
1/4 head iceberg lettuce
1/4 cup Feta cheese

Wash cucumber, score and slice thin. Cut celery on the diagonal in 1/4-inch slices. Slice onions and separate into rings. Slice olives in half, vertically; slice tomatoes in half and slice radishes thin.

Place these ingredients into a wooden salad bowl. Drizzle olive oil over all. Sprinkle liberally with salt, pepper, garlic powder and oregano. Set aside for a half-hour at room temperature before serving.

Meanwhile, wash lettuce, tear up and refrigerate.

Just before serving, sprinkle marinated ingredients liberally with wine vinegar and toss. Taste and correct seasonings. Then add lettuce and Feta cheese and toss. Cheese should be grated on widest grater or cut into chunks. Bleu cheese or Roquefort may be substituted. Serves 4.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Not the least of New Orleans' pleasures is the opportunity to feast on fresh oysters and Gulf shrimp. I never visit the city without collecting some new and delicious ways to prepare these foods.

The oysters are greatest, of course, eaten on the half shell with hot sauce, but inlanders don't ordinarily have access to regular supplies of truly fresh oysters and have to settle for those in tins.

Oyster bake is an excellent first course in a seafood dinner. To serve four, you'll need 1 pint of select size. Put the oysters in a bowl and mix in 1/4 cup olive oil, 1 tablespoon chopped parsley, 1 chopped garlic clove (or to your taste in fresh garlic powder), salt and pepper.

Lightly butter 4 ramekins or heatproof dishes and portion the oyster mixture into them. Sprinkle with 1 cup fine bread crumbs and top with a little parmesan cheese. Bake in a pre-heated 350-degree oven for 10 minutes until crumbs and cheese begin to brown. Serve at once garnished with lemon wedges.

For the main course, shrimp saute marsala with rice pilaf, you'll need 24 jumbo size or proportionately more per serving in smaller shrimp. Heat 1/4 pound butter in a skillet and saute the peeled and deveined shrimp gently.

Add 3 little green onions chopped fine, 1 small white onion chopped fine and a pinch each of garlic powder, whole rosemary, salt and black pepper. Pour in 1 cup marsala wine and 1 cup prepared brown sauce (available in bottles or dried form for mixing).

Simmer for 10 minutes and serve with the rice pilaf which is made this way.

Melt 1 1/2 tablespoons butter in a saucepan and add 2 ounces of broken vermicelli (a very thin spaghetti available in most markets). Brown.

Add 1 cup cooked rice and 2 cups boiling chicken broth. Simmer for 20 minutes. Top each serving with sour cream.

A crisp green salad is all you'll need to round out the menu.

Peach Fluff Fantasy: A Delightful Dessert

Canned cling peaches are traditionally associated with desserts such as Peach Fluff Fantasy — and well they might be! How they dress up the flavor and appearance of this chilled treat! It's a cooky-like shortbread shell spread with raspberry jelly, filled with a creamy mixture enhanced by peach and banana slices and garnished with a swirl of plump peach slices.

PEACH FLUFF FANTASY

1/3 cup butter or margarine
1/3 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
2 egg yolks
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1/4 cup red raspberry jelly
Creamy fruit filling

Creamy Fruit Filling:
1 can (28 ounces) cling peach slices
2 envelopes plain gelatin
1 can (8 ounces) frozen pineapple-orange concentrate 3 tablespoons sugar
Dash salt

1 cup whipping cream
2 bananas, medium size

In a large mixing bowl cream together butter, shortening, sugar, egg yolks, salt and vanilla; beat until light. Blend in flour. Press into bottom and extend 3 inches up sides of 9-inch spring form pan. Bake in 350-degree (moderate) oven 25 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool. Spread jelly over bottom; spoon in Creamy Fruit Filling. Refrigerate until set. Place on serving plate; loosen spring and remove sides of pan. Arrange reserved peach slices on top.

Creamy Fruit Filling: Drain peaches, saving syrup. Soften gelatin in 1/2 cup of syrup. In a saucepan heat to boiling remaining syrup, pineapple-orange concentrate, sugar and salt. Remove from heat; stir in gelatin mixture. Chill until slightly thickened. Whip cream; fold into gelatin mixture. Peel and slice bananas; fold into cream-gelatin mixture with peaches, reserving 6 peach slices for garnish. Chill until mixture mounds on spoon.

Makes 10 to 12 servings.

Grapefruit Sausage Kraut

For Post-Holiday Penny Pinching

After the feast comes the great penny pinch. Holiday time is no time to watch the budget... but post-holiday economy, or any economy for that matter, can still permit wonderfully delicious meals. And economy is a factor with many a homemaker right about now. According to a recent Harris survey, one out of every five households has been hit by unemployment, cutbacks in the work week, or reduction in pay.

Despite any financial doldrums, you owe delicious meals to your family. Grapefruit Sausage Kraut would taste wonderful at any price... but happily it costs little to prepare. Easy to make, too, so it's economical with time as well as money. Onions and sausages go into a skillet to be joined by shredded cabbage, grapefruit juice and sugar provide the dish with a wonderfully sweet-tart flavor and whole grapefruit sections, too, go into the pan. In terms of food value received, citrus is one of the best buys at the supermarket. Citrus is the prime source of vitamin C, required daily for growing and maintaining strong bones and teeth.

Spiced Chicken is another piggy-bank winner, and here again citrus adds its talents to meat. The chicken combines with garlic, basil and nutmeg... brown sugar and orange juice provide the dish with a sweet-tart sauce. Fresh oranges or frozen concentrate add zest to many a main dish, and orange concentrate is an especially good buy right about now. According to the latest price index statistics released by the government, the cost of a six-ounce container of frozen orange juice concentrate is at its lowest figure in over a year. And the price of the frozen concentrate is still going down... while the price of almost everything else zooms sky high.

For most families watching their budgets, food accounts for a large chunk of the weekly paycheck. With the hearty dishes that follow, you can eat wonderfully well at little cost... truly high-style penny pinching.

GRAPEFRUIT SAUSAGE KRAUT

1 tablespoon salad oil
1 onion, chopped
1½ pounds sweet sausage
1 green cabbage, shredded
2 teaspoons sugar
2 teaspoons dill seed
½ teaspoon salt
1½ cups grapefruit juice
2 grapefruits sectioned
Heat oil in large saucepan or Dutch oven. Add onion and cook until tender, but not brown. Cut sausage into 1-inch pieces. Add to pan and cook until browned on all sides. Add shredded cabbage; cover and cook until cabbage begins to wilt, about 10 minutes. Sprinkle with sugar, dill seed and salt; add grapefruit juice. Cover and cook over medium heat 10 minutes. Remove cover, stir and continue to cook over low heat, uncovered, 20 minutes; stir occasionally. Add grapefruit sections and heat.
Yield: 6 servings.

SPICED CHICKEN

1½ cups orange sections

(4 or 5 oranges)
Orange juice
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon mace or nutmeg
1 teaspoon dried leaf basil
1 clove garlic, minced
½ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1 broiler-fryer chicken, cut in serving pieces
2 tablespoons salad oil

Drain orange sections; add additional juice to make 1 cup. Combine orange juice, brown sugar, vinegar, mace, basil and garlic in saucepan. Simmer over low heat 10 minutes. Combine flour, salt and pepper. Coat chicken with this mixture. Heat oil in skillet; add chicken pieces and brown on all sides. Add orange sauce. Cover and simmer 30 minutes or until tender. Add orange sections and simmer, covered, 5 minutes longer.

Yield: 4 servings.

Ripe Olives Enliven Ham Dishes

Whether it is a baked ham loaf for a late, late breakfast or a ham and noodle casserole for a simple supper, ripe olives do wonders for flavor interest and eye appeal.

A ham loaf made with lean ham and lean pork, accented with ripe olives and seasoned with mustard and onion, can be baked ahead, and kept warm until serving time. Serve it with baked eggs, broiled tomatoes, and hot popovers for a great brunch.

Casserole dishes are ever popular. This one, made with cooked or canned ham, tender noodles, and ripe olives, is moistened with an interesting cottage cheese and sour cream sauce. Easily assembled and baked, it is perfect for a luncheon or a supper.

RIPE OLIVE HAM LOAF

1 cup canned pitted ripe olives
2 eggs
1 cup soft bread crumbs
¾ cup milk
¼ cup minced onion
2 teaspoons prepared mustard
1 pound ground lean ham
1 pound ground lean pork
Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Chop olives coarsely. Beat eggs until bubbly and combine with crumbs, milk, onion and mustard. Add the ground ham and ground pork and chopped olives to egg-crumbs mixture. Mix together well. Shape into a loaf in shallow baking pan, or on a baking sheet. Bake in oven for about 1½ hours. Makes 6 servings.

RIPE OLIVE HAM CASSEROLE

2 cups fine noodles
1 cup canned pitted ripe olives
3 cups cooked or canned cubed ham
1 (3-ounce) can sliced broiled mushrooms
1 tablespoon instant minced onion
2 lightly beaten eggs
1 cup cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream
Preheat oven 350 degrees. Cook noodles according to package directions; drain and rinse with cold water. Drain olives and cut into quarters. Mix noodles, olives and remaining ingredients. Spoon into a 2-quart casserole. Cover and bake for 45 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Low Cholesterol Cooking Contest

It's time to begin experimenting to find the perfect entry for the "Hearts and Flour" Bake Off. The Heart Association of North Cook County is sponsoring this low cholesterol cooking contest at their free Heart Health Fair, Saturday, May 8, at Helen Keller Jr. High School, Hoffman Estates, in conjunction with St. Alexius Hospital and Schaumburg School District 54.

Nutrition wise gourmet cooks need only adapt a favorite baked specialty in one of the five categories to conform with dietary recommendations of the Heart Assn.

Butter and solid shortenings, egg yolk, cream and cream substitutes must not be used. Whole milk, cheeses and cream cheese, chocolate, coconut and commercial mixes are taboo, and substitutes must be found for bacon, all organ meats, olives and avocados.

Just a few alternatives are polyunsaturated vegetable oils, soft margarines, egg white, skim milk, non fat dry milk and buttermilk, skim milk cheeses and cottage cheese, cocoa and nuts. Imagination and cholesterol content should be your only limitations.

To register, fill in the entry blank, attaching your recipe on a three by five-inch card. Mail no later than May 1. Dieticians will check each recipe for acceptability, notifying only non-eligible contestants. Baked goods must be brought to the fair's nutrition booth by 10 a.m. Judging will follow immediately and awards will be announced at 4 p.m. First prize is a blender and winning and selected recipes will be included in a special edition cookbook.

If you could actually save money to any worthwhile extent, it might be worth it to plan your shopping trips according to some supermarket's "effective dates." But the trouble is, these "effective dates" apply to comparatively few of the items an average shopper buys, and the "specials" they refer to don't add up to the kind of savings your Eagle offers everyday. To put it another way, you may be inconveniencing yourself to shop during the store's "effective dates," and end up saving only a few cents for your trouble. Whereas, by shopping Eagle you can take home considerable savings on your weekly food bill, and you'll get those savings no matter when you shop. Savings are an everyday thing at Eagle, which is what makes us more "special" than the stores that offer "specials — Monday through Wednesday Only."

CALIFORNIA STRAWBERRIES NOW AVAILABLE

A Roast Duckling South Seas Style

Famous the world over for its elegance and versatility with accompanying foods, roast duckling — south seas style with fruit rice stuffing — is appropriate during any of the four seasons.

Suggesting the casual mode of dining in the tropics, the fruited rice stuffing features the flavors of orange, banana, and coconut. Served with a tossed salad and semi-sweet pouring dressing, this succulent duckling is ideal for an informal dinner party.

Available all year in supermarket frozen meat display cases, duckling is easy to prepare and serve. For your convenience, the National Duckling Council suggests that you always keep a brace of fresh frozen duckling in your freezer.

A highly nutritious food, duckling can be served with an innumerable variety of accompanying foods. Its versatility provides new opportunities to demonstrate your creative flair as a hostess. Your guests, savoring every morsel, will mark your dinner party as a truly memorable occasion.

SOUTH SEAS DUCKLING WITH FRUIT RICE STUFFING

Duckling
1 frozen duckling (4½ to 5 pounds), defrosted
1 teaspoon salt
1 can (13½ ounce) pineapple tidbits Water
½ cup rice
1 tablespoon sugar
1 can (3½ ounce) flaked coconut
1 3 cup chopped toasted almonds
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
Yield: 4 servings.

Fruit Sauce

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 3 cup sugar
1 tablespoon grated orange rind
½ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1 orange, thinly sliced
2 firm bananas
Wash, drain and pat duckling dry with paper toweling. Sprinkle neck and body cavities with ½ teaspoon salt. Drain pineapple tidbits; save syrup. Add water as needed to make the amount of liquid called for in package directions for cooking rice. Combine liquids, rice, remaining ½ teaspoon salt and sugar. Bring to boil; stir and cover. Simmer gently until tender.

Toasts ¾ cup coconut. Combine rice, pineapple tidbits, toasted coconut, chopped almonds and orange rind, toss lightly. Fill neck and body cavities loosely with stuffing. Skewer neck skin to back. Cover opening of body cavity with aluminum foil and tie legs together loosely. Place on rack in shallow roasting pan. Bake in slow oven, 325 degrees until meat on drumstick is tender, about 3 hours. Make sauce, melt butter or margarine. Add sugar and heat until bubbly. Add fruit rinds and juices; bring to a boil. Add orange slices and heat; remove from syrup. Peel bananas and cut into chunks 1-inch lengths. Heat bananas in syrup until glazed yet firm. Remove from syrup.

Garnish duckling with orange slices and bananas. Sprinkle with remaining coconut over fruit. Serve with sauce.

The Pear Facts

PEAR CELERY SLAW

For a change from traditionally favorite cole slaw, for cabbage substitute celery, sliced diagonally into ¼-inch thick crescents. Then add unpeeled diced fresh winter pears. Use a creamy dressing and serve in lettuce cups. Sprinkle with chopped peanuts for garnish. Especially good with pork, ham or chicken.

GINGERED PEAR APPETIZER

An especially welcome spring appetizer is Gingered Fresh Western Pears. Core and slice pears into even wedges with one quick stroke of a pear slicer. Sprinkle generously with lemon juice and chopped candied or preserved ginger. Chill 1 hour and serve in stemmed sherbet glasses or arrange on small dessert plates. Serve with champagne or white wine.

SUNDAY WAFFLES

Add diced fresh Anjou pear, chopped pecans or walnuts and a dash of nutmeg to your favorite waffle batter. Bake until crisp and golden and serve piping hot with honey-butter.

PEAR RAISIN SAUCE

Accompany a spring ham with this tasty pear sauce. Combine 1½ cups diced fresh winter pears with ½ cup brown sugar, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1½ tablespoons flour, 1 cup raisins, ¼ cup vinegar and 1½ cups water. Bring to boil and simmer until thick, about 15 to 20 minutes. Serve warm or chilled.

Cooking Tips

Allow additional cooking time when cooking meat from the frozen state. Frozen roasts need from a third to a half again as long for cooking rare, medium or well done. Lamb medium or well done, veal and pork are cooked well done. Use same procedure for fresh, defrosted or frozen roasts — place meat on rack, roast in a 325-degree oven. Do not add water or cover. Insert the roast meat thermometer in center of a frozen roast after it is thawed or when about half done. Do not force thermometer into partially thawed meat.

When making hamburger patties moisten hands with cold water to prevent the meat from sticking to hands.

Drop oranges and grapefruit into boiling water for a few minutes before removing the skin. The peeling is easier.

Cooking Shorts

Extra Easter eggs and ham? Prepare ham and eggs on English muffin rafts. Simply split and toast muffins, top with slices of ham and heat in broiler. Spoon cheese sauce containing quartered hard-cooked eggs over ham.

Spring's a good time for a cupboard cleanout and reorganization. Give front space to those cans and packages that have been there longest. Use up the old to make way for fresh supplies. A pound or two of ground beef, browned, will make a dinner in combination with many canned and packaged foods.

The Slim Solution To Fat Pollution

Bubbly beautiful — and above all, slim — Nancy Gould at 23 owes her success to the fact that she once was fat. A topflight fashion model in her teens, posing in major U.S. cities from coast to coast, Nancy found that she was continually battling a jungle of temptations, food being the biggest. "I became an unhappy fashion model, too plump to pose. Yet I could not live as a normal human being with a food intake equivalent to that of a mouse."

Nancy resolved to dissolve her modeling career and the extra tonnage. Training herself as a nutritionist, she discovered a way to eat her way back to happiness. "Every day for six months, I invented new recipes, filled with happiness but not with calories. It became a new way of life to enjoy food that tasted sinful but that actually is 'thinful.' And gradually life took a new look at me."

Her new outlook on life led her to write "How To Gorge George Without Fattening Fanny" (Hawthorn Books, Inc., September 29, $5.95, with line drawings by Burt Blum). In it, Nancy classifies recipes according to the "moods for foods" they satisfy, such as "Oh, My Aching Heart, O, My Aching Sweet Tooth." She also presents over 200 of her slim-side recipes for foods like "Spectacular Souffles (They Rise to the Occasion)" and "Pate Non Fate."

From her own experience, Nancy learned that "These recipes are more than just delicious. They will not only assuage your hunger pains, but hopefully the reason for those pains, no matter what your reasons for eating. Whether you're mad, sad, lonely, or just plain hungry — the psychological reason for your overindulgence is your business — you can eat to your heart's content."

Nancy Gould is now chief cook and bottle washer, of Nancy Gould Products. She is the inventor of "Mini Mousse," a low-calorie dessert that weighs in at only 60 calories a serving. The dessert will soon be available at supermarkets and grocery stores. A former Californian, Nancy Gould occupies a spacious modern apartment — with a spacious, modern kitchen — in New York City.

GORGED PIGEON

(Or a Stuffed Bird)

- 1 5-pound capon
- 3 tablespoons margarine
- 1 teaspoon ginger
- 3 teaspoons salt
- 1/4 teaspoon freshly ground pepper
- 2 tablespoons dill weed
- 2 tablespoons tarragon
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme
- 2 tablespoons chopped parsley
- 1 onion chopped
- 3 tablespoons blanched, sliced almonds
- 1/3 cup seedless raisins
- 1 1/4 cups cottage cheese
- 3 tablespoons red currant jelly
- 1 orange, juiced and then sliced
- 1 teaspoon brown sugar

Rub capon inside and out with mixture of margarine, ginger, salt, and pepper. Mix dill, tarragon, thyme, parsley, onion, almonds and raisins with cottage cheese. Stuff the capon with the mixture and secure the opening with skewers or sew it up with thread. Place the bird, breast side up in a shallow roasting pan. Roast at 400 degrees for 10 minutes. In separate pot melt red currant jelly with juice and slices of orange. Add brown sugar and stir until dissolved. Reduce the oven temperature to 350 degrees and roast for 1 hour.

This will serve 6 each serving 480 calories

COUNTERFEIT CAVIAR

- 1 large eggplant
- 1 small onion finely chopped
- 1 tomato finely chopped
- 4 tablespoons red wine vinegar

- 2 tablespoons olive oil
- salt and pepper to taste

Boil eggplant, covered, for about 15 minutes, until it is soft and skin peels off easily. Remove all skin. Let eggplant cool, mash with a fork and add the onion and tomato. Mix in the vinegar and oil. Season with salt and pepper to taste. This is a great hors d'oeuvre spread.

This will serve 12 generously, 33 calories a serving

Jiffy Recipes

A PIQUANT sauce for cocktail meatballs is made by combining a 14-ounce bottle of catsup with a 1 pound can of jellied cranberry sauce and 2 tablespoons of cherry optional.

Heat in a sauce pan until all the ingredients are blended. Add tiny meatballs or cocktail franks and simmer until heated through. Serve on toothpicks.

DRESS UP potatoes in unusual ways. Mix crunchy peanut butter into hot mashed potatoes just before serving, combine hot mashed potatoes with mashed turnips, and top with butter or add finely shredded carrots and shredded cheddar cheese to mashed potatoes.

FOR A quick snack, wrap pineapple chunks with bacon. Fasten with toothpicks and broil until the bacon is crisp and brown. Serve hot.

For a pre-teen special, stir crushed pineapple and honey into peanut butter, continuing to stir until spreading consistency. Great on graham crackers.

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why... I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Village Board To Decide On Hiring Of 2 Detectives

If the Schaumburg Village Board approves, Police Chief Martin Conroy will have two detectives on his force by May 1.
Chief Conroy requested approval to hire the detectives Monday night at a board meeting. The board referred the request to its finance committee, and requested a report back by April 27. If the board approves the request, it will establish a new detective bureau.
Conroy said he needed the two detectives, plus an additional uniformed man, because of increased population and police activity in the village, and because he expects that increase to be even more significant with the opening of Woodfield Mall shopping center in the fall.
"We will have an increase in volume in such things as auto accidents and shoplifting of 30 to 40 per cent over our current overall work picture," said the chief.

IN ORDER TO assess the impact of Woodfield Mall, Chief Conroy has been touring shopping centers in the Chicago area and out of state, and questioning the police departments with jurisdiction over them.
Among centers Chief Conroy has visited are Old Orchard, Oakbrook and one in Greendale, Wis. The Wisconsin center is designed exactly the same as Woodfield Mall, but on a scale half as large, said Conroy. He visited Greendale last Friday.
Conroy discussed the affect on police activities of the Greendale shopping center, only six months old, with the sergeant of detectives of the Greendale Police Department. His department had experienced major increases in reports of fraudulent checks, stolen cars, shoplifting, larcenies from autos and auto accidents, said Conroy. There also had been one armed robbery at the new shopping center, he said.
The new detective bureau would not handle cases only arising from the shopping facility, said Conroy, but would handle all followup investigation arising from crimes in the village. It also would handle and serve warrants for arrest. The chief said he provided for the bureau in his budget for this year, and has been planning it for some time. The village already has an unmarked car for the police department, and the detectives would use this fully equipped auto.

THE NEW BUREAU will grow as the volume of its work increases, said Conroy, and there is a "great possibility" he will request "a couple more men in 1972."
The men will not be selected by examination or testing, as uniformed men are, but will be chosen by Conroy from among the uniformed men in his department. He will not name a probationary officer, he said. Since all new officers are on probation for a year, the detectives will have had at least one year of service with the department.
Chief Conroy said he already has selected the men for the new bureau, but he declined to name them until after he receives approval from the village board. The men will have the rank of detective patrolman, he said.

Glass Sought For Recycling

Hanover Park Woman's Club members ask area residents to bring bottles and glass to the Pic-N-Pay parking lot Saturday and participate in the clubs glass recycling drive.
Mrs. Helga Petersson, chairman of the drive said the glass drive is part of the group's ecology efforts and will also be a good spring housecleaning aid to homeowners.
All glass collected by the women during the 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. drive will be taken to the Ball Glass Corporation plant for crushing and recycling.
Mrs. Petersson said committee members Mrs. Marilyn Peccarraro, Mrs. Joan Barone, and Mrs. Sandra Norman will be stationed at the collection truck Saturday.
They will accept non-return bottles and returnable bottles and all types of glass, except mirror and china.
The members must sort the bottles by color and they ask that all bottles brought to the drive be free of paper labels, metal bands and are clean.

PLENTY OF PUPPIES, 11 German Shepherds, and six Poodles, are keeping seven year old Barbara and her mother Mrs. Joan Bartosch of Hoffman Estates busy. The pups were

View Plans For Fox School Land

A plan to develop land around Anne Fox School was presented to the Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 building and sites committee Monday night.
The plan, which includes several athletic fields, an arboretum and picnic area, tot lot play fields and shaded walks, was developed by Ralph H. Burke for the Hanover Park Park District, which owns the land. The drawings set aside an area for a storm water retention basin north of the school, but do not detail specifications for the basin.
Don Rudd, chairman of the committee, said he would present the plans to the school board Thursday night, and ask the board to designate a member to meet with the park district to discuss the plans more fully and question Burke. The meeting was requested by the park district.
The drawings show the school surrounded on all sides except the front by trees and grassed areas. On the north, near the school's primary wing, would be the tot lot, a softball diamond for young children, a baseball diamond for older players, a soccer field and skating rink.
The arboretum and picnic area would be west of the school, while courts for volleyball, basketball and tennis would be on the south side.

RALPH NORMAN, park district director of recreation, said yesterday he had no idea what the cost of implementing the plan might be. But, he said, he will ask Burke for a cost figure at the meeting of the board of representative and the park district.
Financing has not been determined, said Norman, although the board has discussed the possibility of a bond issue. The district would be "more than willing for the school to help" pay for the park, he said.
"This would set some kind of precedence of schools and park districts working together," said Norman.
However, it does not appear the school district will contribute much toward funding. Wayne Schiabe, schools superintendent, said yesterday the school district likely would help pay for playground equipment, which it has done in the past, but is not contemplating financing for the rest of the park.
In other discussion, Rudd and Marvin Lapicola, district business manager, brought the committee up to date on negotiations with developers planning projects in the district.

Doggone! It's Busy Life

by PAT GERLACH
For about two months, Joan and Bud Bartosch, of Hoffman Estates, have had twenty-four mouths to feed every day.
Parents of three daughters, the Bartoschs also became guardians of 17 puppies whelped by their two dogs within a three day period.
On February 25, Sheba Von Hoffman, their two year old German Shepherd, produced eleven pups which had been sired by Storm.
Three days later, Cindy, their 16-month old poodle gave birth to a litter of six fathered by Christopher Robin.
Experienced dog breeders, the Bartoschs name their litters alphabetically before registering them with the American Kennel Club and this spring's batch were E and F groups.
The Shepherds were christened Elmo, Eric, Elsa, Echo, Ellie, Emma, Earl, Edison, Eagle, Egor and finally, Extra.
FITZGERALD IS the only male poodle and his sisters are Flair, Fawna, Fable, Fancy and Fashion.

Eating habits provide a wide contrast between the two breeds, Joan explained, noting that the Shepherd pups put away between seven and eight pounds of dry dog food daily.
This, of course, is in addition to their daily consumption of one and one-half gallons of milk and two dozen eggs.
Fortunately, poodles do not have the same capacity for goodies and nibble their way daintily through one can of dog food among them per week washed down by about a pint of milk in the same length of time.
As of Easter Sunday morning, three of the Shepherds were adopted and one poodle went to join his own family, the Bartoschs report.
Is it difficult or discouraging to manage such groups of puppies?
Not according to both Joan and Bud Bartosch who have already begun listing names beginning with G and H for their next litters.

Board Asks Apartment Complex To Build Fence

After hearing complaints about garbage, vandalism and thefts that the Woodlawn Avenue residents attributed to renters in the Vavrus Apartment Complex on Bode Rd., Hoffman Estates Trustees asked the village attorney "how do we force them to build a fence?"

Robert Polniaszek of 187 S. Woodlawn Avenue came to the Monday board session asking help of trustees.

Polniaszek complained that his home was vandalized by children living in the Vavrus Apartments who crossed through his yard broke windows and destroyed building materials on his property.

The board members told Polniaszek that verbal agreement had been made with Vavrus Builders when the apartments were being built but that the village at the present time was not able to force building of a fence at the apartment complex building line.

Daniel Larson, administrative assistant to the mayor, said he has noted complaints and that he believed the manager of the apartments was making an earnest effort to keep the area clean.

LARSON SAID an apartment complex next to the Prairie Ridge complex had no scavenger service for a four day period last week and high winds blew the exposed refuse east and onto Woodlawn Avenue bordering the apartments.

Larson said neighboring Interlude Village apartments were placing cardboard containers of garbage next to the Vavrus apartment disposal units.

He added that Vavrus has increased their one yard containers to six yards and the manager is cooperating with police to enforce the garbage ordinances.

Trustee Edward Hennessey noted that a fence would stop any blowing refuse and also stop foot traffic that Polniaszek complained of.

Trustee Mrs. Virginia Hayter said it was the board's job to convince Vavrus it would be good business to build a fence. It would not only improve his relationship with the village but save wear and tear on the apartment's manager she explained.

The village has taken the position that the builder is violating nuisance ordinances and will take proper legal action against him when violations are noted.

President Frederick Downey asked Larson to check out reports that a torn down portion of fence contains barbed wire strands and said if it does ask for its immediate removal.

He advised Polniaszek to take civil action against the vandals if the vandalism continues, and assured him the board would do what it could.

723-Unit Complex Okayed

A planned unit development of 723 multiple units to be built by Hoffman-Rosner in Schaumburg was approved by the village board this week.

Colony Lake Club, containing townhouses, condominiums, apartments and a large shopping center, is to be built on 74 acres off of Golf and Higgins, near the Keeler Junior High School site.

Hoffman-Rosner has agreed to complete Jones Road-Salem Drive, at the site. This will become a major north-south street in Schaumburg Township.

Lowell Siff, Hoffman-Rosner, vice president, asked the village to contact property owner on the east side of Jones Road at Golf and request he pay half the cost of the road improvement for 1,000 feet. That parcel, undeveloped, has recently been sold. Mayor Robert O. Atcher agreed to do this.

Siff said 90,000 square feet of commercial space is planned for Colony Lake on an eight acre site.

The builder has also agreed to donate an eight acre school site to School Dist. 54 and a cash donation. A contribution of $100 per unit will also be contributed to the cultural center fund.

SIFF SAID Hoffman-Rosner plans to start building the townhouse-condominium section first, probably in the spring of 1972. The units will sell for $20,000 to $30,000.

Hoffman-Rosner received approval to build 20 per cent three bedroom units in the townhouse-condominium section, 5 per cent more than the village has allowed in the past.

Trustee Jack Larsen argued against permitting 20 per cent three bedrooms, saying it would establish a precedent. Mayor Atcher said each PUD should stand on its own and said this one will have an area shopping center that will add to the tax base.

With the added assessment from the shopping center, the school district will not be hurt, he said.

Siff said it is highly likely that Hoffman-Rosner will build apartments in the complex, only one and two bedrooms, which will bring the three bedroom ratio to 13 per cent.

TRUSTEES AGREED to the 20 per cent for the first two-thirds of the project. If 50 per cent of the commercial or apartments are not built by then, Hoffman-Rosner must make the remaining townhouses and condominiums not more than two bedrooms.

Siff said the project should be completed in four to eight years.

Village Atty. Jack Siegel was instructed to prepare an ordinance, with all trustees voting aye except Larsen.

50 Attend Town Budget Meeting

About 50 persons attended the annual Schaumburg Township budget hearing and meeting Tuesday night, learning they would not have a chance to vote on town budgets this year for the first time.

Town Atty. Norman Samelson explained state law recently was changed, and township officials were named the sole determiners of how to spend town funds. In previous years, residents were asked to vote on the budget before any funds could be spent. The change did not remove power from the residents, said Samelson, because they still retained power to vote officials out of office if they were dissatisfied with township management.

William Fitzgerald was elected moderator of the town meeting, and he introduced officials for brief talks.

VERNON Laubenstein, supervisor, reviewed events of the past year, and told of an increase in the number of town welfare recipients. Last year the town gave assistance to 54 families or 258 persons, while the previous year there were only 38 families or 188 persons on welfare, he said.

Assessor Scott McEachron told of efforts by the Cook County assessor's office to assume responsibilities now held by township assessors, and urged residents to fight such a move. He related his duties in office, saying the township assessor is more easily accessible to taxpayers seeking information, and more responsive to their needs.

Other reports were made by Clerk Mrs. Kathleen Wojcik, Collector Ralph Lyerla, Robert Lyons, past president of the library board, and Russel Anslow the program director of the committee on youth.

Approve Liquor Licenses

Requests for three liquor licenses were discussed this week at the Schaumburg Village Board meeting.

Trustees approved ordinances creating additional Class A and Class F licenses. The Class A, alcohol and beer served on the premises, is for the restaurant at the Schaumburg Airport. The Class F, beer only, is for Hippo's Restaurant.

The third request came from Richard Rusnack, owner of the Hickory Farms franchise which will open a food shop and restaurant in Woodfield Mall.

He requested a license to serve and sell beer and wine. The license cannot be issued until the shop opens, but trustees indicated their willingness to issue them one then.

Two Charged With Pot Possession

A Roselle woman and a Hoffman Estates man were charged with possession of marijuana early Wednesday morning after the van truck they were riding in was stopped by Schaumburg Police for speeding.

Despina R. Hunt, 22, of 279 Nerge Rd., Roselle, was charged with speeding, operating an unsafe motor vehicle and possession of marijuana. Her passenger, Thomas P. Jewett, 25, of 138 Valley Ln., Hoffman Estates, also was charged with possession of marijuana. They are to appear at 9:30 a.m. May 5 in Circuit Court in Schaumburg.

Patrolmen William Bartkovich and Terry McGraw, who made the arrests, said they stopped the northbound van on Roselle Road near Wise Road for the speeding violation, and saw two cigarettes alleged to be marijuana on the floor of the truck. On searching the truck, they found a pipe allegedly used to smoke marijuana, said the patrolmen.

Levitt Townhouse Issue Questioned

The number of three or more bedroom townhouses Levitt and Sons can build in Schaumburg was questioned by trustees at Monday's village board meeting.

Levitt representatives have been asked to meet with the legal committee on April 22, 8 p.m. in the Great Hall, to resolve the issue.

Under terms of the annexation agreement, Levitt interprets that it can build 15 per cent three and four bedroom units in its total multiple family development which consists of approximately 3,000 apartment units and 700 townhouse units on 279 acres.

Thus far, Levitt has built 26.2 per cent three bedroom townhouses and has permits for 8 per cent three bedroom apartment units not yet under construction.

Trustee Jack Larsen questioned whether Levitt was violating the agreement by having under construction more than 15 per cent three bedroom units at one time.

HE NOTED IT would be possible for Levitt to stop building when it had completed 15 per cent three bedroom townhouses of the 3,700 multiple units.

Most of the planned development governing multiple family projects in Schaumburg, limit the builder to completing not more than 15 per cent of the three bedroom units at one time so that the local school districts won't be swamped by new children at one time.

Levitt has built 208 townhouses in Schaumburg and was asking for plat approval for 143 more townhouses at Monday's meeting.

The board tabled consideration of the plans commission recommendation to approve the plat until the bedroom issue is resolved.

Area Property Owners Request Water, Sewer Lines

Schaumburg is being asked to put in water and sanitary sewer lines by property owners in the vicinity of Schaumburg and Roselle roads by means of a special assessment.

Joe Zgonina, village engineer, told trustees Monday that a petition, signed by 83 per cent of the business and homeowners fronting on Schaumburg or Roselle Road at the intersection, has been presented to the village.

He said 25 lots are involved, mostly businesses, going as far north on Roselle Road as Golden Acres Country Club. The lines would be extended from the Town Square Shopping Center mains.

In addition to the properties fronting the major roads, the township library, a church and Schaumburg Transportation Co. have asked to be on the lines, Zgonina said.

THE ASSESSMENTS will cost in the vicinity of $3,000 per 100 front footage lot. Property will pay the special assessment over a 10 year period. It will cost the village nothing.

The petition was referred to the Board of Local Improvements (BOLI). BOLI meets in separate sessions, but is the same as the village board, with the addition of the village engineer.

Zgonina estimated it would take four months for BOLI to have plans prepared and hold public hearings. He said the property owners could also pay for the improvements by putting money in an escrow account. If this were done, work could start in about a month, he said.

Zgonina said only a few homes in Pleasant Acres, the single family area around the library, are involved, though more could be if the property owners so desired.

Attorneys for Vavrus Builders of Joliet and legal counsel for Hanover Park appeared before Circuit Court Judge Edward Egan Wednesday to report on the status of settlement negotiations involving the builder's suit against the village.

The case was continued to May 5 but both parties believe it should be settled before then.

The judge heard both parties report apparent compliance to village ordinances. "The agreement points to a settlement of the suit filed by Vavrus when the village issued stop work orders on its apartments under construction in the village," said Charles Burke representing Vavrus.

Burke, said Vavrus and Associates, who are presently constructing an apartment complex at Fisher and Church roads, said the negotiation settlement was discussed Wednesday and he believed the village was substantially satisfied with the builder's compliance to agreements and codes.

THE SUIT was filed after the village issued a stop work order on the apartments claiming they were being built without conforming to a pre-annexation agreement. Vavrus got a court order allowing them to continue building but the courts asked the builder to show proof of compliance.

Although the village's stop order did not mention tap on fees, the section of the ordinance was at that time being challenged by the builder who paid per connection although the village attorney said the ordinance called for a per unit payment.

Burke said this is part of the negotiation at present.

Choir Places At State Meet

James B. Conant High School Concert Choir has received an overall superior rating at the state music contest held at Niles West High School. The group, under the direction of Donald Breshears, performed "O Magnum Mysterium" and "Chorus Something Like a Star" in the competition. This is the first time in seven years that the choir received the superior rating, which is the highest possible evaluation a group can receive.

After having been rated for their performing capabilities, the choir had to sight-read a piece of music which they had not previously seen. Breshears reviewed the song with the choir, and after performing it, received the superior rating.

State competition for soloists and ensembles was held two weeks before the choir contest.

Conant students who received a superior rating were Bob Borer, Cassie Telford, Holley Thorsen, and Barb West. Excellent ratings were given to Daryl Anderson, John Clausen, Beverly Crane, Karen Flaxman, Joel Gluck, Ray Wolfel, and Beverly West.

The Conants and Conettes both received superior ratings for ensemble performance. A duet of Holley Thorsen and Karen Flaxman received a superior.

Last GOP Fund Raiser Slated

Ernest Oleksy, Hanover Park Republican Party fund raising chairman, isn't asking anyone to sing for their dinner at the Sunday, April 18 Republican party's Spaghetti Dinner. Just come, he urged.

Instead, Oleksy has personally pledged to render his own vocal version of "O Sole Mio" as members of the party dish out spaghetti and meatballs, french bread, cole slaw and beverages and desserts.

The dinner, the final fund raiser before the village elections April 20 will be held in the Hanover Park Firehall, Maple and Barrington Road from 1 to 5 p.m.

Family tickets may be purchased for $5, single adult tickets for $1.50 and children up to 12 years old, 75 cents. Children under four years old will be given a free spaghetti dinner.

Advance tickets may be purchased from any GOP committee member or from Mrs. Mary Lee Wissman by calling her at 837-6674.

Health Fair Is Scheduled May 8

Streamwood Elementary School in Elgin School District U46 will be participating in a "brush-in" program on April 23 and 30.

According to William Campbell, U46 director of health education and nursing services, the children in grades three through six in the school will self-apply a topical fluoride application to their teeth under the supervision of a nurse or dental hygienist.

The program is being conducted in cooperation with the Illinois Department of Health's division of dental health.

"This is a new program and not like the standard toothbrushing programs held in the district in the past," Campbell said.

He reports that other school districts throughout the state have participated in this program which has resulted in a decrease in cavities over and above the protection provided by fluoridated water. The school was selected due to its involvement in a new health education program started this year in some U46 schools.

Each child who has the written consent of his parents will be instructed in the proper manner of toothbrushing on those days. They will then brush fluoride paste on their teeth under the supervision of a nurse or dental hygienist.

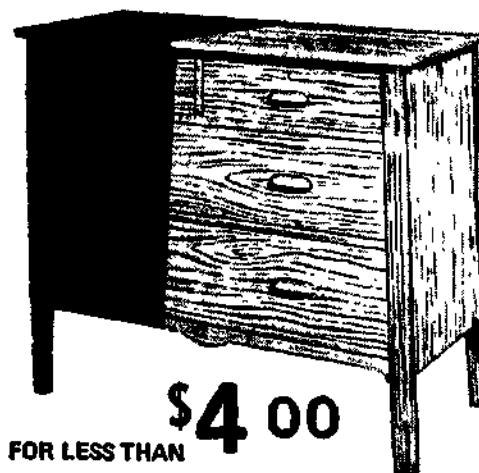

"This treatment is not 'magic' so it will not eliminate tooth decay entirely," Campbell said. "We do know that the amount of tooth decay may be decreased by this treatment, however, it does not replace regular home care and regular dental check-ups."

Walker: Suburbia Suffers

"Suburbia gets the short end of the stick in many respects from the Illinois General Assembly," Dan Walker told a political rally Tuesday.

Walker, an independent Democrat seeking the nomination for Illinois governor in next year's election, spoke to members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP), a write in slate of candidates for the Wheeling Village Board.

He called for "state government for the whole state, not just for the City of Chicago" pointing to 31 legislators who hold Chicago and Cook County patronage jobs and whose priorities center around "what's good for the Daley machine" and "what's good for the City of Chicago."

Walker, a resident of Deerfield, plans to seek the nomination for governor next March in the Democratic primary. He has said repeatedly that he will not appear before the Cook County Democratic Central committee for its endorsement.

Walker explained his reasons for refusing to seek that state making committee's endorsement as "I feel no man can say 'Mr. Mayor, can I run for governor' and then sit in the governor's chair with the kind of independence needed to run the state of Illinois."

"The issue in this election is whether the Democratic candidate for governor will be chosen by a handful of bosses or by the people in an open Democratic primary," Walker told an audience of approximately 50 people.

ADMITTING THAT the state making committee had picked some good candidates such as Paul Douglas and the two Adlai Stevensons, Walker noted that it had "slated Paul 'Shoe Box' Powell in 1964 and 1968 with full knowledge by every member of that committee of what kind of man he was."

"When I beat the Daley machine, it is going to go a long way toward cutting down Mayor Daley's dead hand over the national Democratic convention," he said.

Walker said the issues in his campaign would include the Vietnam War because money being spent to finance that war could be better used by the states.

"It is a war I has got to end. If the President won't listen to moral arguments or economic arguments, maybe if all candidates in elections on all levels make the war an issue he'll listen to the Man May Feel Like Born Loser

Steven J. Watson, 20, of 133 Newton St., Hoffman Estates, may feel like a candidate for the "born loser award" after an experience he had early Tuesday morning with Schaumburg Patrolman William Bartkavich.

Watson was in the Dunkin' Donut Shop at 451 W. Golf Rd. when the patrolman came in for coffee. Watson had asked a waitress if Schaumburg had a taxi service, and the waitress asked Bartkavich.

Patrolman Bartkavich offered Watson a ride to his destination, near Blackhawk School. While they were leaving the donut shop, Officer Bartkavich asked Watson who he was and where he was from. As the men were getting acquainted, something jarred in Patrolman Bartkavich's memory, and he rushed his station to check on outstanding warrants for arrests.

As it turned out, the police had one for Watson, charging him with driving while his license was expired. So Watson got a ride to the police station, instead of home. He was held for a court appearance later Wednesday.

political arguments," Walker said.

"I'm for law and order," Walker said, "But not just with respect to crime in the streets or student demonstrations."

He said law and order must also be enforced "in the corporate board rooms of corporations that pollute," in the legislative halls and in the government executive offices of this nation."

WALKER STRESSED that Illinois needs "People-oriented government," "business like management" and "strong leadership."

He cited numerous examples of political graft, tax dodges, and mismanagement.

"It costs the state $500 to distribute every $1,000 bonus check it gives to a Vietnam veteran. I know good and well that if you take a fine tooth comb through the state of Illinois you'll find literally hundreds of similar examples," he said.

The candidate told the Wheeling audience that he is "taking a hard look at local aid to parochial schools" rather than state aid. He said a detailed position paper on his stand on state aid was being researched.

On a third independent political party for the state he said "I hope we don't have to come to a third party in the state. I hope the Democrats and Republicans will be responsive to people politics. However, I don't foreclose the possibility that if I should lose the primary I might run as an independent."

Walker predicted that the favorites of state making committee would be "Tom Foran, George Dunne or Paul Simon, in that order."

HE SAID HE thinks Simon will run for the senate instead of the Governorship.

He said he favors home rule through "bills which gives a local community the power it needs to solve its problems but not the problems of areas outside that home rule unit."

Cancer Society Benefit Slated At Dominick's

The American Cancer Society will sponsor a Dominick's Benefit Day Wednesday April 21 at Dominick's in the Tradewinds Shopping Center in Hanover Park.

According to Mrs. Barry Crawshaw of Hanover Park who is acting as chairman of the fund drive the Cancer Society will receive five per cent of sales made by Dominick's on that day.

She explained that the Cancer Society will only receive the donation if those who make the purchase turn in identification cards to the check out clerk when they make their purchase.

Mrs. Crawshaw who resides at 7841 Kensington Ln., may be contacted at her home or by calling 467-7700.

Who will mail or give ID cards to any resident who wants to shop at Dominick's on that day and participate in the benefit.

She explained that only those purchasers who will hand in one of the ID cards will participate in the benefit, and added that all sales will not automatically benefit the cancer society.

Enters Art Contest

Frank R. Margita, 530 Springmeadow Road, Schaumburg, has entered an original painting in the 9th annual Beneditone Art Awards.

An American Federation of Arts panel will judge the entries from which 35 finalists will be selected for certificates of achievement. The top three will receive cash awards.

The paintings will be on exhibit in New York City from May 11 through May 28 at the gallery of the Manufacturer's Hanover Trust Bank.

Township School Officials Elected

Township school trustees were elected by suburban voters last Saturday during their regular school board elections.

Trustees were chosen in Elk Grove, Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Maine Townships.

In Elk Grove Township Thomas Mayernick of Elk Grove Village defeated Ned Basile, also of Elk Grove Village for a six-year term. The vote was 1,870 to 1,152.

In Palatine Township James Johnson Jr. of Palatine, who ran unopposed, got 1,187 votes. He will serve six years.

Wheeling Township voters voted for two unopposed candidates. Frank Alexander of Mount Prospect received 3,648 votes. He will serve a six-year term.

Raymond De Maertelaere of Arlington Heights got 3,311 votes. He will fill out two years of an unexpired term to which he was appointed.

William Fitzgerald of Schaumburg beat out incumbent Richard Ritchie also of Schaumburg in the Schaumburg school trustee election.

Fitzgerald got 479 votes to Ritchie's 127. Fitzgerald will serve a six-year term.

ELECTION RESULTS are not yet available in the Maine Township school trustee election. Incumbent George Scharringhausen ran unopposed for a six-year term.

Township school trustees sit on a board which holds title to property owned by schools within their township. Each board holds scheduled meetings twice a year.

The trustees also select a treasurer who is authorized to sign checks for school expenditures within their townships. In some townships they co-ordinate school district accounting.

HOP Candidates Called 'Pretenders' By GOP

The Republican Party of Hanover Park charged the Hanover's Own Party and their candidates with "deceitful practices in running for office in the upcoming April 20 village elections."

"They are pretenders," said Frank Dalla Valle Jr., GOP candidate. "They have told residents and would have them believe, that HOP is in no way responsible for the actions of the Peoples Own Party," said Dalla Valle. Incumbents Louis Barone and James Scheuber running for office under the HOP banner won election to their seats under the POP label.

"Incumbent candidates, identical campaign manager, repeat platform and pledges, same legal counsel, and all familiar faces would seem to indicate they are imposters, and HOP is really POP," Dalla Valle said.

"We have come to expect as much from this group," continued Dalla Valle. "They can change their name but they can't hide from the facts."

Dalla Valle said the HOP candidates have consistently bowed to the dictates of the village president and legal counsel.

"Never once until campaign time have the incumbents challenged the wishes of our village president; check the voting record," said Dalla Valle.

"ERRATIC, UNPLANNED annexations, without consideration to the needs and desires of the present residents, are their record," said Dalla Valle.

Dalla Valle further stated, "3-H, Miller, 3-H, 3-H — each one bringing about proposed legal suits and dissension in the village are part of that record."

He asks why the flooding problem has not been solved, where the park sites are, and if all Hanover Park children are walking to school?

He charges that the needs of the present residents are being sacrificed to future residents.

Dalla Valle insists that a look at the facts of the POP administration shows no reason to believe the HOP will be any different.

"They would have us believe they are not responsible for the calamity we've witnessed in the past two years," said Tom Evert another of the GOP candidates.

"NOW THEY tell us they are independent but their past actions show complete dependence on a POP political machine," Evert said.

Evert claims The HOP party candidates say they have been the most productive board in Hanover Park's history. "They don't seem to understand quantity doesn't mean quality," he added.

Evert said the HOP claim that the incumbents have accomplished many of their POP party goals is not true. "Does a $181,000 swimming pool justify a one million dollar sewage treatment plant and $250,000 in donations negate proper planning?" he asks.

Evert further charges that "the HOP candidates claim credit for school site donations but these are only due to the proper prodding of the citizens."

William Rietz the third candidate on the GOP slate stated that a review of the old POP platform demonstrates the incumbents lack of consistency in keeping campaign promises.

"A master plan proposed two years ago has not been delivered," he states. Rietz added "that Delegation of authority, another pledge has apparently been forfeited to the village attorney as is overwhelmingly evident at the village board session."

Rietz said improvements in the original sections have been neglected, and the subject of water meters avoided "but meters are in evidence on homes under construction at Larwin and JH developments," he added.

HE FURTHER claims Park District and School District donations are severely lacking in recent annexations.

"The MSD reclamation program has become the greatest farce exerted by the POP administration," claims Rietz.

"Human relations, and village personnel have succumbed to an all time low in the past twenty three months," charged Rietz as he insists "never has there been so much distrust existing between the people and the civil servants."

Rietz asks "are the residents justly informed of all business coming before the board?"

GOP Candidate Compares Issues

Dyrlie Rathman, Republican candidate for the Hoffman Estates village board, has compared the Democratic candidates position on election issues to the Republicans.

Strategically located public works garages have been proposed by the Democrats, a policy already adopted by the Republican administration, Rathman said.

He reminded residents that the first garage is already built next to village hall. "Open house is April 24, and everybody, Democrats included, is invited," Rathman said.

"The Democrats pulled a boo-boo by proposing a board of health to handle ecology," Rathman said. The board of health established by the current administration, has enough to do. Republicans propose a special environmental control commission, Rathman said.

The Democrats encourage public transportation, but Walter Fiene, local bus company owner, said the public has not patronized trial runs in the past, said Rathman.

The Republicans also want mass transportation, he added, but it must be a paying proposition and most people in this area would rather use their personal automobiles.

The business council was established by Republicans to attract industry to Hoffman Estates, Rathman said. The Illinois Bell building under construction at Higgins and Jones Road is an example of Republican effort, he added.

"Unfortunately attracting industry is not an overnight job," he said.

On home rule to be provided by the new state constitution, Rathman said, "let's wait until Springfield defines it specifically before committing ourselves to it."

Street lighting is needed in older sections of the village but is expensive. Bonds to install lights would have to be paid by all taxpayers in the village, Rathman said.

The present board has managed a balanced budget but the village should wait for lights until the financial situation improves, he said.

The village newsletter and weekly time slot for residents to speak up at village board meetings provide good communications between the board and citizens, Rathman said, about the Democratic proposal that communications be improved.

Other Democratic proposals do not have meaning, so Republicans hesitate to comment on them, Rathman added.

Voters should appreciate that the Democrats have called for things that Republicans proposed first or already exist, Rathman added, calling the Democratic platform a "ditto."

Hopeful Questions High Density View

Republican Diane Jensen, candidate for the Hoffman Estates Village Board, yesterday questioned the position of her Democratic opponents about high density zoning.

Referring to land in northern Hoffman Estates owned by Alderman Tom Keane and other Chicago machine figures, Mrs. Jensen asked if "the Chicago Democratic machine is trying a private approach to undermine the basic single-family character of the suburbs."

Were we now to be flooded with cheap Chicago ward votes so the village could be annexed to Daleyland politically?" she asked.

MRS. JENSEN also stated the Democrat's platform was a ditto of the GOP's. The Democrats maintain their platform reflects the desires of village residents.

The GOP recently issued a definitive financial statement of campaign income and expenditures, she added, and promised another statement after the campaign ends.

Mrs. Jensen called the Democrat's accounting of their campaign expenses "generalities, claiming poverty, looking for sympathy and denying any help from the Cook County Center."

She also accused the Democrats of closed door procedure for picking their candidates compared to the public convention the Republicans held last December where GOP candidates were selected.

GOP Hit On Finance Issue By Morrissey

Republicans are spending almost twice as much as Democrats in the Hoffman Estates election campaign, John Morrissey of Schaumburg Township Democratic Committee said.

"Yet, they have the gall to suggest we are being generously financed by non-local Democratic sources," he added.

How can anyone expect governmental integrity from the Republican candidates when they permit such false innuendos and deceptions to be made in their behalf," Morrissey said. "Their campaign director, Robert Lyons, is either entirely naive or a practitioner of gutter politics."

Morrissey said Democratic campaign expenditures will total $691, in an itemized list of expenses to date.

But the Republicans admit to expenses of nearly $1,200," he added.

Republicans will spend $450 during the campaign's last few days on phony charges and scare tactics which will come too late for Democrats to answer, Morrissey said.

Republicans have the temerity to run William Cowin for reelection on a platform denouncing high density zoning when as a trustee he consistently voted for it, Morrissey added.

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chiming.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why...I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the B B B's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

3 Homeyer Kids Taken From Home

The three children of former Wheeling policeman Ted Homeyer have been declared wards of the state, and have been removed from the Homeyer home.
Homeyer, 32, of 736 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, was charged by Arlington Heights police with aggravated battery and cruelty to children Oct. 28.
The Cook County Grand Jury March 16 declined to indict Homeyer, who had been free on $25,000 bond.
Family Court Judge John P. McGury, in a "dispositional hearing" April 7, declared the children wards of the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Service.
In taking the action, Judge McGury reportedly accepted the recommendation of a psychiatric report resulting from the examination of the children, who range in age from 10 to 13 years.
Two of the children reportedly have been placed in foster homes while the third has been placed in a foster home temporarily, awaiting placement for psychiatric treatment.
THE FAMILY COURT proceedings, which were conducted separately, but simultaneously with the criminal court proceedings, were continued to May 5 for the finalization of Judge McGury's orders.
In the original criminal charges against Homeyer, police alleged he beat his 10-year-old daughter so the child could not sit in school for two days. The police further alleged the children had been locked, occasionally for extended periods, in a small wooden box in the basement as a form of punishment.
The box was confiscated by Arlington Heights police.

AIDED BY A large megaphone, Irwin Brick, Wheeling High School band director, calls out directions to the marching band as they practiced for a nationwide marching band festival this summer in Virginia Beach, Va. Due to the warm weather and spring vacation, the band has practiced outdoors nearly every morning in the last week. The Wheeling Instrumental League is raising the funds to send the marching band to compete in the contest.

School Work Is Nearing Completion

James Whitcomb Riley Elementary School in Arlington Heights and the six-classroom addition to Eugene Field School in Wheeling are nearing completion, according to Dist. 21 Asst. Supt. John Barger.
Construction on Nathaniel Hawthorne Elementary School in Wheeling should be finished by late August, Barger said.
"Riley School is scheduled to be done soon. It is completely enclosed and the interior and electrical work are now being completed, 'although the school won't be used until the fall,' he said.
Construction on Riley School, located in the Northgate subdivision of Arlington Heights, was started nearly a year ago.
The addition to Field is "95 per cent complete," according to the assistant superintendent, but will not be used until the fall.
BARGER SAID THAT the three classrooms on the first floor will be used as a learning center. The walls dividing the three rooms have been left out to enable their use as a learning center, he explained.
They can be converted to classrooms later on, if extra classrooms are needed at Field, he said. Construction on the addition started in August.
The steel frame on Hawthorne School has been completed, as well as exterior brickwork on the first floor, Barger said. Construction work on Hawthorne, which was started last fall, is on schedule, he stated.
Both the Riley School and the Field addition are being built with funds provided by the Illinois School Building Commission. Approval to construct the two projects was granted by Dist. 21 voters in a referendum held in February, 1970.
Construction of Hawthorne School, located in the northern part of Wheeling, was authorized by Dist. 21 voters in a November, 1967, referendum.

Independent Offers Apology To Officials

Jerry Fuller, an officer in the Wheeling Independent Party, apologized to village officials yesterday for an error he had made Monday night.
Fuller had told village officials Monday that in the 1969 village election write-in candidate Hugh Sommerfeld had election credentials for poll watchers and vote challengers.
Fuller told village officials yesterday that he had been in error because the credentials Sommerfeld had were for the village flood referendum and not the village election.

Bruhn: Defeat Negative Attitudes

by ANNE SLAVICEK
Ronald Bruhn says Wheeling's greatest problem is that local citizens won't band together to work for the good of the village.
Bruhn says, "Nobody wants to live in a second rate town and if we all get the same point that we're living in a first rate town — because we are — why not build it up instead of these negative attitudes?"
A candidate for Wheeling trustee in the April 20 village election, Bruhn is running on the Active Citizen's Ticket (ACT). He has served six months on the village board as an appointed trustee filling the seat vacated by William Hart. Bruhn is seeking a full term in this election.
The candidate says he decided to apply for the village board position after a Herald reporter suggested that he might be interested in being a trustee. He is seeking election now, he says, because "If you take a job you should try to finish it."
"I think it takes at least a minimum of a year to be an effective trustee. I feel as though with the six months I do have that with a short training period I could be a very effective trustee," he said.

Bruhn is critical of people for not participating in village government. "Too many people are of the opinion that unless you know 'Joe Doe' you aren't even going to get on a commission...
"PEOPLE AREN'T supporting the village at all because they feel as if they can't do anything about it. I think the few people that we've got involved... they realize that there are things you can do."
Bruhn, who served as chairman of the village's police and fire commission before becoming a trustee, says growth and schools are the two other biggest problems facing Wheeling.
On the need for Wheeling to continue to grow he says, "We aren't a square town in the sense of boundaries. If we could ever get our boundaries square, get our town situated, find out by master plan what we really want to do, then we can start pushing for the common good of the town."
Squaring off the village boundaries would enable Wheeling to "loop your water mains so you've got good clean water, your sewer lines for maintenance, your plowing jobs — snow removal and so forth. All around it just makes for a more efficient form of government."

"If you get a big enough town you can get any transportation you might want to get into the town too, bus lines and so forth," he said.

"Right now we're in the process of tentacles going out like an octopus, going

WHIP Earns Walker's Praise

Dan Walker, an independent Democratic candidate for governor, praised the candidates of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) at a rally Tuesday.
Walker, the main speaker, said "I'm very proud to be here at this table with four gentlemen who have stuck their necks out in a very courageous race! Michael Moran, Donald Dun Duncan, Otis Hedlund and Harold Fagan.
"They're doing what more and more people across the nation are doing. This kind of politics is the complete answer to the revolutionaries in our midst because we can make our government representative by working close to home."
Walker told the Herald that he had received a telephone call trying to dissuade him from attending the rally for WHIP.

"But as you can see, I'm here. I take a dim view of anybody trying to dissuade me from speaking to any group, especially one that supports people-oriented government as I do," Walker said.
Calling the WHIP candidates "political compatriots," Walker told the WHIP supporters that instances of corruption in state government are widespread.
Walker, who is seeking the democratic nomination in next year's primary, is a former head of the Chicago Crime Commission.

This Morning In Brief

The World
Premier Chou En-lai met and talked with American table tennis players and said their visit has opened "a new chapter" in relations between Communist China and the United States. He said more Americans would be coming to further lift the Bamboo Curtain.
The Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship has advised against the use of "Here Comes The Bride" and other traditional songs at Catholic weddings. More sacred music was suggested.
Israel's counterproposal on reopening the Suez Canal was reported to have run into a snag because of U.S. delay in outlining safeguards to prevent Egyptian and Soviet troops from crossing the waterway if Israeli troops are pulled back.

The Nation
Four civilians recruited by an insurance salesman left for Laos to offer themselves as replacements for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.
President Nixon announced a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Communist China for 21 years.
Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, accused the FBI of spying on Earth Day rallies held a year ago to glorify the environment. He said Congress should set up a board to monitor all government agencies who gather intelligence on civilians.

The State
The Illinois House unanimously passed and sent to the governor legislation which would prohibit income tax accounting firms from disclosing information concerning their clients.
Highway construction in Madison and St. Clair counties will be resumed April 19 under an agreement reached by labor unions, Negro representatives and contractors in federal court in Springfield.
Four residents of the near downtown Colonial House Apartment Hotel died in a fire that swept the buildings' third floor. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $25,000.

The War

Defeat Negative Attitudes

into county land and so forth because people are approaching us to have our police and fire protection, abundant water, and so forth. We've got everything to offer so these developers are coming in. They need our services and we need them so the village can grow.

"WE'RE CRITICIZED IF we take in new areas, we're criticized if we don't take in new areas, it just depends on who lives near the new area. People from one side of town say get as much industry as you can. Something's zoned for industry and people who live right near it say 'Hey, we don't need those,'" Bruhn says. On the problem with schools, Bruhn says "We need the finest education that we can provide our children to be good citizens. Everything costs so doggone much and we want to expand. Our school taxes are so high that nobody really wants to let bond issues go through that are really necessary."

"We've just got to provide our kids the best foundation that we can because, let's face it, they're our pride and joys. Without our children I don't think any of us would particularly give a darn," Bruhn said.

"Let's not fight amongst ourselves, let's all fight for Wheeling. If the schools have a specific problem and the village can help them on it, fine. Even if we have to go down to Springfield, let's work on the problem together," he says.

The 41-year-old candidate lives at 301 E. Dennis Rd. with his wife Jean and their children John and Kimberly.

He is active in the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove United Fund, the First Illinois Drum and Bugle Corps, and Boy Scout Explorer post 212.

ANSWERING A QUESTION about the village board's handling of last summer's police strike, Bruhn said "I think they did all they could because I firmly believe that the police would have gone on strike no matter what offer they were given. . . . The police had to go on strike to prove they had teeth so they could negotiate in the future."

On flooding Bruhn said "If we could have gotten the Lord on our side in the fall I think we would have had no problems at all, but unfortunately we had an extra amount of rain and we couldn't get the banks levelled and seeded for the fall growing season."

He said the weather foiling the work is something the board has been blamed for.

He called for village, school and park board cooperation through attending each other's meetings, and said that proper planned developments are an asset to the village.

On apartments he said "a proper amount, we can't say that's all we want to build from now on, you've got to have a balance of some type." Youth problems should be solved through the youth commission and by talking to local youth.

On the village manager Bruhn explained that he thinks the new manager should be from Illinois. "I'd like to see an assistant village manager or village manager from a Cook County area" fill the post, he said.

"IT WILL PROBABLY take a minimum of four months" to hire a manager, he said.

In choosing a manager, he said the village should look for a man "who could adequately run our village in the shortest possible time."

"I don't think for the amount of money we're paying that we should run a training program," he said.

Bruhn said he would emphasize experience over education in choosing a manager. He said that the board almost hired a man in the fall, but he took another job. "We felt the new board should have a chance to pick the guy they're going to work with for the next two or four years," he said about the delay in hiring a manager.

Bruhn said he is unique as a candidate because he works in the village (as a central office repairman for Illinois Bell Telephone Co.)

He also cited his work with civic organizations and experience on the fire and police commission.

May 22 Is New Annexation Referendum Date

May 22, rather than May 8, will now be proposed for the date of the annexation referendum for the Wheeling Public Library District, according to Roger Bjorvik, attorney for the library district.

The actual date will be set by Cook County circuit court.

Bjorvik said the petition requesting the referendum will not be filed in circuit court in time for a May 8 referendum date, which was originally favored.

"The petition is all set to go. We're now preparing a map showing the boundaries of the library district and the area proposed for annexation. Once the map is ready, the petition will be filed," Bjorvik said.

He added that the petition may be filed this week.

A large area in Lake County is included in the area proposed for annexation. Included are the Lake County section of Buffalo Grove, part of Long Grove, and the communities of Prairie View, Aptakisic, Half Day and Horatio Gardens.

Voters in both the existing library district and the area proposed for annexation must approve the referendum.

Walker: Suburbia Suffers

"Suburbia gets the short end of the stick in many respects from the Illinois General Assembly," Dan Walker told a political rally Tuesday.

Walker, an independent Democrat seeking the nomination for Illinois governor in next year's election, spoke to members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP), a write-in slate of candidates for the Wheeling Village Board.

He called for "state government for the whole state, not just for the City of Chicago," pointing to 31 legislators who hold Chicago and Cook County patronage jobs and whose priorities center around "what's good for the Daley machine" and "what's good for the City of Chicago."

Walker, a resident of Deerfield, plans to seek the nomination for governor next March in the Democratic primary. He has said repeatedly that he will not appear before the Cook County Democratic Central committee for its endorsement.

Walker explained his reasons for refusing to seek that state making committee's endorsement as "I feel no man can say 'Mr. Mayor, can I run for governor' and then sit in the governor's chair with the kind of independence needed to run the state of Illinois."

"The issue in this election is whether the Democratic candidate for governor will be chosen by a handful of bosses or by the people in an open Democratic primary," Walker told an audience of approximately 50 people.

ADMITTING THAT the slate making committee had picked some good candidates such as Paul Douglas and the two Adlai Stevensons, Walker noted that it had "slated Paul 'Shoe Box' Powell in 1964 and 1968 with full knowledge by every member of that committee of what kind of man he was."

"When I beat the Daley machine, it is going to go a long way toward cutting down . . . Mayor Daley's dead hand over the national Democratic convention," he said.

Walker said the issues in his campaign would include the Vietnam War because money being spent to finance that war could be better used by the states.

"It is a war that has got to end. If the President won't listen to moral arguments or economic arguments, maybe if all candidates in elections on all levels make the war an issue he'll listen to the political arguments," Walker said.

"I'm for law and order," Walker said. "But not just with respect to crime in the streets or student demonstrations."

He said law and order must also be enforced "in the corporate board rooms of corporations that pollute," in the legislative halls and in the government executive offices of this nation."

WALKER STRESSED that Illinois needs "People-oriented government," "business like management" and "strong leadership."

He cited numerous examples of political graft, tax dodges, and mismanagement.

"It costs the state $500 to distribute every $1,000 bonus check it gives to a Vietnam veteran. I know good and well that if you take a fine tooth comb through the state of Illinois you'll find literally hundreds of similar examples," he said.

The candidate told the Wheeling audience that he is "taking a hard look at local aid to parochial schools" rather than state aid. He said a detailed position paper on his stand on state aid was being researched.

On a third independent political party for the state he said "I hope we don't have to come to a third party in the state. I hope the Democrats and Republicans will be responsive to people politics. However, I don't foreclose the possibility that if I should lose the primary I might run as an independent."

Walker predicted that the favorites of slate making committee would be "Tom Foran, George Dunne or Paul Simon, in that order."

HE SAID HE thinks Simon will run for the senate instead of the Governorship.

He said he favors home rule through "bills which gives a local community the power it needs to solve its problems but not the problems of areas outside that home rule unit."

mission and was author of the "Walker Report" on disturbances during the 1968 Democratic convention.

Talking about people-oriented government, Walker told the WHIP supporters "The sort of thing you're fighting for is going to be a primary issue statewide."

"To make democracy work you must get the people involved. That's what you're about and I'm proud of you for it and that's what I'm about. It's the kind of politics that needs no apology."

Walker told the WHIP supporters that he opposed involvement of national political parties in suburban elections.

"It tends to discourage local involvement. And the Republicans would win forever in Deerfield, (where Walker lives). I don't know how it is here in Wheeling, but I can guess," he said.

"You need Republicans and Democrats and independents involved in local parties. It's hard to get local issues into an election concentrated on the party line," he said.

Walker told the WHIP candidates that he wished them luck in next Tuesday's election. "However it turns out, with respect to people-oriented government, stay involved," he said.

TV. Appliance Store Gets Board Approval

Rezoning to allow a television and appliance sales and service store in Wheeling was recommended unanimously Tuesday evening by the Wheeling zoning board of appeals.

The store, to be operated by Cecelia and Amelia Fragassi will be located on the north side of Dundee Road immediately west of the post office.

The zoning board also recommended approval for a sideyard variation to allow the building to be built to the property line on the west. An easement will be granted to allow access to the property located north of the site.

The store will be in a two story building with offices upstairs.

Final approval for the rezoning and variation is up to the village board.

Change School Board Meeting

The Dist. 23 School Board voted at a special meeting last week to postpone its next regular meeting to next Monday.

Supl. Edward Grodzky requested the postponement because the regular date, April 12, came during the district's Easter vacation. At the upcoming meeting the new board will organize and canvass the votes of the April 10 school board election.

TWO HOMES, being built in front of Louisa May have caused confusion for local residents. Although they are being constructed on School Dist. 21 Alcott School on Bernard Drive in Buffalo Grove, though the homes are on private land, it appears property.

Site Controversy Continues

The announcement of a proposed settlement of the Buffalo Grove school site controversy has touched off a new controversy, this time about the settlement itself.

Gary Armstrong, Buffalo Grove Alliance candidate for village president, has issued a statement questioning four aspects of the settlement and again questioning the motives of Village Pres. Donald Thompson, the negotiator of the settlement.

Meanwhile, Thompson has called for an end to campaign statements about the issue saying that vocal criticism by his opponents could lead to a collapse of negotiations and leave "School Dist. 96 where it was" without a school site.

Under the tentative settlement, which still must be formally approved by Dist. 96, the village board and Levitt, the school district would buy 10 acres of land from the developer for $150,000 and the village would approve a 500-unit townhouse condominium project planned by Levitt.

IN HIS STATEMENT, Armstrong said that while "the proposed deal may well, in fact have potential for a satisfactory solution," he said that the plan commission, village board, school board and the public "will all have to take a long, hard look" at the proposal.

The unanswered questions, according to Armstrong, involve school facilities for children in the new Levitt project, parks, the details about the construction of the project and its relation to nearby property.

In a separate statement, Thompson said he was worried that criticism of the settlement could lead Levitt or Dist. 96, or both, to withdraw from negotiations and that there would still be no new Lake County school site.

He said, "we won't allow a white elephant in the village" and said that the village board will have final authority over the Levitt project.

Three New Firemen Join Department

Three new men will be sworn in as full-time firemen on the Wheeling Fire department this morning.

Robert Hoos, James Johnson, and Richard Bayne were chosen by the village police and fire commission as the new men.

The new men will bring the number of fulltime firemen in the village to nine.

Residents Mistaken On Land Ownership

A local developer is building two homes on what some Buffalo Grove residents mistakenly believe is School Dist. 21 property at the Louisa May Alcott School site on Bernard Drive.

However, John Barger, assistant superintendent for Dist. 21 told the Herald that the property, in front of the school, never belonged to the school district.

"We assumed that someday it would be developed," Barger said. "That was the way the subdivision was laid out. We didn't have any choice."

Barger also said that the builder, Joe Devaro, had offered to sell the land to the school district but the district could not meet the sale price.

According to William Dettmer, village Building Commissioner, Devaro has complied with all building regulations, taken out a building permit and paid all necessary fees.

Wheeling Trust Will Buy Tax Warrants

School Dist. 96 will sell $90,027 worth of tax anticipation warrants to the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank to make up deficits in the transportation and educational funds.

Monday the school board approved the sale of the warrants to provide additional revenue until local tax funds are received by the district. Dist. 96 Business Manager Frances Alton said the district expects to receive its first tax revenue in July.

Of the total warrants issued, $73,000 will be used to make up a deficit in the educational fund and $17,027 for a deficit in the transportation fund.

Dist. 96 Supt. William Hitzeman said that the district has usually had to sell some warrants near the end of each fiscal year to obtain additional operating revenue until additional tax money could be obtained.

United Party Slates Candidates' Coffee

The United Village Party will hold a candidates coffee open to the public this Sunday at 8 p.m. at the Buffalo Grove Golf Clubhouse.

According to Pat Maples, a party spokesman, the candidates will concentrate mainly on the problems in the newer sections of the village.

The election is Tuesday, April 20.

Anything that can be painted can be changed to take on the appearance of rich wood grain, of age-old antique or beautiful marble. The process is so simple a child could do it. Yet the realism you can achieve with Old Masters will amaze and delight you. The grand part about achieving these effects is that you don't have to remove the old finish. This means no scraping, no bleaching, no staining, and no special tools are required to obtain any of these effects. Any piece of furniture that doesn't fit its surroundings or woodwork that doesn't fit the decor can be easily changed to complement its setting. The oldest assortment of furniture and fixtures can be made to look as though they belonged to each other. Regardless of how dark or light the item is, Old Masters can completely change its appearance without removing the old finish. See how. See it demonstrated. And see how little it costs to make these amazing changes....

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why...I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Felten Cites Past Achievements As Qualification For Top Post

Kenneth Felten, independent candidate for the presidency of Buffalo Grove is standing staunchly behind his record as trustee for the last four years.
In a Herald interview Felten listed a long line of his past activities and singled out his work as chairman of the public relations committee.
"I was chairman of the public relations committee from May of 1967 to May of 1969. During that time I wrote the tenth anniversary booklet and got a village map. I prepared a village ordinance brochure and sent out a monthly news letter," he said.

During his campaign Felten has proposed a "citizens improvement request" in which every complaint would be recorded indicating the action taken and then a monthly report be submitted to the trustees. It gives the citizens the satisfaction that something is being done and that the village cares.
"IT ALSO GIVES the trustees an opportunity to see what has happened in the village so when it comes to budget time it gives the trustees a picture of what is needed," Felten said.

Felten compared his work on the public relations committee to that of the present chairman Gary Armstrong who is also running for village president.
"The only thing he has done on the public relations committee is take an ad in the Wheeling Diamond Jubilee brochure which cost the village $165," Felten said.
"Constantly the village board has asked Trustee Armstrong to get out something. In fact the last thing he promised was to have a newsletter out by Thanksgiving. Well it's Easter now and we still haven't got it," Felten said.

"HE'S ALL TALK and no action," Felten continued. "He hasn't shown the leadership on committees and I can never recall him proposing an ordinance or motion on his own."
Felten also charged that present Village Pres. Donald Thompson operates secretly and without the knowledge of the other trustees. "We are told what he wants us to hear. What we are lacking is that nothing is in writing to start off

Armstrong: Leadership By Teamwork

by PATRICK JOYCE
Gary Armstrong promises to bring a new kind of leadership, based on "teamwork," to Buffalo Grove if he is elected village president.
Armstrong, the Buffalo Grove Alliance (BGA) candidate, contrasts his style with the methods of Donald Thompson, the current village president and one of Armstrong's two opponents in the April 20 election.
"Don Thompson has been an ineffective leader; he has alienated the people," Armstrong said. Thompson's crucial failure, his opponent said, has been his effort "to run things pretty much himself."

"A good leader, an effective leader can delegate responsibility," Armstrong said. "He is smart enough to realize that he doesn't have all the answers and he works with the people who know the answers."
Armstrong said that he follows this approach in his own work as western sales manager for Rand McNally and Company in Skokie. And, he said, he would make village government "a team effort, rather than have it revolve around one man."
"THOMPSON'S 'ONE-MAN rule' has kept the village board from operating effectively, according to Armstrong, who has been a member of the board since 1969.

"I have the opinion that he negotiates with people without the knowledge of the board," Armstrong said, "but we aren't in the position to complain because we don't know what he's been doing."
Armstrong said that he's "spent a good part" of his two years on the board "learning the job," but he said that he has worked hard as chairman of the legislative committee "reviewing all the ordinances and updating those that need it. We want to codify and index the ordinances so that citizens can use them."

The committee has "put together eight to ten ordinances at my direction," Armstrong said. It is one of the two board committees that meet twice a month, he said.
"THE OTHER IS THE public relations committee also headed by Armstrong. 'I'm the only trustee who heads two committees,' he said.
On this committee, Armstrong admitted he was "somewhat less effective." The village newsletter was discontinued, he said but he "decided to wait until the village was handling the water bills "be-

Thompson: Follows Directions Set By Village

by CRAIG GAARE
Donald Thompson, incumbent village president on the United Village Party ticket, freely admits that there are some people in Buffalo Grove that don't like him.
However, he is quick to add, "We won't know how many until April 20."
"I set my head in a direction that's decided on either by the village board, or the village board in concert with the experts we get in certain fields, and that is the avenue I take and very rarely let anything sway me from one side to the other. When you act in this fashion, you must be ready to have people not like you."

Thompson said the last four years in office has taught him that "you must be ready to have people not like you. I don't think anything at this point in time that I would do or say or anything that I would accomplish would ever placate the people that don't like me. It appears from the campaign that as I go along, I either have very bitter enemies or very solid friends with very few people in the middle of the road."

Election '71
ONE OF THE ISSUES in the village that has caused much controversy and bitterness to which Thompson was referring is the school land situation in Dist. 96. Thompson was interviewed before the announcement of an apparent settlement.
"It becomes a problem of trust regarding the Dist. 96 land. I have been placed in a position as a negotiator. The terms are to be in confidence and I am working in confidence with both groups. I will not break that confidence and take a chance of blowing negotiations that might come out of it to make myself look good. Unfortunately the people choose to believe that I am doing nothing."

Thompson also outlined his reasons for seeking reelection. "I feel there is a need to continue to do something in town and

The Illinois House unanimously passed and sent to the governor legislation which would prohibit income tax accounting firms from disclosing information concerning their clients.

Highway construction in Madison and St. Clair counties will be resumed April 19 under an agreement reached by labor unions, Negro representatives and contractors in federal court in Springfield.

Four residents of the near downtown Colonial House Apartment Hotel died in a fire that swept the buildings' third floor. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $25,000.

Mum Thompson Wins It All!

by CRAIG GAARE

In a startling turn of events, Village Pres. Donald J. Thompson captured the Herald's Distinguished Politician of the 1971 Campaign award by saying nothing at Monday night's village board meeting.

Thompson, who was trailing Village Clerk Mrs. Rosalie Kaszubowski, regained first place by a 1/4 point when Mrs. Kaszubowski was not able to make the start of the meeting (minus ten points) and did not give a public explanation (minus ten more points).

It was later discovered that she had held a meeting with the election judges earlier and was finishing instructing them when the village board was called to order by Thompson. Thompson did not make any statement when he called the meeting to order but merely rapped the gavel, effectively ending Mrs. Kaszubowski's hard bit of recent meetings.

MRS. KASZUBOWSKI would only have lost ten points and been the winner if she would have offered an explanation for her absence such as "I will not be able to carry out my sworn duties to the citizens of Buffalo Grove which I solemnly undertook as clerk, because I have to talk to the election judges." With that phrase she would have easily triumphed as the distinguished politician.

By calling the meeting to order and conducting the meeting in an orderly fashion, Thompson emerged victorious. Perhaps he chose to remain silent on purpose because of his poor showing when he lost points on March 22 by insulting the Blue Birds scouting group.

In a long-awaited and unprecedented move, Trustee Henry Cimaglio scored ten points by asking for questions from the audience before the board adjourned to executive session. This apparently was Cimaglio's way of answering charges that the current village board is unresponsive to the citizens.

Outside of that, no points were scored. So the final standings and the end of the contest are: Donald J. Thompson 25 1/2 points, Mrs. Rosalie Kaszubowski 25 points, Allan Thorud 11 1/4 points, Gary Armstrong 10 points, Henry Cimaglio 10 points, and Kenneth Felten 8 1/2 points.

THE PRESENTATION of the awards will be made during intermission at next Monday night's village board meeting. It is hoped that all the trustees will be on hand and will smoke cigars that night so the small room will be smoke-filled.

In conclusion, The Herald would like to thank all of the contestants and extend to them our gratitude for expressing themselves so eloquently in true political fashion.

not to regress. Having heard the candidates that were going to run I got the feeling that there would cease to be a period of accomplishment in the town and that a lot we have accomplished would be undone and the village would regress from where it was four years ago and I can see that happening.

Thompson said growth is absolutely necessary for Buffalo Grove and added he didn't understand the logic behind proposed building moratoriums.

"In our financial condition, Buffalo Grove survives on its growth and it will be another four or five years until we can declare, if we choose, a moratorium. Unless we continue the growth forecast under the feasibility study for the bond issue the citizens would have to have fantastic water rate increases, because under the ordinance, they have to pay off the bond issue."

Thompson said the increase in services and the establishment of a full-time public works and building department was largely due to his administration.

"I HAVE MADE every effort that I possibly could to make Buffalo Grove a part of the Northwest suburban communities. In doing so, we gained a great deal of knowledge we never had before due to an isolation attitude. As a consequence everybody rode roughshod over you (in the past)."

Thompson also replied to charges that he operates in a high handed and secretive manner. "There is nothing that I have done, there is nothing that has been done in this community that those trustees have not known and that they have not voted upon and have not had the opportunity to argue with."

"WHETHER THEY admit they know about them is something else, but they (trustees) have known about every item that has happened in this municipality. The negotiations that go on between myself and various other entities are reported to them continually."

"If they want to make all the meetings I make, they are willing to do it but they choose not to and choose to sit back and take the greatest cop-out in the world. 'I didn't know.' 'Mr. Armstrong (his opponent trustee Gary Armstrong) has spent the last six weeks backpeddling for the last two years, apologizing when he did vote or saying he didn't know. And that to me is the slimmest of excuses.'"

Continuing on the subject of Armstrong, Thompson said, "I have a great deal of quarrel with Mr. Armstrong and his attitudes. Mr. Armstrong has done

Treasurer Appointed

The Buffalo Grove village board appointed a new treasurer at its regular Monday night meeting.

Mrs. Nancy E. Lindholm, a 12 year resident of Buffalo Grove, was unanimously appointed. She fills the vacancy created following the resignation of Mrs. Blanche Niemann.

Recreation Night Set

April 23 will be recreation night at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School in Buffalo Grove. The school will be open from 7 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. to enable students to play basketball, cards, ping pong and other games.

The school will be open to all Cooper students.

Felten Standing On Past Record with. If I were elected president I would give a report of all the actions or negotiations or anything that's been passing through the presidency. For instance if I had a meeting with the MSD (Metropolitan Sanitary District) I would report it to the village board so they are up on everything. Right now everything is verbal," Felten said.

Felten believes that industrial and commercial development is needed but that such development is limited because of "our sewer and water system."

Felten said the village's sewer and water system "is only good for what we've got proposed today."

HE PROPOSED that developers contribute money to the village to provide sewer and water facilities. "If they're approached, I'm sure that they would all be most willing to pay for their fair share," Felten said.

Felten said if moderate-income housing were proposed in Buffalo Grove he would "react the way the people react," but said he isn't sure which way the people would react.

"It's bound to have an effect on property values. It's pretty hard to give a definite answer on, because each thing has its own problems. You have to go through the presentation to see what it has to offer," Felten said.

Felten said that Arlington Heights Road could be fixed for $100,000 by grading it and laying a new two-inch thick layer of asphalt. "It would last about five years," Felten said and added that the builders in the area could help pay the costs because "they have an interest in that particular road."

Felten said one of the biggest mistakes in his past four years on the board is "discussing things officially without getting all the facts. In other words, I relied on Thompson's word on things, I relied on Gleeson's (trustee Robert Gleeson) word on things and I find out later that these are not true. In other words don't take anybody's word for anything."

Felten, 31, lives at 189 Raupp Blvd. with his wife Margaret and four children. He has lived in the village 12 years. He works for the federal government. He was a charter member of the Buffalo Grove Jaycees, the first president of the Buffalo Grove Recreation Association and was a member of the park commission.

Armstrong: Leadership By Teamwork

fore attempting to revive it. He hopes to include the newsletter with bills, he said.

When asked to name the village's biggest problems Armstrong mentioned the lack of a good master plan, the small tax base, flooding and Arlington Heights Road.

"We must have a new master plan as soon as possible," he said. "we've inherited a good many problems and we don't want to make the same mistakes twice."

On increasing tax revenue, Armstrong said, "One way is to try aggressively to entice industry to the community. I would appoint an industrial development commission with a trustee as a liaison. They'd determine what Buffalo Grove has to offer industry."

AS VILLAGE PRESIDENT, Armstrong said he'd try to "sell" Buffalo Grove to convince industry to locate here. Armstrong said that the village must work with other communities and the state to solve the flooding problem.

He also advocated a cooperative approach to rebuilding Arlington Heights Road and he criticized Thompson's plan to use motor fuel tax money for the rebuilding. "That would solve the Arlington Heights Road problem, but we'd end up with others in the heart of town," he said.

The motor fuel tax funds, he said, are needed to keep all the village's roads repaired.

Armstrong talked about "going to Springfield" for help and of the possibility of using general obligation bonds if state aid for road repairs does not materialize.

IN THE PAST four years, Armstrong said, "the citizens have lost confidence in village" because of problems like the building code violations and because they "have been badgered and ridiculed" at village board meetings.

To end this "alienation," Armstrong has proposed a monthly "President's Roundtable" that would bring religious leaders, school officials, business men and heads of organizations together with the village president to discuss problems. "The agenda would always be made up by one of the other leaders, never by the village president," he said.

Every three months, Armstrong said he would have a "Mayor's Breakfast" open to all residents of Buffalo Grove.

Armstrong, a resident of Buffalo Grove since 1968, lives at 274 Timberhill with his wife, Dede, and their three children. He is a graduate of Princeton University and has a master's degree from the University of Chicago.

Kilmer Principal Receives Trophy

Gary Armstrong

Norman Geske, principal of Joyce Kilmer School in Buffalo Grove, has received the George D. Young Memorial Trophy from the Northern Officials Association, an organization of football, basketball and baseball coaches in Lake, McHenry and northern Cook counties. He received the trophy at the annual association banquet.

Geske was cited for his "outstanding accomplishments and service as a football official" by the association.

The trophy he received is named for the late George D. Young, a former official in the National Football League and an official in the first Super Bowl football game.

Geske is a member of the state and national football rules committees and has been an official in area college and high school football games. He is also a contributing editor of the football case book, a supplement of the football rules book, and has spoken before local and national football rules groups.

Donald Thompson

nothing in the last two years. He was given certain responsibilities on the board. He has done nothing with them."

Thompson cited Armstrong's lack of work on the public relations and legislative committee and added "these were his responsibilities as a trustee. If you're not going to take on responsibility as trustee, believe me the responsibilities of the presidency are a great deal more complicated."

THOMPSON SAID he has always allowed citizens to speak at board meetings and gave his reason why the Strathmore Homeowners Association (SHA) could not discuss the school situation with the village board.

"The SHA were the ones that intimated possible class action against the village. This precludes any ability to discuss," he said.

"It seems very funny to me that the people who are running in opposition to me state that for the last two or four years they have been able to do nothing because Don Thompson is running the town. But Don Thompson can't vote, and Don Thompson can't introduce legislation. But when they get into Don Thompson's position where they can't vote and they can't introduce legislation, they are going to conquer the whole world. It just seems a little ridiculous."

Thompson, 40, lives at 5 Regent Ct. East, with his wife Mary and four children. He has lived in the village 11 years. Thompson is an electrical inspector for the Cook County Department of Building and Zoning.

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chiming.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why... I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Building Increases Over 1970

After one of Palatine's worst construction slumps in a decade, March figures issued by the village building and zoning department indicate a steady increase over the 1970 decline.
Building department reports show a $3,980,965 total for building permit revenues for 1970 was the second lowest since 1961, but that there has been a steady rise in permits issued since this January.
This March, $1,019,704 worth of permits have been issued. The bulk of the permits revenues came from 31 single-family residences (worth $883,059 in permits) mostly in the Hunting Ridge area and a commercial building in bank facility (worth $9,000 in permits) the Palatine National Bank plans to build at Smith and Colfax streets.
Last March, a total of $397,945 in permits were issued.
If the rate of construction continues as the March, 1971 report indicates, construction could zoom back nearer to the $15 million level as was the case in 1969.
HENRY "PETE" APIDA, commissioner of building and zoning, said he will not make predictions, but that there is a definite improvement over the 1970 decline.
During 1970, the three largest sources of the $5.9 million intake were single-family residences (96), multi-family dwellings (one building with 96 units) and commercial developments (five).
Most of the 96 homes built last year, which represented $2.5 million in permit revenue, were located in the Hunting Ridge and Reseda subdivisions.
The one multi-family dwelling was Centex-Winston Development Corporation's condominium in the Willow Creek development. Permits issued valued $933,000.
A MEDICAL BUILDING also in Willow Creek, a dental clinic at Leonard Drive and Palatine Road, a 7-11 Food Store at Palatine and Quentin roads, a gas station and the village transportation center totaled $227,200 in permits issued for commercial development in Palatine last year.
The $5.9 million low in 1970 can be seen by comparing permits issued for construction in other years. They are: $15,139,702 for 1969, $15,412,061 for 1968, $10,153,125 for 1967, $5,461,533 for 1966, $7,662,638 for 1965, $6,560,758 for 1964, $10,918,016 for 1963, and $8,442,790 for 1962.

KARATE BLACK belt holder Jesse Gallegos chops a two inch thick board in half with the side of his hand in an exhibition at the American Legion Hall. Gallegos currently teaches a course in karate at the hall every Wednesday night to the Palatine police and local residents. Holding the board for Gallegos are green belt holders Lee Brown and Wayne Scholtz who assist in teaching the courses, which now includes 11 students.

Hi-EEEEAH! More Than Just A Word

by JIM HODL
Karate is much more than just slicing oak boards in half with the side of your hand.
According to Jesse Gallegos, holder of the black belt, karate is really coordination and mind and body training.
Gallegos is currently teaching karate in Palatine every Wednesday evening with his wife and assistants. Classes begin in the American Legion Hall at 7:30 p.m. and anybody can attend. Currently, several members of the Palatine Police Department are receiving instruction from Gallegos.
Classes are $2.50 each or five classes for $10. Police, however, can attend free.
Gallegos said he teaches a student at the rate he can learn. When the student is only in competition with himself, he can learn at a more relaxed pace.
When beginning to learn karate, coordination is stressed the most by the instructor, Gallegos said. When this is learned, the mind and body techniques are brought into the instruction.
Coordination consists of training body movements and leverage. This is important later, when the students learn to throw an opponent.
Gallegos said that in order to be good at karate, you must first decide to fight. When this state is reached in the mind,

A Herald Editorial

Eilering, Gamoran, Jessen Are Wise Choices For Library Posts

For the Palatine Library Board election Tuesday The Herald recognizes the qualifications of Mabel Eilering, Judith Gamoran and Robert Jessen.
We believe a vote for these three candidates is a wise choice. We also believe construction of a new library in the near future is inevitable and mandatory. The candidates hold the same belief.
On the basis of his specific ideas for enlarging the library facilities, we believe Jessen should be supported to a four-year term on the board, even though he's unopposed in the election.

As a practicing architect he already has demonstrated the professional guidance he can lend the board. His idea that a new library should be centrally located and away from major arterial streets is one we believe to be sound.
In regard to planning a new library both Mrs. Eilering and Mrs. Gamoran, seeking full six-year terms, also have shown the necessary thinking to meet the needs of the community.
Mrs. Eilering, who is currently serving as president of the library board, is in a position to continue leading the way toward a solid expansion proposal which will meet with the public's approval.

Her experience on the board for the past eight years especially during two referendum failures will provide the library board with adequate insight for the next time it must ask the public's approval.
Although Mrs. Gamoran is a newcomer to public office, her knowledge of libraries and particularly the services at Palatine's library promises to mean an enthusiastic and tireless worker will be added to the board if she's elected.
We feel her qualifications and energy override her inexperience as a public official.

We also admire her independence in seeking election to the board without help from an organized party.
Library boards are meant to be non-partisan. It is required in our state statutes, but the Palatine Republican Party continues to enter the library election. Although the party does not endorse candidates, which would be illegal, it does give its support to a selected few.
Both Mrs. Eilering and Jessen are running with Republican help but both have indicated they'd prefer to be independents. Each has said they sought the party's support because they did not believe they could be re-elected without it.

We sympathize with that belief but hope it will be changed this year by the election of Mrs. Gamoran.
The other candidate running with Republican support is Thomas Smith, who also is helping the GOP campaign for village board seats.
We believe this strong affiliation with the party overshadows his possible qualifications as a library board member.

School Board Result Good

by MARGE FERROLI

Candidates in last week's Dist. 15 board of education election had to run pretty hard to win. There was more competition than in many previous years, with six men seeking four seats.

The winners, incumbents Howard Meadors, J. Leslie Ehringer and Bud Gibbs, and newcomer Everett Charlier, were probably not elected by complacent voters. The selection of candidates the voters had almost forced them to do some serious thinking about each man.

However, the solid victories and substantial margins piled up by the three incumbents does indicate satisfaction on the part of the voters with the past performance of the Dist. 15 board.

Perhaps the overriding issue of the campaign and the election was finances, and each candidate felt the state should contribute a large share of money for the operation of local school districts, primarily through a return of state income tax receipts.

Meadors, an Inverness resident who has served the Dist. 15 board for 15 years, suggested that, besides the board's primary concerns with finances and anticipating growth, each board member begin to make a stronger effort in informing state and national legislators of the needs of the district.

"The success of our country depends largely upon how good a job we do in educating our students," he said, emphasizing that cooperation and communication on all levels must be worked out to help achieve the best possible educational result.

AS A PAST resident of Winston Park in Palatine and currently living in Rolling Meadows, Ehringer has the capacity to reflect the views of a variety of residents in Palatine Township. His major concern in seeking reelection was to see the fulfillment of a total junior high curriculum, including home economics and industrial arts programs, and the completion of a long range 10-year growth plan to guide the district in its purchasing of school sites and building construction.

"The main emphasis of Dist. 15 should be constantly updating curriculum," Ehringer said. Through continued expansion of programs such as industrial arts and special education, the district will meet the needs of each individual student, not merely thrust upon the student what is deemed necessary for him.

Gibbs, a Rolling Meadows resident who sought election to a two-year seat on the board unopposed, feels that school districts should work together to solve problems locally, although he certainly would welcome more state funds for the schools if the state would be generous enough to provide them.

As the Dist. 15 representative to the Northwest Educational Cooperative, he has always worked for the sharing of ideas and solutions to problems and strongly recommended the district continue its association with NEC.

His boots are often muddier than those of other board members. Being chairman of the new building committee, he looks over the land market and stumps around potential school sites in shopping for land acquisitions for the district and planning for growth.

Elected to his first term as a board member, Charlier represents an element the Dist. 15 board has previously been lacking. By profession, Charlier is a teacher, and has worked for many years with Arlington Heights Elementary Dist. 25 in closed circuit television programming.

"I'M REALLY excited about the challenge of the job," Charlier said after the election, explaining his work on the board will open to him a new facet of education by being on the administration side of the fence.

"My primary interest is being on the board as a parent and interested citizen," he said, "but as an educator, I should be able to supply a different viewpoint in the policy-making responsibility of the board."

In the election, voters chose for themselves a man with a law degree who is an associate in a management consultant firm in Meadors, a man who has traveled in all parts of the world as a sales manager for United Air Lines in Ehringer, a man with years of experience in sales with a feel for the economy in Gibbs, and a man who knows the business of teaching and dealing directly with students in Charlier.

Based on these backgrounds, voters can probably consider themselves well represented on the Dist. 15 board in the next few years.

From The Library

by the staff of the Palatine Public Library

There are at least seven men in Palatine we know of who would like to know what will happen this Tuesday. Perhaps they should read Kevin Martin's "The Complete Gypsy Fortune-Teller," which explains how the future may be predicted through cards, tea leaves, palmistry, crystal balls, astrology and dreams. It is one of many new books available at the Palatine Public Library this week.

Life between the two world wars is examined in "The American Heritage: History of the 20's and 30's." The changes that occurred in the American life style and the types of people who immigrated to this country are especially chronicled.

American life in the 20th century is a reality, but not quite the way it was predicted during the last century. Brosseau and Andrist present a collection of magazine articles published from 1895 to 1905 predicting how this century would develop in "Looking Forward."

Did you hear the one about the bald-headed lady who starred in a hair dye commercial? She had hair before the advertising people started to film the commercial. This is one of many tales about advertising related in "Down the Tube," a book taking a light but informative look at Madison Avenue.

"AMERICAN JOURNEY: the Times of Robert Kennedy" examines the former senator's way of life with his funeral train as the focal point. The book is based on interviews by Jean Stein that were edited by George Plimpton.

VIP Candidate Is Hospitalized

Fred Zajonc, a Village Incumbent Party (VIP) candidate for the village board, was hospitalized Wednesday.

Zajonc was admitted to St. Alexius Hospital in Elk Grove Village on Wednesday for tests and observation.

A hospital spokesman said he is reported to be in good condition and should be released within the next few days.

Zajonc, 56, lives with his wife Margret at 311 E. Norman Dr. They have three children.

dezhda Mandelstam, a Russian poet, tells of his being purged by Stalin in "Hope Against Hope: A Memoir."

Religious films are examined as a powerful new means of mass communication of the word of God in Neil P. Hurley's "Theology Through Film." Young people's interest in Yoga, Zen, Krishnamurti, Transcendental meditation and Tibetan Lamas is chronicled by Jacob Needleman in "The New Religions."

E. D. Fales Jr. explains the fine points of diving in "The Book of Expert Diving." He also tells of the latest findings concerning underwater safety and spells out how to meet common and uncommon emergencies.

BOSTON CELTICS star Bob Cousy explains how to improve one's game of basketball in "Basketball: Concepts and Techniques." Alec Velmann writes of how international road racing in automobiles came to America in "The Sebring Story."

Finally, the life of Herbert Hoover is told in his own words in "Herbert Hoover's Challenge to America." An interesting book to read, its preface is by another former president, Harry S. Truman.

Rash Of Brush Fires Plague Firemen Here

Palatine firemen have been plagued with a rash of brush fires this month, and particularly during the weekend.

Orville Helms, fire chief, has reported one fire on April 4, one on April 5, two on April 8, three on April 9, ten on April 10 and two yesterday.

He added that the brush fires have been comparatively small in size and located largely outside the village limits. Fires were reported in all outlying areas of Palatine, and a few have occurred in Palatine.

He said the major cause of the brush fires has been carelessness. Outdoor burning is illegal, Helms said, but residents of Palatine and the Township are apparently violating it. He warned that village offenders are subject to a $1 to $100 fine if caught, and residents of unincorporated areas could be fined by the Cook County Pollution Control Board.

"This is the worst time of the year for brush fires," Helms said. With the dry weather and "dead" grass in the early spring, Helms cautioned people to avoid outdoor burning unless it is officially sanctioned.

He added that a portion of the fires are set by vandals and police have apprehended some youngsters accused of starting brush fires.

Theater Opening Set For June 29

There won't be a bad seat in the house June 29 when the new, legitimate theater-in-the-round opens at Arlington Park.

The theater, located immediately adjacent to the hotel, began to assume a recognizable form last week as workmen put the steel girders and beams into place.

Patrons to the opening production will not be more than eight rows away from Joan Fontaine, who will star in Alan Ayckbourne's "Relatively Speaking." The circular stage will be ringed by about 730 seats, providing a "cozy" and "intimate" theater.

Karen Alton, director of publicity, advertising and promotion for the theater, said the success of the operation will depend on the support from local residents.

"It won't be enough for them to say 'Joan Fontaine is there, isn't that nice,' they're going to have to come out if the theater is to succeed," she said.

MISS ALTON SAID the theater located in the hotel complex will make it very convenient for area residents to enjoy an evening out, including dinner and a show. She noted the nearest "star-system" theater currently is the Ivanhoe Theater in St. Charles. The proximity of the new theater, coupled with the unlimited parking and both before and after-theater facilities at the hotel should attract patrons, she said.

An enclosed breezeway, connecting the theater with the hotel, is expected to be completed before the theater opens.

The theater building will also have an outdoor patio area and foyer where drinks will be served prior to the beginning of performances and at intermission.

Productions, which will each run six or eight weeks, will be performed eight times a week, at 8:30 p.m., Tuesday through Thursday; at 6 p.m., and 9:30 p.m., Saturday and at 7 p.m., Sunday. Wednesday matinees will be scheduled from 2 p.m. The box office will be open from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Tuesday through Sunday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday, when the theater is closed.

The theater will be managed and plays produced by David Lonn and Charles Booth, both local residents. Booth helped develop the Ivanhoe Theater and produced plays there from 1966 to 1968. Lonn has studied at the Royal Academy in London where he helped adapt Tennessee Williams plays for the British Broadcasting Co.

the battle is half won.

STUDENTS ARE THEN taught the basic body locks of karate and how to counter the other person's locks by hitting vulnerable areas.

Conditioning is also important to being proficient at karate, Gallegos said. Students of karate are taught various breathing exercises and the use of dynamic tension. Being able to flex one's muscles and let some parts of the body go soft are just as important as developing true power in karate.

In teaching the police, Gallegos said he instructs them how to disarm or subdue a person without hurting him. He pointed out that karate is becoming one of the tools of the law officer.

He also said that karate is not as easy as it looks in the movies, where a spy or somebody jumps out and knocks another man out with one chop to the neck.

"I was at a karate exhibition once where one man took a hard chop to the neck and only got a bruise," Gallegos said.

Karate can also be taught to handicapped people, Gallegos said. Once, he and his wife taught karate to some blind children and one child was especially helped. She could walk better than before, due to the coordination lessons.

Gallegos said he can teach the average person the basics of karate in about three months. However, he pointed out that it takes much longer to earn a black belt.

GALLEGOS BEGAN learning karate 11 years ago, and it took him two years to earn his black belt. Since then, he has worked his way up to the black belt's third degree, Sandan. His wife, who also practices karate, took five years to earn her black belt.

A resident of West Chicago, Gallegos now operates his own karate school, the American Okinawan Karate Association. The school is located in the Aurora YMCA. However, he also teaches special classes around the area outside of his headquarters.

Prior to becoming a karate instructor, Gallegos was a foreman at All Steel Equipment Co., a manufacturer of office furniture. Until recently, karate was only Gallegos' hobby.

In the future, Gallegos said he would like to teach his Palatine classes at the Countryside YMCA's proposed new building.

Gallegos has long been associated with the Aurora YMCA and is one of the Y's biggest supporters. In 1970, he was named winner of a membership drive at Aurora for bringing in 40 new members.

Library To Close

For Special Meetings

The Rolling Meadows Library will be closed to the public at various times during the next few days for special meetings.

Because the library is hosting the monthly meeting of the North Suburban Library System on Tuesday, the building will be closed from 3 to 6 p.m. The library will also be closed from 9 to 10:30 a.m. Saturday because of a staff meeting.

A special library board of trustees meeting will also be held at 8 p.m. Friday at the library. Board members will make preliminary plans for remodeling the basement area of the library to allow for expansion of the juvenile section.

The Friends of the Library, a group of Rolling Meadows residents that sponsors a number of fund-raising activities for the library, will meet at 8:30 p.m. Tuesday at the library to discuss the annual fund drive, which will begin May 15.

Library Slates 2 Film Showings

A Junior Art Fair for Rolling Meadows boys and girls in first through eighth grades will be held at the Rolling Meadows Library April 25 as part of the library's recognition of National Library Week.

All entries must be made at the library by 5 p.m. April 23. Works in all phases of art, including drawing, sculpture and carving, will be accepted for the fair.

Winners will be announced at 2:30 p.m. April 25. Entries will be judged by three local residents involved in art. Each student entering a project will receive a certificate for participating. Outstanding entries will be rewarded with a book to be presented to the child's school library with the name of the donor imprinted.

Last year there were over 200 entries in the Junior Art Fair. The projects will be displayed in the Children's Room of the library.

Circus Site Will Be Department Store Lot

When the Palatine Township Youth Organization (PTYO) sponsored circus comes to town, it will pitch its tents in the parking lot of the Zayre's Department Store, 1300 E. Northwest Hwy., Palatine.

According to Jackie Shayne, a PTYO vice president, the use of the lot for the Hoxie Brothers Circus on June 1 was gained for the group by Palatine Mayor John Moodie.

Moodie, she said, had been trying to get PTYO use of some land behind Zayre's, but he obtained for them use of the store's lot on June 1 instead. PTYO has also been trying to gain use of land near Fremd High School for Dist. 211.

Dist. 211 Supt. Richard Kolze told PTYO it could use the land near Fremd only if it could not find usable land elsewhere. He said the district's objection was that school would be in session on the day of the circus.

PTYO is an area teen group working to build a teen center called "The Joint" on the old Levee ranch in north Palatine. It is bringing the Hoxie Brothers Circus to Palatine on June 1 as one of its many fund raising activities to help remodel the ranch site.

LAST FEBRUARY, PTYO signed a contract with the circus to appear in the village. Since then, the group had been looking for a site to hold the circus.

The Zayre's parking lot meets all the requirements for a circus site. It contains more than 25,000 square feet of surface area. It has adequate parking facilities and is near a fire hydrant.

PTYO could not use its ranch site for the circus since it was too hilly and a fire hydrant is not located nearby.

Miss Shayne said the circus will present two performances on June 1. It will present a matinee at 4 p.m. and an evening performance at 7 p.m.

Tickets for the circus are now on sale. Adult fare is $2 and children's tickets cost $1.50. School children attending the matinee will pay $1 per ticket.

Currently, PTYO is considering moving its ticket headquarters from an office at 21 N. Brockway St. in Palatine to a location inside Zayre's.

Theater Part

Pamela E. Schalk of Palatine recently took part in three performances of "Readings From Great Literature" at Grinnell College in Grinnell, Iowa.

She took part in the performances, held in Grinnell's Hallie Flanagan Arena Theatre, as part of her Acting and Directing I class.

Miss Schalk, a 1970 graduate of Fremd High School, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James J. Schalk, 619 Bennett Ave.

Seek Chamber Director

Dobby Dobkin, president of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce, said he hopes his organization will have an executive director within the next 30 to 50 days.

The Chamber, serving about 160 local businesses and industries, has been without an executive director since its first full-time director, Kenneth P. Eriksen of Eriksen Insurance Agency, resigned last January. His resignation was based on personal reasons.

Dobkin said the Chamber has set aside a $5,200 per year salary for a part-time director, and between $10,000 and $12,000 annually for a full-time director. The Chamber prefers a full-time director, however, he added, Eriksen was making a base annual salary of $15,000.

Recently the Chamber sent out letters to the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the Illinois Employment Bureau in search of a director.

DOBKIN SAID SEVERAL prospective directors have been interviewed "but we just haven't been able to come up with the right kind of individual."

He said the Chamber needs a director to oversee all C of C operations, coordinate committees and head Chamber projects. Another responsibility of the executive director will be to secure new memberships.

In other business, the Chamber is planning to publish a 30-page booklet shortly which will be of aid to those who are considering moving their families or businesses to Palatine.

Only 30 Show For Town Meeting

Only a handful of people turned out for the 1971 Palatine Township annual meeting.

This year, only about 30 electors were present to approve the annual town reports, ratify three motions from the floor, and discuss the 1971-72 town budget. Last year more than 300 electors crowded into Gray Sanborn School, Palatine, to discuss the first township tax levy.

This year's town meeting was held in Cardinal Drive School, Rolling Meadows. Township attorney Roger Bjorvik served as moderator.

The major motion passed at this year's meeting concerned the appointment of a non-partisan committee to study structural and functional modernization of the appropriation of township money.

MADE BY MRS. ALICE DIVINEY of Palatine, the motion recommended that the township board of auditors appoint the committee. Later, the committee would report to the board.

Mrs. DiViney pointed out that only 23 per cent of the population lives in the unincorporated areas, which township government serves. She charged that township taxes collected in municipal areas support services in unincorporated areas.

In the case of the township highway department, only half of the taxes collected in municipalities for roads are returned to the municipal road departments.

In another motion, Mrs. Ann Scollay asked that when the $39,554.41 tied up in the American National Bank due to the collector's suit is returned to the township, it be used to abate the 1971-72 tax levy. This motion also carried unanimously.

MRS. SCOLLAY ALSO moved that the township publish a detailed financial report in the Herald listing payments made by the township and those who received the money. After some debate, the motion was changed to making payment lists available at the Town Hall.

A proposed town budget for the 1971-72 fiscal year was also presented to the electors. Totaling $125,000, the budget included $18,000 to complete the addition to the Town Hall and $40,000 for the Palatine Township Youth Committee. Also included was $11,000 for the mental health referendum held last February.

Mrs. Scollay complained about the $11,000 election bill, stating that while the electors approved of the referendum last year, it did not approve of the use of paid judges.

Another resident asked why, with money so tight, the township is asking for $18,000 to complete the addition to the Town Hall. Township supervisor Howard Olsen said it was included due to inflation. He said completion would only have cost $16,000 last year and it would probably cost more than $18,000 next year.

The budget was not changed and will be in written form at the Town Hall today. A public hearing on the budget will be held on May 17.

Items in the budget include $25,800 for town officer's salaries, $11,000 for elections, $27,000 for Town Hall expenses, $10,900 for town officer's expenses, $850 for cemeteries, and $4,200 for contingencies.

Biology Teacher Attends Conference

Mrs. Gwendolyn Staveley Hamlen, a biology teacher at Stuart R. Paddock School in Palatine, participated in a seminar last weekend on "Applications of Basic Biology" held at Indiana University.

Designed to improve biology teaching by acquainting teachers with new techniques and materials, the seminar allowed each of the 35 participants to work with well-known biologists in laboratory investigations. The seminar was funded by the National Science Foundation and sponsored by the National Association of Biology Teachers.

The participants were representatives of Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin and Ohio.

Coo-Coo Bird Is No Homer; Garage Pigeon Named Ralph

by WANDALYN RICE

Ralph the homing pigeon is lost. And since Saturday he has been lost in the garage at 908 W. Burr Oak Dr., which belongs to the Edward Forrest family of Arlington Heights.

The pigeon arrived right after lunch Saturday and has been occupying himself ever since cooing at his image in a mirror and eating rice and bread the family offers.

The Forrests finally got close enough to him to read the numbered tag on his leg — about the same time they christened him Ralph.

After calls to animal shelters and pigeon fancier societies, they finally received a call from a man who said he owned Ralph. Mrs. Forrest said "He said he's been sick and couldn't come to get him," she said. The man said he lived in Elk Grove Village, but failed to give his name or telephone number.

"IT'S REALLY getting a little much," she added. "We can't put the car in the garage and it's starting to smell in there."

Tuesday, in desperation Mrs. Forrest asked for help in ridding herself of the feathered friend. On Tuesday afternoon she called the Anti-Cruelty Society to try to arrange for his departure.

Meanwhile, her three children entertained themselves watching Ralph. "We've had turtles and goldfish," Mrs. Forrest said, "but I never thought we'd have a pigeon, especially one who is supposed to be good at finding his own way and is lost in my garage."

3 Homeyer Kids Taken From Home

The three children of former Wheeling policeman Ted Homeyer have been declared wards of the state, and have been removed from the Homeyer home.

Homeyer, 32, of 716 N. Mitchell Ave.

Arlington Heights was charged by Arlington Heights police with aggravated battery and cruelty to children Oct. 28.

The Cook County Grand Jury March 16 declined to indict Homeyer, who had been free on $25,000 bond.

Family Court Judge John P. McGury, in a "dispositional hearing" April 7, declared the children wards of the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Service.

In taking the action, Judge McGury reportedly accepted the recommendation of a psychiatric report resulting from the examination of the children, who range in age from 10 to 13 years.

Two of the children reportedly have been placed in foster homes while the third has been placed in a foster home temporarily, awaiting placement for psychiatric treatment.

New License Fee Set For Vending Machines

The Rolling Meadows City Council approved an ordinance which changes the license fees for coin-operated vending and service machines located in the city.

The ordinance establishes an annual license fee of $1 for coin-operated machines from one cent to four cents and is graduated to the top of $50 for licensing cigarette machines.

City Atty. James Watson said the former ordinance allowed establishments which contained a hundred coin-operated machines to pay only $30 for all of them. The minimum license was formerly $5.

Rubloff Co. Inquires About Land Zoning

Arthur Rubloff and Co. representatives have contacted city officials regarding use of 40 acres of land near Chempex in the Rolling Meadows industrial park.

The inquiry was concerning zoning for the land which may be used for construction of a multi-story office building.

$22,950 Steel Bid Approved By Council

Fearing an increase in steel prices this year, the Rolling Meadows city council has elected to "get the structural steel work under contract" and approved $22,950 for the steel for the three-story addition of city hall.

Mayor Roland Meyer said there may be a strike or a price increase June 1, according to reports. He said steel erectors are not affected by a strike. Jones, Brown and Company was the successful bidder on the steel work which is expected to begin sometime this year.

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.

"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why... I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."

Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.

"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.

AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.

She gave it to him.

But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).

These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.

Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."

"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."

"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest."

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.

"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."

"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.

"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.

Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

How Progressive Is City? Police Attorney Inquires

An attorney for the Combined Counties Police Association (CCPA) used the Rolling Meadows motto, "Progress Thru Participation," to argue the right of 16 city patrolmen to be represented by the CCPA, a collective bargaining agency.

Atty. Arthur Loevy's pleas went unanswered at Tuesday's city council meeting, and according to Loevy, future action will be taken in an attempt to gain recognition of his agency as the sole representative of the patrolmen at the bargaining table.

Sixteen of the city's twenty patrolmen voted to join the CCPA a month ago in an attempt to gain benefits with help from their professional bargaining agency. Recognition of the CCPA has not been approved by city council.

"Loevy asked city officials to stand by their slogan, 'Progress thru Participation.' 'Most communities considered it progressive to have bargaining agencies for city employees.'"

He asked for what he called progress for the police department through participation of the council in the bargaining procedure.

"16 PATROLMEN have decided they need assistance of a professional council for collective bargaining, settlements and grievance procedure," Loevy said. "It's a basic simple request... and it's not your right to decide which organization will bargain with you."

Loevy told the council of a telephone conversation Monday with Mayor Roland

Meyer. Meyer said the majority of the aldermen felt no need to meet with the CCPA and recognition of the organization is denied, according to Loevy's account of the conversation.

During his 20 minute speech to the council, the attorney said there is no question of the legality of a bargaining agency representing the patrolmen. He also said there are no paid officials of the organization and the CCPA is not for the concept of strike.

An alderman said after the meeting that the city license, police and health committee, is already established to hear patrolmen's grievances and this was the reason he felt the request was denied.

First ward alderman candidate Charles Boyer, in attendance at the council meeting, spoke to the council and said "this is one of the issues I have been campaigning on... when a man asks for an audience and is not recognized."

BOYER SUGGESTED giving the officers an audience and a chance to present the proposal. "Then if you decide not to recognize the CCPA—do it on your own. 'I'm disgusted with the lack of participation. At least one alderman might have had a question,' Loevy said after his presentation."

He said the CCPA represents more than 1,000 police officers in 20 municipalities of Cook and Lake Counties. Patrolmen in a number of area municipalities including Palatine, are represented by the CCPA, he said.

Council Approves Road Work Funds

Funds for use in spring street maintenance programs were approved by the Rolling Meadows City Council.

A total of $90,000 was allocated for Barker Avenue extension from Central Road to Algonquin. The money also will be used for curb and gutter and storm work along the new road.

City officials said construction will be completed in September for use by Willow Bend School traffic.

More than $30,000 has been approved for repairs to Jay Lane and East Frontage Road along with other secondary roads in the city. The work will not begin until May 1.

A storm sewer will be installed along Wilke Road this year and officials have approved $2,545 for the project.

Hi-EEEAH! More Than Just A Word

by JIM HODL

Karate is much more than just slicing oak boards in half with the side of your hand.

According to Jesse Gallegos, holder of the black belt, karate is really coordination and mind and body training.

Gallegos is currently teaching karate in Palatine every Wednesday evening in the American Legion Hall at 7:30 p.m. and anybody can attend. Currently, several members of the Palatine Police Department are receiving instruction from Gallegos.

Classes are $2.50 each or five classes for $10. Police, however, can attend free.

Gallegos said he teaches a student at the rate he can learn. When the student is only in competition with himself, he can learn at a more relaxed pace.

When beginning to learn karate, coordination is stressed the most by the instructor, Gallegos said. When this is learned, the mind and body techniques are brought into the instruction.

Coordination consists of training body movements and leverage. This is important later, when the students learn to throw an opponent.

Gallegos said that in order to be good at karate, you must first decide to fight. When this state is reached in the mind, the battle is half won.

STUDENTS ARE THEN taught the basic body locks of karate and how to counter the other person's locks by hitting vulnerable areas.

Conditioning is also important to being proficient at karate, Gallegos said. Students of karate are taught various breathing exercises and the use of dynamic tension. Being able to flex one's muscles and let some parts of the body go soft are just as important as developing true power in karate.

In teaching the police, Gallegos said he instructs them how to disarm or subdue a person without hurting him. He pointed out that karate is becoming one of the tools of the law officer.

He also said that karate is not as easy as it looks in the movies, where a spy or somebody jumps out and knocks another man out with one chop to the neck.

"I was at a karate exhibition once where one man took a hard chop to the neck and only got a bruise," Gallegos said.

Karate can also be taught to handicapped people, Gallegos said. Once, he and his wife taught karate to some blind children and one child was especially helped. She could walk better than before, due to the coordination lessons.

"Gallegos said he can teach the average person the basics of karate in about three months. However, he pointed out that it takes much longer to earn a black belt."

GALLEGOS BEGAN learning karate 11 years ago, and it took him two years to earn his black belt. Since then, he has worked his way up to the black belt's third degree, Sandan. His wife, who also practices karate, took five years to earn her black belt.

A resident of West Chicago, Gallegos now operates his own karate school, the American Okinawan Karate Association. The school is located in the Aurora YMCA. However, he also teaches special classes around the area outside of his headquarters.

Prior to becoming a karate instructor, Gallegos was a foreman at All Steel Equipment Co., a manufacturer of office furniture. Until recently, karate was only Gallegos' hobby.

In the future, Gallegos said he would like to teach his Palatine classes at the Countryside YMCA's proposed new building.

Gallegos has long been associated with the Aurora YMCA and is one of the Y's biggest supporters. In 1970, he was named winner of a membership drive at Aurora for bringing in 40 new members.

School Board Result Good

by MARGE FERROLI

Candidates in last week's Dist. 15 board of education election had to run pretty hard to win. There was more competition than in many previous years, with six men seeking four seats.

The winners, incumbents Howard Meadors, J. Leslie Ehringer and Bud Gibbs, and newcomer Everett Charlier, were probably not elected by complacent voters. The selection of candidates the voters had almost forced them to do some serious thinking about each man.

However, the solid victories and substantial margins piled up by the three incumbents does indicate satisfaction on the part of the voters with the past performance of the Dist. 15 board.

Perhaps the overriding issue of the campaign and the election was finances, and each candidate felt the state should contribute a large share of money for the operation of local school districts, primarily through a return of state income tax receipts.

Meadors, an Inverness resident who has served the Dist. 15 board for 15 years, suggested that, besides the board's primary concerns with finances and anticipating growth, each board member begin to make a stronger effort in informing state and national legislators of the needs of the district.

"The success of our country depends largely upon how good a job we do in educating our students," he said, emphasizing that cooperation and communication on all levels must be worked out to help achieve the best possible educational result.

AS A PAST resident of Winston Park in Palatine and currently living in Rolling Meadows, Ehringer has the capacity to reflect the views of a variety of residents in Palatine Township. His major concern in seeking reelection was to see the fulfillment of a total junior high curriculum, including home economics and industrial arts programs, and the completion of a long range 19-year growth plan to guide the district in its purchasing of school sites and building construction.

"The main emphasis of Dist. 15 should be constantly updating curriculum," Ehringer said. Through continued expansion of programs such as industrial arts and special education, the district will meet the needs of each individual student, not merely thrust upon the student what is deemed necessary for him.

Gibbs, a Rolling Meadows resident who sought election to a two-year seat on the board unopposed, feels that school districts should work together to solve problems locally, although he certainly would welcome more state funds for the schools if the state would be generous enough to provide them.

As the Dist. 15 representative to the Northwest Educational Cooperative, he has always worked for the sharing of ideas and solutions to problems and strongly recommended the district continue its association with NEC.

His boots are often muddier than those of other board members. Being chairman of the new building committee, he looks over the land market and stumps around potential school sites in shopping for land acquisitions for the district and planning for growth.

Elected to his first term as a board member, Charlier represents an element the Dist. 15 board has previously been lacking. By profession, Charlier is a teacher, and has worked for many years with Arlington Heights Elementary Dist. 25 in closed circuit television programming.

"I'M REALLY excited about the challenge of the job," Charlier said after the election, explaining his work on the board will open to him a new facet of education by being on the administration side of the fence.

"My primary interest is being on the board as a parent and interested citizen," he said, "but as an educator, I should be able to supply a different viewpoint in the policy-making responsibility of the board."

In the election, voters chose for themselves a man with a law degree who is an associate in a management consultant firm in Meadors, a man who has traveled in all parts of the world as a sales manager for United Air Lines in Ehringer, a man with years of experience in sales with a feel for the economy in Gibbs, and a man who knows the business of teaching and dealing directly with students in Charlier.

Based on these backgrounds, voters can probably consider themselves well represented on the Dist. 15 board in the next few years.

Election '71: Meyer Stands On Accomplishments

Unopposed in his bid to head the city government for another four years, Roland Meyer says he stands on a record of accomplishments no other city council has ever performed.

He's proud of the benefits he says the council has brought to residents in the past four years and believes even more will come to them in the coming term of office.

The top of the Citizens Action Party ticket, Meyer won his first term as mayor in 1967 running with the same party. He says he's chosen his running mates on the basis of their past service to Rolling Meadows.

"I could not keep the city moving forward without people who have already served the city in some capacity," he said.

Meyer's service to the community goes back almost to the beginning of Rolling Meadows. He began his involvement in the community almost as soon as he moved to the city in 1956.

THE MAYOR BELIEVES one of the council's most significant contributions in the past four years is development of the city's own garbage collection system. He also cites reduction of vehicle sticker fees and abolition of the garbage tax.

Meyer points out that assessed valuation has jumped from $40 to $70 million in the city since his party took office four years ago.

He also is proud of the large sales tax surplus the city has received since March of 1969.

"The vast amount of sales tax has come from industry we have encouraged to locate in Rolling Meadows," he said.

Speaking on one of the current issues of today, moderate-income housing, Meyer said he doesn't see any reason to get "panicky."

"I don't think it will become an issue in Rolling Meadows," he said.

"BUT IF IT does become an issue, the city council will work it out in good intelligence and in good time," he added.

In the future Meyer sees more beautification projects for Rolling Meadows. He also points out a new street lighting program which already has been discussed by the city council.

"The past four years to me seems to be a long four years," he said.

"But I'm looking forward to serving you again."

A candidate for a second term as treasurer, Robert Cole would like to continue keeping city operations in the black for another four years.

Unopposed in his bid for reelection as a member of the Citizens Action Party, Cole has had the distinction of handling the city's unexpected surplus of sales tax refunds.

"We can list ourselves as being very fortunate in this city," he said.

"The extra money has meant the city council can return many dollars to the taxpayer," he added.

It all started a couple of years ago when the city received a monthly sales tax return which was almost twice as much as received previously.

COLE WAS JUST as surprised as the rest of the council and looked into the matter by writing the state revenue office. A delinquent taxpayer in the city was given as the reason and Rolling Meadows suddenly began to enjoy its surplus of funds while neighboring towns pinched pennies.

Still not satisfied the rosy financial situation would last Cole traveled to Springfield to make sure the additional funds would continue.

The state office told him the extra money most likely would keep coming and Cole now predicts almost $900,000 in securities by the end of this month.

He points out the city has earned almost $65,000 in interest by investing the money.

But above all, he reminds citizens that more benefits to the taxpayers can be expected as the surplus grows and grows.

We are told the first opera house opened in Venice in 1637. As a fabric of music, dance, poetry and stage architecture, it was a marriage between art and business and performed for royalty and the very rich.

Once opera was easy to define, for it was serious and grand. Then the comic element was added to be followed by the masque and the operetta. During the 1950's and 60's the doors of television networks opened to underwrite performances and transmit them. The man who once may have said he would never attend an opera performance sits in front of his TV set listening enthralled at a performance of Aida.

Anyone can recognize Aida, Carmen, Magic Flute, Lohengrin, Samson and Delilah, but opera is also Amahl and The Night Visitors, The Ballad of Baby Doll, Porgy and Bess and West Side Story.

One of the newest and most controversial operas is "Jesus Christ, Superstar."

When a friend asked what my opinion of the new Rock opera "Jesus Christ Superstar" was, I admitted in a rather shocked tone, that I had never heard of it. I'll admit, I was prejudiced before I had heard it.

I don't dig Rock music for one thing and the use as a theme for a Rock opera on Jesus Christ I felt was blasphemous, but I did listen to the entire record and changed my mind. It is telling the old, old story as though it is happening today, the money changers, Judas, Pilate, Mary Magdalene, the Apostles could be the people we meet on the street today.

The money changers in the temple, for example: "Name your price, I got everything, Come and buy, it's going fast, Borrow cash on the finest terms, Hurry now, while stocks still last."

Jesus at the Last Supper: "This is my blood you drink. This is my body you eat. Ten minutes after I'm dead, One of you denies me, One of you betrays me."

Judas — "I didn't come of my own accord, Just don't say I'm damned for all time."

Pilate — "Who is this broken man cluttering up my hallway?"
Soldier — "Someone Christ, King of the Jews."

Pilate — "Oh, so this is Jesus Christ, I'm really quite surprised. You look so small, not a king at all. We all know you are news — but are you King? King of the Jews?"

The Mob — "Pilate, Crucify him! Remember Caesar! You have a city. You'll be demoted, you'll be deported! Crucify him!"

Voice of Judas — "Everytime I look at you, I don't understand. If you'd come today, you'd have reached a whole nation. Israel in 4 B.C. had no mass communication."

The music is beautiful. Listen to this opera with an open mind and be sure to follow the accompanying script.

The library has a collection of all the operas mentioned for loan to the patrons. Records are loaned for one week. Visit the Rolling Meadows Library and enjoy not only the best sellers but check out records for your musical enjoyment.

Mrs. Kornatz Unopposed For Clerk

The only woman in a slate of 13 candidates seeking election Tuesday in Rolling Meadows, Mrs. Eileen Kornatz is unopposed for the city clerk position.

She says her experience as a stenographer qualifies her for the position and quickly adds that she thinks the job will be interesting.

"I'd like to become involved in the city and serve it," Mrs. Kornatz said.

A resident for 14 years, her desire to serve the community is not a new one. She has been a Cub Scout den mother and a troop organizer for all the Girl Scouts at Central Road School.

MOST RECENTLY, she said she organized a cheerleading group for the Rolling Meadows football team which plays in Palatine and was responsible for getting the girls to all the games.

Mrs. Kornatz said she became interested in the job when she heard the position had been changed to part-time.

"I think it will be interesting to run an election," she said.

Mrs. Kornatz said she also is in a position to be available for clerk responsibilities at any time.

Ald. Kenneth Retzke is seeking his second term as fifth ward alderman on the Citizen's Action Party slate.

This year unopposed, Retzke is running on his record as chairman of the finance committee and work on numerous city commissions.

During his last tenure, he showed annoyance with unspecific proposals and voted against measures which he said did not have complete information, including the four-township mental health referendum. He charged it "was being conducted too soon with too little information to the public."

"We have no way of knowing how much money will be spent and who will benefit from the tax," he said concerning the mental health referendum and has taken a similar stand on issues as chairman of the finance committee where he hears proposals for funds from department chairmen.

OPENLY CRITICIZING the Rolling Meadows shopping center for business additions which eliminated parking for customers, he said at the Jaycee candidate's night, the city may take action to prevent further loss of parking space.

Retzke is chairman of the transportation and water study commission which is considering the eventual acquisition of water from Lake Michigan. He is also the city representative to the Northwest Municipal Conference.

He announced a personal canvass of residents in the fifth ward and says he found the majority approved of his attitude and actions as alderman.

ASKED IF HE CONSIDERED payment of tuition for the Fremd High School students living in the disannexation area moral, Retzke said the majority of the people indicated approval when they signed the petition, and said it is legal to use state income tax funds for schools.

On helping city merchants retain business when Woodfield Mall opens, the fifth ward incumbent said the city can help "by maintaining the looks of the city" and by making the shopping centers convenient to get in and out of.

Accused of being on Mayor Meyer's leash, Retzke said "if the mayor has me on a string, it's a long one."

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why...I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Police Warning: Stolen Sleeping Pills Circulating

Mount Prospect Police have issued a warning that some of the 48,000 sleeping pills stolen recently from a local pharmaceutical manufacturer are being circulated in the Northwest suburbs.

Sgt. Joseph Bopp, a detective investigating the theft, urged parents to be on the look-out for the small, orange pill stamped with the letters "A" and "S." He said parents should bring their children to the police station, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., if there is any evidence the children have taken the pill, or if they have it in their possession.

Bopp said persons taking the drug "act like they are extremely intoxicated without the smell of alcohol, have trouble walking and are prone to falling down." He said the pills are "exceedingly dangerous and can cause death."

POLICE SAID THE pills were stolen April 3 from Arnar-Stone Laboratories, Inc., 601 E. Kensington Rd. in Mount Prospect.

The thieves gained entrance to the laboratory through a heating vent through the roof, according to police. No one has yet been charged for the theft. The drug, brand named "Sopor," is a sedation tablet made with methaqualone, according to Louis Winsauer, vice-president of manufacturing at Arnar-Stone.

Winsauer said the drug works as a depressant on the central nervous system and affects the center of the brain that controls sleep. He said the drug is non-toxic but that an overdose of "up to 30 or so tablets" could cause death.

"It is a hypnotic drug and the prescribed dosage is one tablet before going to bed," Winsauer said. "If someone takes one or two tablets he will feel woozy and fall asleep. Taking over 3 is getting into the danger zone."

HE SAID THE effect of the pill depended on the dosage and the size and physical make-up of the individual.

The drug is legally available only by prescription. Bopp said Sopor is classified as a non-narcotic controlled drug, and possession of it without a prescription is illegal.

He said that about 100 of the pills have been recovered so far.

Mount Prospect police said they found approximately 60 pills fitting the description of the stolen ones in the possession of Robert Fly, 115 Waterman Rd., Arlington Heights. Fly was arrested Tuesday at Meadows Park in the northwest part of Mount Prospect and charged with possession of illegal drugs and public intoxication.

Fly was examined and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. He is out on bond and will appear in court on April 23.

Bopp said two juveniles have also been arrested and charged with public intoxication by Mount Prospect police. One lives in Mount Prospect, the other in Des Plaines.

Two adults have also been arrested and charged by the Chicago Police Department for possession of pills fitting the description of those stolen in Mount Prospect, Bopp said.

Schachner: Job Isn't Finished Yet

(Editor's note: Today is the last of a series of interviews with three candidates running for the two Prospect Heights Park District board posts.)
by BETSY BROOKER

Dennis Schachner served on the Prospect Heights Park Board for four years after helping to form the district in 1967. But he says his job isn't finished.

Schachner said he filed for reelection because, "I have been involved with park development for a number of years. I want to follow through with our plans."

Schachner, an engineer for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co., said the district should concentrate on developing the larger district sites first. These include Lions Park at Camp McDonald and Elm roads, the Dwight Eisenhower School site at Camp McDonald and Schoenbeck roads, the John Muir School site on Oak Avenue.

"We also have four small tot lots and the Boy Scout Park, in the district," said Schachner. "These are good gathering points for children and are a place where they can play football or some other activity they can't do in their own yard. The district does not need to purchase a lot of play equipment for these sites, because most residents have swing sets and other equipment on their own half-acre lots."

Concerning the major park sites, Schachner said, "It was my idea, soon after the district was formed, to utilize school sites for recreation because there were no large open spaces in the district."

"We have hired an architect to prepare plans for the three major sites," Schachner said, installing equipment such as swing sets and tennis courts, and designing baseball fields and track runs.

IN ORDER TO carry out all the development proposed in the architect's plans, Schachner said the district may have to hold a referendum. "The development will be divided into different stages to be completed over a period of time. We will need to have a referendum only if we can't afford to complete a certain stage in a certain time period."

"For example, if it will cost an exorbitant amount to just prepare the land, we may have to ask for help. There is also a chance we may receive financial aid from the federal government."

Schachner admitted that this may not be the best time to hold a referendum. "I am disappointed that the School Dist. 23 referendum failed. But, if the park commissioners really believe we should hold a referendum, I think we might have a chance."

The park district has never held a referendum.

Creek Bill Is Introduced In Assembly

As expected, a bill calling for the expenditure of $115,000 on McDonald Creek improvements, was introduced into the Illinois General Assembly yesterday.

The funds are earmarked for a new Soo Line R.R. bridge across the creek near Euclid and Wolf roads in Prospect Heights. The new structure will replace one that, according to some, is responsible for "half" the creek's flooding problems.

Chief sponsor of the measure is Rep. Gene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. Co-sponsors are Representatives Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, and David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

Schlickman announced last Friday that the bill would be introduced this week. He said the funds had been included in the budget prepared by Gov. Richard Ogilvie. The bill was prepared by John Guillou, chief engineer of the Illinois Division of Waterways.

The McDonald Creek Improvement Committee, headed by Jack Gilligan of Prospect Heights, has been working on the creek problems for more than a year.

COMMITTEE representatives had discussed the matter of state funds for the creek with the state's bureau of the budget, the governor's office and the waterways division, in their efforts to have the state appropriate funds for the creek improvement project.

State officials feel certain the bill will be approved this spring. After the bill is approved, bids for the work will be sought. Gilligan predicted that construction would begin within the next five to seven months, with completion anticipated by early spring.

Gilligan explained that the culverts under the new bridge will be much larger than the ones now in use. Flood waters backing up at the bridge are part of the reason for the flooding that occurs almost annually in several parts of Prospect Heights, he said. Among the areas affected by flooding have been the Country Gardens area, and Bonnybrook and McDonald Acres subdivisions.

Gilligan said the railroad will pay for a portion of the construction costs. Any of the state funds not used for the new bridge will go toward other creek improvements.

Gilligan has said that a new bridge will solve only "half" the creek's flooding problems. Widening and deepening of the creek channel in certain areas is also necessary, he said.

Anderson Has Single Goal

by GERRY DEZONNA

George Anderson's number-one goal — in addition to winning the election Tuesday — is to earn Mount Prospect the title of All-American City.

The 35-year-old candidate for village trustee is serious about winning one of the 10 titles awarded annually by "Look Magazine." "If Quincy, Ill., can win it, I'm sure we can," he explains.

Establishing a capital improvements plan and revitalizing the downtown business district will pave the way for nomination to the All-American roster.

"We definitely need to establish a capital improvements program in the village — a five-year plan outlining the improvements necessary to maintain the quality of our community. It's just another way of planning in advance and scheduling projects based on essential needs and available monies."

ACCORDING TO ANDERSON, solving the traffic problems in the downtown business district is essential. "In addition to improving traffic signalization and installing left-turn bays at all intersections, there is a need for additional grade crossings over the railroad tracks and more off-street parking."

"I think moving the commuter parking lots from the middle of town would help alleviate parking as well as traffic problems. The railroad lots could then be used for shopper parking. There is also a need for additional street lighting in the downtown area and on Northwest Highway — especially between here and Arlington Heights," he explained.

Anderson also thinks the downtown area can be modernized through zoning. "Some of our problems can be solved by changing and rebuilding the area. Two or three-story office buildings with retail stores on the ground level must be considered in the comprehensive development of the community."

Funding of a capital improvements program can be accomplished with the village's share of state motor fuel tax funds, the village's general corporate fund and general assessments. As for the real estate tax, Anderson thinks it's inequitable.

"I'M IN FAVOR of getting real estate off the county tax rolls within four years. I think a utility tax, for example, is more equitable because everyone pays then. A three-percent utility tax could offset our real estate taxes without any trouble," he explained.

"Annexing commercial and industrial

As a professional engineer in municipal development and vice-chairman of the village's drainage and clean streams commission, Anderson is especially interested in water distribution, flooding and Weller Creek. Anderson still favors covering the creek despite the "exorbitant" cost. "It's an expensive proposition but I think the idea is a sound one. We would eliminate maintenance, odor and mosquitoes. It would be like having a green belt through town which could be used for a bicycle path. However, covering the creek would require we have sufficient retention basins west of Central Road — which is a costly venture."

ANOTHER TOP-PRIORITY project from Anderson's point of view is finding a village manager. As director of engineering for the Village of Niles, Anderson recognizes the need for a "qualified village manager" and the importance of the position. "There is a lot of responsibility and obligations involved in operating a village efficiently and smoothly. It's a thankless job. If we want a competent village manager in Mount Prospect, then we must be willing to pay him a decent salary of about $20,000 or $25,000 a year."

Anderson is cognizant of the fact that if Mount Prospect intends to be an All-American City, the honor will require staffing the village administration and planning community programs in advance.

Anderson is one of three candidates seeking election Tuesday under the banner of the United Village Party. He and teammates Kenneth Scholten and Richard Monroe are competing with two independent candidates for three four-year terms on the board.

Anderson lives with his wife, Penny, and their three children at 1005 W. Isabella St. They lived in Chicago before moving to Mount Prospect 10 years ago.

erendum. The district is taxing at the maximum permitted by the state, without a referendum. But the district has sold the maximum amount of general obligation bonds permitted by the state without a referendum.

Schachner praises the park board's financial record. "Our board has worked very well together in spending funds. Each board member has been assigned to a certain phase of the spending, which he checks."

"We have gone as fast as we could with the funds available," added Schachner.

Looking to the future, a day when more funds may be available, Schachner said he hopes a community recreation building might someday be constructed in the district. He said the district could offer more programs for teens, adults and senior citizens if it had its own indoor facility.

"IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to enlarge park programs now because of our shortage of funds," Schachner said. "We are fortunate to have an enthusiastic recreation director and superintendent," he added.

The district will probably need a full-time superintendent once the major park sites are developed and an indoor facility is built, according to Schachner. "We don't need a full time superintendent now because the schools used for the park programs, aren't available until after 3:30 p.m."

In addition to the shortage of funds, the district must also contend with the absence of a local zoning board, according to Schachner. "We don't have anyone we can ask to make sure a developer will provide park space."

The unincorporated status of the community is also a problem to the district in the area of police protection. "If we had our own force, we would have proper coverage of the district," he said.

Library Slates Junior Art Fair

The Mount Prospect Public Library will open National Library Week Sunday with two showings of the Laurel and Hardy film, "A Chump at Oxford."

The film, to be shown at the library at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m., will open a week of activities from Sunday through April 25 to honor libraries across the country.

The library, 14 E. Busse Ave., has a lot to celebrate, according to librarian Mary Lou Hutchings. Since the building was built in 1950, the library has grown in many areas. Building space has increased to six times what it was 20 years ago. In 1950 there were 1,990 borrowers. That number has grown to more than 25,000 today. The book collection of 7,124 volumes in 1950 has now reached 58,400 volumes.

Magazine circulation has gone from 719 in 1950 to 27,158 last year and book circulation has increased from 24,705 20 years ago to a current 280,377.

The library was started in 1930 when the Mount Prospect Women's Club opened up a small one room lending service. In 1943 the library became a tax-supported body. The library was housed at 115 S. Main St., until it was moved to the present building in 1950.

Other activities for the week, include a presentation of gifts to the library from local organizations at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, daily coffees at 10:30 a.m. for businessmen to become acquainted with library services and a used book sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 24, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Junior Women's Club for the benefit of the library.

On April 25 a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. will honor outgoing library board members, Mary Berg and Mary Clark. Both have served on the board since 1965. Their terms end later this month.

Several exhibits will be on display in the library during the week. The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will set up telephones to show how to make overseas phone calls with translations from various countries. Other exhibits include displays on wood carving, practical psychology, aids for the blind, and television.

Daily story hours for the preschoolers will also be held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.; and on Tuesday and Friday from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

DIETER BUTTGEREIT, a member of the West German Touring Gymnastics Team performs a maneuver on the sidehorse. He and other members of the team competed against five of Illinois' top gymnasts Saturday night at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect.

THE VILLAGE flag of Mount Prospect was presented to the West German Touring Gymnastics Team Saturday night by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert. Teichert also presented the team with honorary village citizenships and a copy of the village's "Resolution of Friendship."

Hendricks Endorsed By Trustee Ahern

Village Trustee Daniel Ahern has endorsed candidate Richard Hendricks, who is running for a trustee post in the Mount Prospect Village Board next week.

Hendricks, a resident of Fairview Gardens subdivision, is one of five candidates seeking election to three seats on the board. Hendricks and incumbent Trustee Lloyd Norris, both independent candidates, are competing against the three member United Village Party slate.

UVP candidates are George Anderson, Richard Monroe and Kenneth Scholten. Three of the five candidates will be elected to serve four year terms on the village board.

Ahern is the first incumbent trustee to endorse a candidate in the campaign. Mayor Robert Teichert has already endorsed the three UVP candidates. His endorsement was announced in February when Anderson, Scholten and Monroe endorsed they would run as a slate.

AHERN, ALSO A RESIDENT of Fairview Gardens subdivision, endorsed Hendricks in a letter sent to the Herald last week.

"Any person who seeks public office should, at least in my opinion, possess at least three basic qualities: integrity, reasonable intelligence and a willingness and desire to work. Although I have little doubt but that all the candidates possess these qualities, I have known one of the candidates for five years, and through personal contact with him, it is obvious that he possesses these qualities to a high degree and more," Ahern said.

"Some two years ago, when Mayor Robert Teichert and former mayor Daniel Congreve ran against one another, I heard them both say that it takes a new trustee two years to learn the job, leaving the second half of a four-year term for truly productive activity. Having now served as a trustee for almost two years, I agree with their sentiments."

THE INDEPENDENT candidate, Richard Hendricks, represents a substantial departure from this basic concept. Almost without exception he has attended each and every village board meeting since April, 1969. With the exception of those matters which were reserved for executive session, Hendricks is as well informed on any matter that has come before the village board during the last two years as any member of the board with the exception of Mayor Teichert, who quite frankly, is brighter than the rest of us, generally, but not always.

"No other candidate can offer the knowledge already possessed by Hendricks, nor can they point to a demonstrated interest in their community as exemplified by his consistent attendance at board meetings," Ahern said.

Not Like Last Year

Only 40 Show For Town Meeting

by JUDY MEHL
The annual town meeting in Elk Grove Township just isn't what it used to be. Most of the 170 persons who left the town hall last year muttering "Wait 'till next year," didn't come back Tuesday night.

Less than 40 persons, dwarfed in the 506 seating capacity theater at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights, were present at this year's town meeting.

There was no hostility like last year, when participants shouted back and forth about crowded conditions.

As a result of that heated meeting this year's meeting place was changed from the town hall to the high school. Since that time a sign has been hung in the town hall limiting the capacity to 150 persons.

THE DIFFERENCE BETWEEN the two meetings may have been caused by Illinois legislation passed last summer taking the budget approval authority away from voters at the annual town meetings and giving it to the township board of auditors.

The persons present Tuesday were there to listen and question, but had no power to vote.

The budget had been approved last week by the board.

The $166,012 town fund budget approved by the board was $20,000 less than the year before and the $56,800 welfare fund budget was $10,000 less.

This year's town meeting consisted of the reading of annual reports by supervisor William Rohwing. The reports included the town fund, town fund No. 2 for land acquisition, road and bridge fund, general assistance fund, and sewer fund. Auditor Bernard Lee pointed out that in many of the funds there were transfers to the American National Bank and Trust Co. totaling $180,000.

HE SAID: "That has been transferred out of your township and we're not getting one penny of credit for it. It is pending some decision out of the county court which is going to determine ultimately where that money goes. It has been put into the hands of that group in Cook County."

Lee was referring to the Illinois Supreme Court decision last summer putting the township tax collection under the control of the county treasurer's office. The two per cent fee which the township collector deducted from taxes to support the township office and other local taxing bodies was declared unconstitutional and last year's collection money is being held in the bank until a final decision is made on who gets the money.

Only a few questions were asked at the meeting, with one resulting in a motion by the board to investigate the need and desire for police protection in unincorporated areas.

One resident from an unincorporated area requested police protection from other than the county sheriff.

A committee was formed to study the problem. If all unincorporated areas favor contracting for police protection, only those areas would be taxed for it, said George Busse, town clerk.

Walker: Suburbia Suffers

"Suburbia gets the short end of the stick in many respects from the Illinois General Assembly," Dan Walker told a political rally Tuesday.

Walker, an independent Democrat seeking the nomination for Illinois governor in next year's election, spoke to members of the Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP), a write in slate of candidates for the Wheeling Village Board.

He called for "state government for the whole state, not just for the City of Chicago" pointing to 31 legislators who hold Chicago and Cook County patronage jobs and whose priorities center around "what's good for the Daley machine" and "what's good for the City of Chicago."

Walker, a resident of Deerfield, plans to seek the nomination for governor next March in the Democratic primary. He has said repeatedly that he will not appear before the Cook County Democratic Central committee for its endorsement.

Walker explained his reasons for refusing to seek that state making committee's endorsement as "I feel no man can say 'Mr. Mayor, can I run for governor' and then sit in the governor's chair with the kind of independence needed to run the state of Illinois."

"The issue in this election is whether the Democratic candidate for governor will be chosen by a handful of bosses or by the people in an open Democratic primary," Walker told an audience of approximately 50 people.

ADMITTING THAT the state making committee had picked some good candidates such as Paul Douglas and the two

Adlai Stevensons, Walker noted that it had "slated Paul 'Shoe Box' Powell in 1964 and 1968 with full knowledge by every member of that committee of what kind of man he was."

"When I beat the Daley machine, it is going to go a long way toward cutting down Mayor Daley's dead hand over the national Democratic convention," he said.

Walker said the issues in his campaign would include the Vietnam War because money being spent to finance that war could be better used by the states.

"It is a war that has got to end. If the President won't listen to moral arguments or economic arguments, maybe if all candidates in elections on all levels make the war an issue he'll listen to the political arguments," Walker said.

"I'm for law and order," Walker said, "but not just with respect to crime in the streets or student demonstrations."

He said law and order must also be enforced "in the corporate board rooms of corporations that pollute," in the legislative halls and in the government executive offices of this nation."

WALKER STRESSED that Illinois needs "People-oriented government," "business like management" and "strong leadership."

He cited numerous examples of political graft, tax dodges, and mismanagement.

"It costs the state $500 to distribute every $1,000 bonus check it gives to a Vietnam veteran. I know good and well that if you take a fine tooth comb through the state of Illinois you'll find literally hundreds of similar examples," he said.

The candidate told the Wheeling audience that he is "taking a hard look at local aid to parochial schools" rather than state aid. He said a detailed position paper on his stand on state aid was being researched.

On a third independent political party for the state he said "I hope we don't have to come to a third party in the state. I hope the Democrats and Republicans will be responsive to people politics. However, I don't foreclose the possibility that if I should lose the primary I might run as an independent."

Walker predicted that the favorites of state making committee would be "Tom Foran, George Dunne or Paul Simon, in that order."

HE SAID HE thinks Simon will run for the senate instead of the Governorship.

He said he favors home rule through "bills which gives a local community the power it needs to solve its problems but not the problems of areas outside that home rule unit."

Firemen's Ball Set

The 21st Annual Firemen's Ball, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Volunteer Fire Department, will be held at 9 p.m. Saturday at VFW Post 1337, 601 N. Main St., Mount Prospect.

Music will be provided by the Warren Rogers Aristocrats. Tickets cost $2 per person. They may be purchased at the door or in advance by calling the Mount Prospect Fire Department at 253-5930.

Proceeds from the dance will be used to purchase health and disability insurance policies for volunteer firemen, buy additional fire equipment and finance the department's exhibition at Randhurst Shopping Center during Fire Service Recognition week May 3 through 8.

2 Charged In Burglaries

An 18-year-old Prospect Heights youth and a Buffalo Grove boy were arrested by Buffalo Grove police and charged with two counts of burglary and possession of stolen goods, in connection with a drug arrest Monday night.

Arrested were Robert Cook Jr., of 10 E. McDonald Rd., Prospect Heights and a juvenile, from Buffalo Grove.

The juvenile was taken to the Audy Juvenile Home in Chicago yesterday and released on $2,000 bond. He will appear in court May 11.

The incident began about 10 p.m. Monday when policeman Charles Weidner investigated a report of a suspicious auto in the 1300 block of Buffalo Grove Road. Weidner said Cook and his companion told him their car was out of gas and that they would return shortly and move it.

As a routine matter, Weidner reported the car's license plate number and the number of a set of license plates he observed on the floor inside the car to the radio operator at the station to be checked to see if they were reported stolen.

THE PLATES on the stalled car were correct, but the plates inside the car were registered to a Wheeling resident, Richard Herdus, of 659 Wayne Rd. The radio operator then called Herdus, who checked his car and discovered that his plates were missing.

Herdus said he believed that the plates were taken while he was bowling at the Buffalo Grove Rosebowl earlier in the evening.

When the juvenile returned to the stalled car, he was arrested by Weidner and taken to the station with the car. When the second set of plates were taken from the car, police discovered a pill underneath them. The juvenile was questioned and told police there was a box of similar pills in the trunk. Police confiscated the pills which turned out to be narcotic drugs.

While police were questioning the juvenile, Cook was apprehended walking down a street in Buffalo Grove.

Anything that can be painted can be changed to take on the appearance of rich wood grain, of age-old antique or beautiful marble. The process is so simple a child could do it. Yet the result you can achieve with Old Masters will amaze and delight you. The grand part about achieving these effects is that you don't have to remove the old finish. This means no scraping, no bleaching, no staining, and no special tools are required to obtain any of these effects. Any piece of furniture that doesn't fit its surroundings or woodwork that doesn't fit the decor can be easily changed to complement existing. The oldest assortment of furniture and finishes can be made to look as though they belonged to each other. Regardless of how dark or light the item is, Old Masters can completely change its appearance without removing the old finish. See how. See it demonstrated. Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Police Warning: Stolen Sleeping Pills Circulating

Mount Prospect Police have issued a warning that some of the 48,000 sleeping pills stolen recently from a local pharmaceutical manufacturer are being circulated in the Northwest suburbs.

Sgt. Joseph Bopp, a detective investigating the theft, urged parents to be on the look-out for the small orange pill stamped with the letters "A" and "S." He said parents should bring their children to the police station, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., if there is any evidence the children have taken the pill, or if they have it in their possession.

Bopp said persons taking the drug "act like they are extremely intoxicated without the smell of alcohol, have trouble walking and are prone to falling down." He said the pills are "exceedingly dangerous and can cause death."

POLICE SAID THE pills were stolen April 5 from Arnar-Stone Laboratories, Inc., 601 E. Kensington Rd. in Mount Prospect.

The thieves gained entrance to the laboratory through a heating vent through the roof, according to police. No one has yet been charged for the theft. The drug, brand-named "Sopor," is a sedation tablet made with methaqualone, according to Louis Winsauer, vice-president of manufacturing at Arnar-Stone.

Winsauer said the drug works as a depressant on the central nervous system and affects the center of the brain that controls sleep. He said the drug is non-toxic but that an overdose of "up to 30 or so tablets" could cause death.

"It is a hypnotic drug and the prescribed dosage is one tablet before going to bed," Winsauer said. "If someone takes one or two tablets he will feel woozy and fall asleep. Taking over 3 is getting into the danger zone."

HE SAID THE effect of the pill depended on the dosage and the size and physical make-up of the individual.

The drug is legally available only by prescription. Bopp said Sopor is classified as a non-narcotic controlled drug, and possession of it without a prescription is illegal.

He said that about 100 of the pills have been recovered so far.

Mount Prospect police said they found approximately 60 pills fitting the description of the stolen ones in the possession of Robert Fly, 115 Waterman Rd., Arlington Heights.

Call Band Battle Cease-Fire Early

Rumors that stolen sleeping pills were circulating in Mount Prospect caused an early shut-down of the "Battle of the Bands" at Lions Park Recreation Center Monday night.

Paul Caldwell, assistant park and temporary center director for the Mount Prospect Park District, said he decided to close the center, 411 S. Maple St., at 10 a.m. because "of comments that pills were floating around, and a potential situation, whether kids were actually taking them or not." Four Mount Prospect police were called to help disperse the crowd of several hundred teens 1½ hours ahead of schedule.

"It was nothing drastic and the kids left peacefully," said Lt. John Savage, acting police chief. "We made no arrests."

Caldwell said he saw one person "who appeared high on drugs" and heard reports of three others in the same condition at the dance. He said that before he dismissed the teens, he checked with the Mount Prospect Drug Hotline (sponsored by the Community Action Plan) to confirm the robbery of sleeping pills from a local pharmaceutical manufacturer.

ton Heights. Fly was arrested Tuesday at Meadows Park in the northwest part of Mount Prospect and charged with possession of illegal drugs and public intoxication.

Fly was examined and released from Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. He is out on bond and will appear in court on April 29.

Bopp said two juveniles have also been arrested and charged with public intoxication by Mount Prospect police. One lives in Mount Prospect, the other in Des Plaines.

Two adults have also been arrested and charged by the Chicago Police Department for possession of pills fitting the description of those stolen in Mount Prospect, Bopp said.

Four Recruits Join Village Department

Four new recruits joined the ranks of the Mount Prospect Fire Department this month bringing the total number of men on the force to 29.

They are Robert Kooiker of Mount Prospect, Arthur Felski of Chicago, Robert Clark of Arlington Heights and Kenneth Stahl of Glenview.

Kooiker, 33, of 1836 Locust Ave., was employed as a floor installer with Creaney Floors of Wilmette before joining the department.

Felski, 22, worked for American Electric Co. of Chicago before joining the fire service. Robert Clark, 25, of 2609 N. Arlington Heights Rd., is a 1963 graduate of Arlington High School. He spent four years in the Navy as an electronics technician before attending classes at Illinois State University.

STAHN, 24, is a former resident of Palatine. He attended Harper College and served as an apprentice bricklayer with Al Sanders and Co. of Arlington Heights before joining the fire department.

The new firemen are currently undergoing a one-month training period under the direction of Capt. James Hilliger. Following the 30-day training program, they will be assigned to one of three duty shifts.

They will also attend six sessions on first aid and ambulance service under the direction of Lt. Kenneth Koopen.

According to Fire Chief Larry Pairitz, the training program includes classroom sessions and practical application of fire-fighting techniques. After the 30-day program, regular training of the new men will be continued on a daily basis.

THEY WILL ALSO attend the Second Advanced Practical Course for Fire Department Ambulance and Rescue Squad Personnel held in May at Forest Hospital in Des Plaines. The three-day seminar, May 10 through 12, will be cosponsored by the hospital staff and the Northwest Suburban Committee on Trauma—a committee of firemen representing fire department throughout the Northwest suburban area.

With the hiring of these recruits, the fire department gained three additional men. One fireman filled the vacancy in the ranks created when Pairitz was appointed fire chief. Hiring of three additional firemen was appropriated in the budget for the 1970-71 fiscal year.

The new recruits will be paid $9,660 a year for the first six months with pay raises semi-annually.

Tree Spraying Under Way

Spraying maple trees to protect against cottony fungus started in Mount Prospect this week and will not be finished "until we get it done," according to Dave Creamer, director of public works.

"It could be two or three weeks depending upon the weather," Creamer said.

The village sprayer truck was out before noon Monday in the subdivisions near Wolf and Central roads and Euclid Avenue and Rte. 83.

However, Creamer said the truck had to stop in mid-afternoon because of the winds. He said when the winds start to pick up, the truck has to stop spraying because the chemical starts to drift and is no longer effective. He said the height of a tree and its distance from the ground determines how much wind can occur before the chemical starts to drift.

The truck will be spraying all maple trees in the village, but no path has been set because the trees are spotted throughout, Creamer said.

Cottony fungus is a parasite that lives off the tree, sucking the sap and weakening the tree. This is the first time this year the truck has started spraying the trees.

This Morning In Brief

The World

Premier Chou En-lai met and talked with American table tennis players and said their visit has opened "a new chapter" in relations between Communist China and the United States. He said more Americans would be coming to further lift the Bamboo Curtain.

The Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship has advised against the use of "Here Comes The Bride" and other traditional songs at Catholic weddings. More sacred music was suggested.

Israel's counterproposal on reopening the Suez Canal was reported to have run into a snag because of U.S. delay in outlining safeguards to prevent Egyptian and Soviet troops from crossing the waterway if Israeli troops are pulled back.

The Nation

Four civilians recruited by an insurance salesman left for Laos to offer themselves as replacements for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.

President Nixon announced a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Communist China for 21 years.

Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, accused the FBI of spying on Earth Day rallies held a year ago to glorify the environment. He said Congress should set up a board to monitor all government agencies who gather intelligence on civilians.

The State

The Illinois House unanimously passed and sent to the governor legislation which would prohibit income tax accounting firms from disclosing information concerning their clients.

Highway construction in Madison and St. Clair counties will be resumed April 19 under an agreement reached by labor unions, Negro representatives and contractors in federal court in Springfield.

Four residents of the near downtown Colonial House Apartment Hotel died in a fire that swept the buildings' third floor. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $25,000.

The War

South Vietnamese relief forces lifted a 15-day siege at Fire Base 6 permitting U.S. helicopters to fly tons of food, water and ammunition in to defenders of the strategic outpost.

Anderson Has Single Goal

by GERRY DEZONNA

George Anderson's number-one goal — in addition to winning the election Tuesday — is to earn Mount Prospect the title of All-American City.

The 35-year-old candidate for village trustee is serious about winning one of the 10 titles awarded annually by "Look Magazine." "If Quincy, Ill., can win it, I'm sure we can," he explains.

Establishing a capital improvements plan and revitalizing the downtown business district will pave the way for nomination to the All-American roster.

"We definitely need to establish a capital improvements program in the village — a five-year plan outlining the improvements necessary to maintain the quality of our community. It's just another way of planning in advance and scheduling projects based on essential needs and available monies."

According to Anderson, solving the traffic problems in the downtown business district is essential. "In addition to improving traffic signalization and installing left-turn bays at all intersections, there is a need for additional grade crossings over the railroad tracks and more off-street parking."

"I think moving the commuter parking lots from the middle of town would help alleviate parking as well as traffic problems. The railroad lots could then be used for shopper parking. There is also a need for additional street lighting in the downtown area and on Northwest Highway — especially between here and Arlington Heights," he explained.

Anderson also thinks the downtown area can be modernized through zoning. "Some of our problems can be solved by changing and rebuilding the area. Two or three-story office buildings with retail stores on the ground level must be considered in the comprehensive development of the community."

Funding of a capital improvements program can be accomplished with the village's share of state motor fuel tax funds, the village's general corporate fund and general assessments. As for the real estate tax, Anderson thinks it's inequitable.

"I'M IN FAVOR of getting real estate off the county tax rolls within four years. I think a utility tax, for example, is more equitable because everyone pays then. A three-percent utility tax could offset our real estate taxes without any trouble," he explained.

"Annexing commercial and industrial

As a professional engineer in municipal development and vice-chairman of the village's drainage and clean streams commission, Anderson is especially interested in water distribution, flooding and Weller Creek. Anderson still favors covering the creek despite the "exorbitant" cost. "It's an expensive proposition but I think the idea is a sound one. We would eliminate maintenance, odor and mosquitoes. It would be like having a green belt through town which could be used for a bicycle path. However, covering the creek would require we have sufficient retention basins west of Central Road — which is a costly venture."

ANOTHER TOP-PRIORITY project from Anderson's point of view is finding a village manager. As director of engineering for the Village of Niles, Anderson recognizes the need for a "qualified village manager" and the importance of the position. "There is a lot of responsibility and obligations involved in operating a village efficiently and smoothly. It's a thankless job. If we want a competent village manager in Mount Prospect, then we must be willing to pay him a decent salary of about $20,000 or $25,000 a year."

Anderson is cognizant of the fact that if Mount Prospect intends to be an All-American City, the honor will require staffing the village administration and planning community programs in advance.

Anderson is one of three candidates seeking election Tuesday under the banner of the United Village Party. He and teammates Kenneth Scholten and Richard Monroe are competing with two independent candidates for three four-year terms on the board.

Anderson lives with his wife, Penny, and their three children at 1005 W. Isabella St. They lived in Chicago before moving to Mount Prospect 10 years ago.

'Operation Sandbox' Set

The Mount Prospect Jaycees' annual "Operation Sandbox" is set for May 1 this year.

The fund raising project involves the sale of sand to community residents, explained Ron McPherson, Jaycee president. "We take orders over the phone and in person for loads of sand for backyard sandboxes, gardens or any other purposes."

Cost of the sand is $1.50 for each wheelbarrow load. The sand is donated by Meyer Materials Co. of Des Plaines Trucks and other equipment will be donated by Meyer and other local businesses.

Advance orders are now being taken. Persons who want to order sand can call either 438-7224 during the day or 593-6615 in the evening.

McPherson said the Jaycees would be delivering sand all day May 1. "Virtually the entire membership" will be participating, he said. Chairman of the project is James Schelling.

"The project is very very well received," according to McPherson, who said that some orders had already been placed.

Proceeds from the sale are used for Jaycee youth activities. Among them are the Mount Prospect Jaycees annual Junior Sports Jamboree, and, this year, a regional Junior Sports Jamboree. The group has also made donations to the Community Plan for Action, a project designed to cope with drug abuse in the community.

Library Slates Junior Art Fair

The Mount Prospect Public Library will open National Library Week Sunday with two showings of the Laurel and Hardy film, "A Chump at Oxford."

The film, to be shown at the library at 2:30 and 3:30 p.m., will open a week of activities from Sunday through April 25 to honor libraries across the country.

The library, 14 E. Busse Ave., has a lot to celebrate, according to librarian Mary Lou Hutchings. Since the building was built in 1950, the library has grown in many areas. Building space has increased to six times what it was 20 years ago. In 1950 there were 1,999 borrowers. That number has grown to more than 25,000 today. The book collection of 7,124 volumes in 1950 has now reached 58,400 volumes.

Magazine circulation has gone from 719 in 1950 to 27,158 last year and book circulation has increased from 24,705 20 years ago to a current 280,377.

The library was started in 1930 when the Mount Prospect Women's Club opened up a small one-room lending service. In 1943 the library became a tax-supported body. The library was housed at 115 S. Main St., until it was moved to the present building in 1950.

Other activities for the week, include a presentation of gifts to the library from local organizations at 3:30 p.m. Sunday, daily coffees at 10:30 a.m. for businessmen to become acquainted with library services and a used book sale from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. April 24, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Junior Woman's Club for the benefit of the library.

On April 25 a reception from 2 to 5 p.m. will honor outgoing library board members, Mary Berg and Mary Clark. Both have served on the board since 1965. Their terms end later this month.

Several exhibits will be on display in the library during the week. The Illinois Bell Telephone Co. will set up telephones to show how to make overseas phone calls with translations from various countries. Other exhibits include displays on wood carving, practical psychology, aids for the blind, and television.

Daily story hours for the pre-schoolers will also be held on Monday, Wednesday and Thursday from 10:30 a.m. to 11 a.m.; and on Tuesday and Friday from 1:30 to 2 p.m.

Dinner Dance Set

A dinner dance, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Boys' Baseball Association, will be held April 30 at the Bensenville Firemen's Hall, York Road just south of Irving Park Road.

A roast beef buffet will be served beginning at 7:30 p.m., and music will be provided by Jerry Bittman and his combo. Tickets must be purchased in advance. Reservations may be made by calling 392-0028 or 392-5306. Tickets cost $4 per person.

Proceeds from the dinner dance will be used to defray cost of registration fees for the baseball season.

DIETER BUTTGEREIT, a member of the West German Touring Gymnastics Team performs a maneuver on the side horse. He and other members of the team competed against five of Illinois' top gymnasts Saturday night at Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington in Mount Prospect.

THE VILLAGE flag of Mount Prospect was presented to the West German Touring Gymnastics Team Saturday night by Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert. Tei-

chert also presented the team with honorary village citizenships and a copy of the village's "Resolution of Friendship."

Hendricks Endorsed By Trustee Ahern

Village Trustee Daniel Ahern has endorsed candidate Richard Hendricks, who is running for a trustee post in the Mount Prospect Village Board next week.

Hendricks, a resident of Fairview Gardens subdivision, is one of five candidates seeking election to three seats on the board. Hendricks and incumbent Trustee Lloyd Norris, both independent candidates, are competing against the three-member United Village Party slate.

UVP candidates are George Anderson, Richard Monroe and Kenneth Scholten. Three of the five candidates will be elected to serve four-year terms on the village board.

Ahern is the first incumbent trustee to endorse a candidate in the campaign. Mayor Robert Teichert has already endorsed the three UVP candidates. His endorsement was announced in February when Anderson, Scholten and Monroe decided they would run as a slate.

AHERN, ALSO A RESIDENT of Fairview Gardens subdivision, endorsed Hendricks in a letter sent to the Herald last week.

"Any person who seeks public office should, at least in my opinion, possess at least three basic qualities: integrity, reasonable intelligence and a willingness and desire to work. Although I have little doubt but that all the candidates possess these qualities, I have known one of the candidates for five years, and through personal contact with him, it is obvious that he possesses these qualities to a high degree and more," Ahern said.

"Some two years ago, when Mayor Robert Teichert and former mayor Daniel Congreve ran against one another, I heard them both say that it takes a new trustee two years to learn the job, leaving the second half of a four-year term for truly productive activity. Having now served as a trustee for almost two years, I agree with their sentiments."

"THE INDEPENDENT candidate, Richard Hendricks, represents a substantial departure from this basic concept. Almost without exception he has attended each and every village board meeting since April, 1969. With the exception of those matters which were reserved for executive session, Hendricks is as well informed on any matter that has come before the village board during the last two years as any member of the board with the exception of Mayor Teichert, who quite frankly, is brighter than the rest of us, generally, but not always."

"No other candidate can offer the knowledge already possessed by Hendricks, nor can they point to a demonstrated interest in their community as exemplified by his consistent attendance at board meetings," Ahern said.

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chimes.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why... I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."

Winners Of Earth Week Contest Announced Today

A preview of Earth Week activities will be given today when winners of essay and poster contests among school students are announced at the Municipal Building.
The contests were designed to call attention to Earth Week, proclaimed by Arlington Heights Village President Jack Walsh for April 18 through 24. Walsh has solicited the support of civic organizations, service clubs, churches and businessmen for the spring clean-up of the village.
Contest entries, submitted from elementary, junior high and high schools in Arlington Heights, have been judged this week, according to Darryl Kenning, assistant to the village manager.

One winner from each age group, elementary, junior high and high school, will be named for each contest. The winners will receive $25 savings bonds donated by the Chamber of Commerce at the Monday night meeting of the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.
All posters will be distributed throughout the village to publicize Earth Week, which begins Monday.
Other Earth Week activities will include clean-ups by volunteers and the collection of newspapers, bottles and cans for recycling.
On Saturday Boy Scouts from Troop 149 at Southminster Presbyterian Church will collect newspapers for recycling from the southeast quadrant of the village, south of the railroad tracks and east of Arlington Heights Road.
The special spring rubbish pick-up by Laseke Disposal Company will be Monday in that quadrant.
Newspapers will be collected and spring rubbish will be picked up in the other quadrants on the three following weekends. The Wheeling Township Teenage Republicans and Boy Scout Troops 166, 66 and 34 will make the newspaper pick-ups.
On Saturday, April 24, Earth Week activities will climax with Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and Campfire Girls cleaning up public areas in the village and the parks.
Also on that day bottles and cans will be collected for recycling at Rand Junior High School, Juliette Low School and the commuter parking lot at the corner of Sigwalt Street and Arlington Heights Road from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m.
Bottles should be separated between clear and colored glass and have metal rings from twist-off tops removed, organizers say.
During Earth Week other organizations in the village have planned observances. Members of the Junior Women's Club are encouraging residents to fight pollution on Wednesday by riding bicycles.
Local schools will conduct litter clean-ups of school yards during the week. At Thomas Junior High School a student prepared slide and record program on environmental problems in Arlington Heights will be presented and will be followed by discussion.

Woman Stabbed To Death; Her Son Is Charged

An Arlington Heights woman, Martha Sieburg, was found stabbed to death in her home at 6 W. Fairview St. at about 7:30 p.m. yesterday after her son reported her death to Arlington Heights police.
Police said the woman's son, Jack H. Sieburg, 34, of the same address, appeared at the police department shortly before discovery of the woman's body and told them his mother had been murdered.
After extensive questioning by an assistant state's attorney from the Cook County prosecutor's office, Sieburg was charged with murder and held without bond for appearance at 9:30 a.m. today in Arlington Heights Criminal Court. Charges were placed after Sieburg gave a formal statement to the state's attorney's office.
According to police, Mrs. Sieburg had been stabbed in the neck and back with an ordinary kitchen butcher's knife.

EASY RIDERS. Next Wednesday of Earth Week will be Bike Day for the Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club and all the free-wheelers of the village. Bike rides from Frontier, Pioneer, Hasbrook and Recreation Park will start at 9:45. All are invited. A drawing for a free bike accessory will be held. The club encourages commuters to ride bikes or walk to the train or use a car pool to work.

Police Warn Stolen Pills Circulating

Mount Prospect Police have issued a warning that some of the 48,000 sleeping pills stolen recently from a local pharmaceutical manufacturer are being circulated in the Northwest suburbs.
Sgt. Joseph Bopp, a detective investigating the theft, urged parents to be on the look-out for the small, orange pill stamped with the letters "A" and "S." He said parents should bring their children to the police station, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., if there is any evidence the children have taken the pill, or if they have it in their possession.
Bopp said persons taking the drug "act like they are extremely intoxicated without the smell of alcohol, have trouble walking and are prone to falling down." He said the pills are "exceedingly dangerous and can cause death."
POLICE SAID THE pills were stolen April 5 from Arnar-Stone Laboratories, Inc., 601 E. Kensington Rd. in Mount Prospect.
The thieves gained entrance to the laboratory through a heating vent through the roof, according to police. No one has yet been charged for the theft. The drug, brand-named "Sopor," is a sedation tablet made with methaqualone, according to Louis Winsauer, vice-president of manufacturing at Arnar-Stone.
Winsauer said the drug works as a depressant on the central nervous system and affects the center of the brain that controls sleep. He said the drug is non-toxic but that an overdose of "up to 30 or so tablets" could cause death.
"It is a hypnotic drug and the prescribed dosage is one tablet before going to bed," Winsauer said. "If someone takes one or two tablets he will feel woozy and fall asleep. Taking over 3 is getting into the danger zone."
HE SAID THE effect of the pill depended on the dosage and the size and physical make-up of the individual.
The drug is legally available only by prescription. Bopp said Sopor is classified as a non-narcotic controlled drug, and possession of it without a prescription is illegal.
He said that about 100 of the pills have been recovered so far.
Mount Prospect police said they found approximately 60 pills fitting the description of the stolen ones in the possession of Robert Fly, 115 Waterman Rd., Arlington Heights. Fly was arrested Tuesday at Meadows Park in the northwest part of Mount Prospect and charged with possession.

Adults Only

OK Trial Of Swim Plan

by SANDRA J. BROWNING

Adults only swimming at all outdoor swimming pools operated by the Arlington Heights Park District will be given a one-week trial.

At a Park Board meeting Tuesday night, the board approved the trial period on recommendation of the recreation staff, which originally proposed the policy. About five residents attending the meeting expressed opposition to the policy.

After negative citizen reaction to the policy, it was amended slightly to allow the one-week test to see if it is popular with residents.

As suggested, the policy will mean only adults (18 years old and older) will be allowed to use the park district's five outdoor swimming pools from 8:30 to 8 p.m. each weekday. Following the adult only swimming time, the pools will then be open for another hour and a half for general public swimming.

The recommendation for the trial period was presented by Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation for the park district. In his report to the board, Dodd stated, "We have received many complaints about the proposed adult swim hours scheduled for each . . . pool . . . All complaints are being received from the Recreation and Pioneer Park areas except one from Camelot Park . . ."

Dodd recommended that "we not change the plan but determine after one week if the program is successful. If it proves to be unsuccessful, I would further recommend that the respective pool managers be given the option to schedule recreation swim. Adult swimming could then be scheduled at each pool during pre-announced dates at various times during the rest of the summer."

DURING THE MEETING, Dodd said the park district had received between 30 to 40 complaints about the adult policy and "that's not many when you consider the number of people who use the pools."

William Meister, who was elected to the Park Board recently but who will not take office until next month, questioned whether those calls were an accurate indication of community response. "I've had that many calls myself," he said.

Mrs. Vincent Cunningham, who protested the policy at a board meeting in March added that she had received "at least 25 calls myself."

A representative of the Heritage Park Community Association said his group wanted to "go on record" as being opposed to the policy.

RICHARD PEASE, a representative of the Greenbrier Civic Association, said he agreed the policy was unsatisfactory. He stressed the local swimming facilities were "family" pools.

Glenn Grosch, the representative from the Ivy Hill Civic Association, said the association's 10-member board had discussed the policy and was not in favor of it.

Dodd stressed the adults only time would be tried for one week and members of the recreation staff would "keep on top of it" to see if the policy was successful.

Board President Charles Cronin said he didn't think a week was a long enough trial. Board member Jack Edwards said he thought the test period was all right and the policy should be handled on a park-by-park basis.

Board member Edward Condon said the main issue of the discussion was "whether the board was right" when it gave the recreation staff the flexibility to offer the adult time.

Grosch, who lives near Camelot Park, said board approval of the trial period for all five of the pools rather than changing the policy was "skirting the issue."

MRS. CUNNINGHAM said she thought the trial period was merely creating dissension among citizens "for no reason."

Dodd said another reason the policy should not be changed was because the park district's summer brochure had already gone to the printers and it was too late to make any changes. The brochure will contain a description of the adult swim policy.

A resident suggested that although the bulletin was already at the printers, the change could merely be inserted on a separate piece of paper before the brochures were mailed out.

Park Board member-elect Meister, in addition to making comments at the meeting, submitted a letter to the board on the issue.

The letter stated, "Mr. Robert Stenzel and I, both recently elected to the Park Board, are deeply concerned with the community reaction to the adult-only swim schedule. Mr. Stenzel has asked that in his absence I present his views on the subject which parallel my own."

"THE INTENSE CITIZEN opposition to the proposed hours . . . suggests an immediate reconsideration of this policy. I strongly recommend that the policy be reviewed at once, not waiting until I become a voting member of the board on May 1. We must avoid unfavorable publicity and discourage divisiveness between the citizenry."

"In my opinion, the policy was ill-advised in its concept. The exclusion of any group of citizens during prime family time would be regrettable. We must maintain a family-oriented park system."

Board member Edward Condon said during the meeting, "We're not too concerned about publicity. We're concerned about the people" and added the board members were "not concerned" about what the local newspaper says.

President Cronin said the board originally approved the policy because, "We thought the people who are shelling out the dough should get a chance" and then added that perhaps the board had gone a little "overboard."

The discussion of the issue was concluded by Cronin's comment, "We appreciate the comments and hope it works out all right."

3 Kids Taken From Ex-Cop

The three children of former Wheeling policeman Ted Homeyer have been declared wards of the state, and have been removed from the Homeyer home.

Homeyer, 32, of 736 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, was charged by Arlington Heights police with aggravated battery and cruelty to children Oct. 28.

The Cook County Grand Jury March 16 declined to indict Homeyer, who had been free on $25,000 bond.

Family Court Judge John P. McGury, in a "dispositional hearing" April 7, declared the children wards of the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Service.

In taking the action, Judge McGury reportedly accepted the recommendation of a psychiatric report resulting from the examination of the children, who range in age from 10 to 13 years.

Two of the children reportedly have been placed in foster homes while the third has been placed in a foster home temporarily, awaiting placement for psychiatric treatment.

THE FAMILY COURT proceedings, which were conducted separately, but simultaneously with the criminal court proceedings, were continued to May 5 for the finalization of Judge McGury's orders.

In the original criminal charges against Homeyer, police alleged he beat his 10-year-old daughter so the child could not sit in school for two days. The police further alleged the children had been locked, occasionally for extended periods, in a small wooden box in the basement as a form of punishment.

The box was confiscated by Arlington Heights police.

Park District Pools Needs Inner Tubes

If it's round, has a hole in the middle and is inflatable, the Arlington Heights Park District wants it.

Jack Peleck, recreation supervisor for the park district, is looking for donations of inner tubes of any size. The inner tubes will be used in summer programs in the park district's one indoor and five outdoor swimming pools. These programs include jousting and water basketball.

People who would like to donate inner tubes may contact Peleck at the park district's administration office, 253-0620.

18-Point Master Plan Ready

Mass Anti-Drug Meeting Is Tonight

(Editor's Note: This is the second of two articles on the master plan to combat drug abuse in Arlington Heights. The plan will be presented at a public meeting at 7:30 p.m. tonight in the auditorium of John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights. Residents have been urged to attend the meeting to show their support for the proposed solutions to the village's problem.)

by SANDRA J. BROWNING
Tonight's meeting of the Community Action Program (CAP) will mark another step in the long road of trying to solve the problems which lead Arlington Heights youths to take drugs. An 18-point master plan will be presented for community acceptance tonight and a chairman of CAP will be appointed.

The proposed programs include youth workers, health services bureau, youth advisory board, drug education programs for the schools, a hotline telephone service, a drop-in center, a youth program committee, legal referral services, a youth employment center and other programs.

The purpose of CAP, which started with a series of 17 meetings in October, is to motivate people in the community to accept the realities of the local drug problem and take the responsibility for providing solutions.

ONE OF THE proposed solutions from the parent-teacher committee involved in CAP is to hire a full-time public relations director to establish a specific communication program. The purpose of this program would be to promote and stimulate effective communication between family members and between members of the community. A "Talk Week" of special activities to promote communication would be part of this proposal.

Another proposal in the master plan is creation of a youth program committee to aid in the planning and execution of community programs. Proposed by a committee of students from St. Viator High School, this committee would include 15 elected members from local high schools, junior high schools and Harper College. They would serve as an advisory group to organizations which want to sponsor youth activities.

A youth center planned specifically for junior high school groups has been proposed by representatives from junior high schools, service clubs and special interest groups.

This center's purpose would be to provide an atmosphere aimed at the needs of the junior high school students. Students would bear the responsibility for programming, meeting their own needs, and operation of the center.

THE JUNIOR high school center would be run by a governing board of four elected students and three appointed adult members.

Suggested items to be included in the center, which possibly could be located in the present high school youth center in the basement of Olympic Pool, include pool tables, ping pong tables, snack bar, study area, shuffle board, record player, movie projector and tables.

Three proposals in the master plan were suggested by representatives from the legal profession. These include the creation of a study committee, legal referral system and communications groups.

The study committee would study existing laws, enforcement and penalties in relation to drug abuse. The committee would, after study, make recommendations to various legislative bodies for improved methods of finding drug victims and rehabilitating them.

The legal referral system would include specially trained members of the Northwest Suburban Bar Association. These members would be available to counsel persons victimized by drugs prior to arrest. The referral system would also provide some counseling after arrest. Legal fees would be based on ability to pay.

THE PROPOSAL for communication groups would include adults organizing to educate themselves in the problems of communication, to study the prevention of drug abuse, to train for the recognition of drug problems and to know community facilities available for prevention and rehabilitation. This program would furnish knowledgeable speakers to inform other groups about problem areas.

Creation of a local youth employment center was proposed by the combined group of students from various public high schools. This service would be designed to provide immediate jobs for local youths, as well as provide organized job counseling service. At least two offices and a reception area would be needed for the employment center and the budget is estimated at $7,300.

Representatives of special interest groups have proposed a youth center aimed at high school students and older young people. The center would include a coffee house, a film-lecture center, crafts shop, a dance-concert hall and other young adult programs.

THE CENTER would be run, staffed and organized by young people using professional services for financial and legal matters. A not-for-profit corporation would be formed to handle the administration and finances of the center and young people would undertake the construction of the center.

An information, education and counseling bureau was also proposed by the special interest group. Operations would include providing general counseling, drug abuse information, referral services and other programs. The center would be run, staffed and organized by trained young people.

The bureau would be built by local youths and open to everyone. Cost estimates vary from $44,450 to $22,250 for the first year.

Bus Purchasing Concept Deferred

The Arlington Heights Park Board decided Tuesday night to defer a decision on whether the park district should go into the bus business.

The purchase of two buses previously used by high school Dist. 214 was recommended by Angelo Capulli, superintendent of parks, and Ronald Dodd, superintendent of recreation.

The decision of the bus purchase was deferred because the board wanted to know more information about the costs of insurance, storage and maintenance. Board members requested that these figures be compared with the cost of renting buses, which the park district has done in the past.

The two buses include one which seats 53 people and would cost $700 and one which would seat 44 people and cost $600. Prices on new buses are about $9,000, according to Capulli.

THE DECISION was also deferred because a woman who heard about the suggestion for the park district buying buses had complained at a meeting in February. Dodd recommended the woman be informed about the proposal so she could express her opinions at a board meeting.

In his recommendation, Dodd stated, "We certainly would make good use of two buses for the summer months and, as our programs increase in number and quantity of participants increase during the school year, we would have the need for a second bus year round."

Capulli said the buses were in good condition and the price was also good. He requested the board approve the purchase so he could tell Dist. 211 officials to hold the buses for the park district.

PARK BOARD President Charles Cronin asked where the buses would be parked and Capulli answered, "I don't know where to put them."

Cronin said the board had to have comparison of the cost of buying buses versus the cost of renting the vehicles.

Capulli said he was afraid the park district might not be able to get the buses if there was a delay on the decision.

Board member Jack Edwards stressed the board had to have all the facts before making a decision because "the cost of maintenance, parking and insurance could push the cost right out of sight."

Dodd said all the requested information would be prepared in time for the board's next meeting April 26.

Policeman Gets Commendation

An Arlington Heights policeman has received an official commendation from the chief of police for his actions following a burglary March 27.

Patrolman Ronald W. Sum was commended by Chief L. W. Calderwood, "for his alertness and aggressiveness" at the scene of the burglary, which occurred at Landwehr's TV & Appliances, 1000 W. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights.

Sum was credited with apprehending one man at the scene, who was charged with conspiracy to commit burglary, and with identifying, by a photograph, a second suspect Sum had seen when he first arrived at the appliance store.

Arrested at the scene was Victor Martin Rigo, 22, of Chicago. He was released on $1,000 bond awaiting an April 23 court date.

The second suspect, Donald Wilcozek, 22, of 340 S. Princeton Ave., Itasca, reportedly surrendered at a later date. Wilcozek was charged with burglary, attempted burglary and possession of stolen property, and has been freed on $2,000 bond.

A tool bag, with Wilcozek's name on the side, was reportedly found at the scene in addition to a car registered to Wilcozek. An inventory of the car's contents later produced a rifle reported stolen from a store in Rapid City, S.D., according to police.

FOR LESS THAN

Anything that can be painted can be changed to take on the appearance of rich wood grain, of aged antique or beautiful marble. The process is so simple a child could do it. Yet the realism you can achieve with Old Masters will amaze and delight you. The grand part about achieving these effects is that you don't have to remove the old finish. This means no scraping, no bleaching, no staining, and no special tools are required to obtain any of these effects. Any piece of furniture that doesn't fit its surroundings or woodwork that doesn't fit the decor can be easily changed to complement its setting. The oldest assortment of furniture and fixtures can be made to look as though they belonged to each other. Regardless of how dark or light the item is, Old Masters can completely change its appearance without removing the old finish. See how. See it demonstrated. And see how little it costs to make these amazing changes....

It's Spring, And Time To Beware Of Gyp Repair Artists

by BRAD BREKKE
The sound of door chiming.
"Yes?"
"Hi lady, I'm from the Ajax Chimney Repair Co. I just happened to be in the neighborhood and noticed your chimney is about to fall. Mind if I check it?"
"Why...I suppose not."
"Just routine, maybe I can fix it for you."
Ten minutes later there was a loud crash, like falling bricks, at the side of her house.
"Sorry lady, your chimney was a danger to all the little kids in the neighborhood so I pushed it over. You'll need a new chimney. It won't cost much and since I'm feeling generous today, why don't you just sign on the dotted line. These jobs usually go for $500, but I'm willing to do the work for $400."

The woman, who was elderly and knew nothing about chimneys, signed the contract.
AFTER THE MAN rebuilt her chimney, he drove her to the bank so she could draw out $400 in cash.
She gave it to him.
But little did she know she had been "had," that the same job might have cost only $75 at a reputable firm and that quite possibly her chimney didn't even need repairing before the "shaker" climbed on her roof.

IT IS SPRING. And it is also a time to beware of the spring gyp artists, according to the Chicago Better Business Bureau (BBB).
These are fellows who will sell you quick home improvements for an exorbitant price and if you ever need service, forget it. They will either have changed their name or be long gone.
Ben Ugelow, who is manager of the BBB's home improvement division, warns homeowners to be on the lookout for these people, who come out of hibernation in large numbers during the spring.

"Check the age of a firm. Don't sign a contract or say yes to them until you have a chance to think and check them out."
"A MAN MIGHT tell you his name is John Smith when he repairs your roof, but when you want service for a leak, he's either assumed a different name or has disappeared. And then there's nothing you can do."
"Be wary of salesmen who ring your doorbell in the spring. Don't automatically employ a man who goes door-to-door. There's a good chance he's dishonest.

Call the BBB if you're unsure. And don't pay them in cash.
"They won't hesitate to drive you to the bank so you can pay them their due, but don't do it. You'll never get your money back if they aren't legitimate and you can find that out by calling us."
"See if the man, either representing himself or a firm, has an office and a phone number where he can be reached. I mean an actual office, not just an address. And find out if the phone number he gives you is his or just an answering service. If it's the latter and you have a complaint, you'll never be able to reach him, so be alert," said Ugelow.

HE SAID ELDERLY persons are the most preyed upon by these swindlers because they will forget to check a firm out and many times are senile.
"If you have proof of a fraud or that you were taken, call the BBB and they'll try to work it out for you. If a firm is halfway legitimate, they'll cooperate because they don't want to have a bad report from the BBB filed on them. If it's a legal violation, it can be settled in court," he said.
Ugelow said many spring gyp artists pose as asphalt companies and will offer

Regner Endorses Alan Abrams In 8th Ward Race

A second state legislator, State Rep. David Regner (R-Mount Prospect), has jumped into the eighth ward aldermanic race in Des Plaines.
Regner yesterday announced his endorsement of Alan Abrams, 514 W. Westmere Rd., an attorney and member of the city's real estate brokers review board, who is running against incumbent Ald. Edward Shillington.
Tuesday, Shillington got the support of state Rep. Eugene Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights), who announced his endorsement of the incumbent at a press conference in the Des Plaines city hall.
The eighth ward is a part of the third representative district, which is represented by both Schlickman and Regner, as well as Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights).
Regner told the Herald that he has never before become involved in a local election but "the developments over the past several days are forcing me to make a statement."
"I've known both of these people, Al Abrams and Ed Shillington, for a number of years and I know the problems in Des Plaines," Regner said.
"Knowing the two candidates, I know Al Abrams is eminently more qualified to fulfill the responsibilities of alderman in Des Plaines than Shillington," he said.
"Based on the qualifications of the two candidates and the way the thing is developing I have to step forward and express my views on the two men involved," said Regner. "I urge the people in the eighth ward to support Al Abrams. They would have much better representation than they would have if it were the other way around."

"I've never attempted to get involved in a local election but I feel the developments over the past several days are forcing me to make a statement," he said.
Shillington, a two-term incumbent who lives at 645 S. Dara James Rd., said he was "very proud" to get the endorsement from Schlickman, whom he described as a man who "has worked awful hard for me and the people of my ward."
At the press conference Tuesday, Schlickman said he also endorsed a slate of candidates in the recent Arlington Heights village election, but had not been involved in any local election since becoming a state representative in 1965.
If Shillington fails to win re-election, it would mean a great loss to Des Plaines, Schlickman said.
"When it comes to my personal attention that there is a fellow who is in need of re-election and needs support for re-election, I'm going to support him," he said.
Schlickman said his endorsement "is of an affirmative nature and is not designed to reflect adversely on anyone."

DOING ONE OF THE THINGS a mayor must do well, Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, along with fire chief Frank Haag, shovels the first mound of dirt at groundbreaking ceremonies yesterday for the city's soon-to-be-constructed fire station at 389 N. River Rd. The building, which will cost about $279,000 to build will consist of 15,000 square feet. It will house a shift of 13 men and two officers in addition to the fire prevention bureau offices for the chief and deputy chief. It will be completed at the end of November.

St. Stephen School Chosen To Participate In New Education Program

St. Stephen Protomartyr School in Des Plaines has been chosen to participate in a nation-wide program of educational innovation.
The catholic school, located at Prospect and Ash, this September will change its classroom organization and the way students are taught as part of a new program, designed by the Kettering Foundation, an Ohio-based education research organization.
St. Stephen's is one of three schools in the Northwest suburbs, and one of 300 public and private schools nationwide, chosen to participate in the program, according to officials of the Roman Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago.

The school's principal, Sister Mary Ellen, told the Herald that the new program is "a real breakthrough in education," which will help the school to be more relevant, and it will help students to learn how to cope with society.
Under the new plan, a student will not be grouped with only students of his own age. A ten-year-old might be in a class unit with students who are eight or nine years old.
AND EACH of these expanded units will be taught by several teachers, who will work together in planning for each student, according to Archdiocese officials.

The new plan is an effort to shape the school to meet the needs of students, Sister Mary Ellen said.
One reason schools have become irrelevant is that students are expected to be able to learn certain concepts at a specific age. For instance, a nine-year-old fourth grader is expected to be able to learn multiplication. But some nine-year-olds aren't ready to learn multiplication, while some eight-year-olds are ready.
Grouping children by a wider age-range will allow them to learn concepts when they are ready, at their own rate.

Younger students also will learn from older students, Sister Mary Ellen said.
The Kettering plan also presents an opportunity to "rethink what education is all about," she said.
In the past, it was felt that education was giving knowledge to students. But with the world changing so quickly, the knowledge learned by students is no longer true several years later.
Critical thinking and problem solving will be emphasized so that students can teach themselves and learn how to cope as an adult with the society in which they will live, she said.
THE APPROXIMATELY 600 St. Stephen students will be tested to assess their individual progress and needs, in preparation for the September "target date" for beginning the program, Sister Mary Ellen said.

A three-day teacher seminar will be held later this month at the school.
A representative of the Kettering Foundation, of Dayton, Ohio, Jack Helfrich also will meet this month with school principals of the 30 Chicago Catholic schools chosen to participate in the program.
School faculties will meet this summer to continue preparations, according to the Rev. Robert Clark, Archdiocese superintendent.

At St. Stephen's, the change to unit class organization will start slowly, with only one or two subjects, like mathematics and language arts, being taught in units. The rest of the school day, students will remain in regular school grades.
The Kettering Foundation does not contribute funds to the program, however, it does help train top personnel, and make some teaching materials available, which are not otherwise available to the schools, spokesmen said.

This Morning In Brief

The World
Premier Chou En-lai met and talked with American table tennis players and said their visit has opened "a new chapter" in relations between Communist China and the United States. He said more Americans would be coming to further lift the Bamboo Curtain.
The Vatican Congregation for Divine Worship has advised against the use of "Here Comes The Bride" and other traditional songs at Catholic weddings. More sacred music was suggested.
Israel's counterproposal on reopening the Suez Canal was reported to have run into a snag because of U.S. delay in outlining safeguards to prevent Egyptian and Soviet troops from crossing the waterway if Israeli troops are pulled back.

The Nation
Four civilians recruited by an insurance salesman left for Laos to offer themselves as replacements for American prisoners of war in North Vietnam.
President Nixon announced a broad relaxation of the embargo that has barred direct U.S. trade with Communist China for 21 years.
Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, accused the FBI of spying on Earth Day rallies held a year ago to glorify the environment. He said Congress should set up a board to monitor all government agencies who gather intelligence on civilians.

The State
The Illinois House unanimously passed and sent to the governor legislation which would prohibit income tax accounting firms from disclosing information concerning their clients.
Highway construction in Madison and St. Clair counties will be resumed April 15 under an agreement reached by labor unions, Negro representatives and contractors in federal court in Springfield.
Four residents of the near downtown Colonial House Apartment Hotel died in a fire that swept the buildings' third floor. Damage to the hotel was estimated at $25,000.

The War
South Vietnamese relief forces lifted a 15-day siege at Fire Base 6 permitting U.S. helicopters to fly tons of food, water and ammunition in to defenders of the strategic outpost.

Shillington Faces Organized Challenge From West Side

He's not known as big daddy, but if you mentioned the name to any of his city council colleagues, they'd know right away that you were talking about Ed Shillington.

Shillington, 39, of 645 S. Dara James Rd., is running hard to retain the council seat he's held for eight years. The butt of frequent city council jokes about his 10 children Shillington may be forced to sign up all of them as campaign workers to turn back the organized challenge he faces in his west side ward.

Shillington says his record as an alderman is one of accomplishment, both for the eighth ward and the city. He says he's played a crucial part in moving ahead on senior citizen housing, in conducting a complete traffic study of his ward to improve traffic flow and safety, and in constructing new storm sewers on the west side to help end flooding.

Shillington says that as former chairman of the council's buildings and grounds committee, he was instrumental in building the new $300,000 public works garage and worked hard to obtain Chicago water for the city.

He says he's been against the sewage plant proposed for Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road since 1966 and has consistently voted to continue the fight against location of the plant in the city.

But most of all, I feel I should be re-elected because I feel there's a lot that has to be done out in the eighth ward," says Shillington.

We need better street lighting in most areas of the ward and it's most imperative that the city initiate this, along with sidewalks on Algonquin Road and on Thacker Street," he says.

Shillington, who's being opposed by Mayor Herbert Behrel, the Elk Grove Twp. Republican Organization and his eighth ward colleague, Ald. Robert Michaels, says that west side residents more than ever need an independent voice on city council.

I do feel more leadership has to be brought forth on the city council instead of favoritism such as being shown by our present mayor in the assignment of committees," he says. Shillington has been assigned by Behrel to chair the city code committee, which rarely has any reason to meet.

According to Shillington, his opponent, Alan Abrams, is "the mayor's man."

It's important that you represent the feelings of the people and not always the feelings of the Mayor," he says. "He's come up with a lot of good ideas, but I don't understand him, but I feel that you have to take responsibility for the people in your ward and pay attention to their feelings."

Shillington says his 11 years as a Des Plaines resident make him more familiar than Abrams with the problems of the city and what should be done to solve them.

He also says that one of Abrams' main issues, a new O'Hare Airport runway that would direct air traffic over the eighth ward as an unwarranted "scarce" is designed to stir up the residents.

Shillington says the City of Chicago has no plan to build the runway, mostly because the cost of acquiring the needed land is much too costly.

But he dropped the plans for this runway," he says. "As a matter of fact, they're not going to be shown on the map."

Erbach Supporters Slate Auto Caravan

Supporters of Arthur Erblich, candidate for fifth ward alderman in Des Plaines, will stage an auto caravan in the southside ward this Sunday afternoon.

According to a statement from Erblich's campaign office, the caravan will start at Prospect and Spruce avenues at 2 p.m. and go to 100 persons are expected to take part.

For more information, residents are asked to call 297-7341 or 827-2666.

VIP Endorses George Olen For 2nd Ward

George Olen, 1219 White St., candidate for second ward alderman in next Tuesday's city council elections, has been endorsed by the local Voters Independent Party (VIP).

Little League Tryouts Scheduled Saturday

The second and third tryout sessions for the south side little league in Des Plaines will be held this Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 4 p.m. at South Park (Lawndale and White streets).

Any boy who was not able to attend last week's tryout must attend both of this week's tryouts to be eligible for selection on a league team.

Applications for league participation may be obtained from the Des Plaines Park District. Tryouts are at 1 p.m. for 11-year olds, 2 p.m. for 10-year olds, 3 p.m. for 9-year olds and 4 p.m. for 8-year olds.

If weather forces postponement of the two tryouts, another session will be held Saturday, April 24.

Aldermanic Election --1971--

Stories by Bob Casey

2 Vying For Eighth Ward Post

Two west side residents are clashing head-on in the eighth ward aldermanic election in Des Plaines, which will be decided at next Tuesday's city council election.

Ald. Edward Shillington, the incumbent, is a production supervisor at Silver Skillet Food Products in Skokie. An eight-year council veteran, he heads the council's city code committee.

Alan Abrams, an attorney for The Richardson Co. of Des Plaines, serves on the city's real estate brokers review board. He is also a chemical engineer and is a Republican Party precinct captain.

In the interviews with the Herald staff, the candidates were asked a number of questions ranging from their views on ward problems to new low-income housing in the city to whether or not they will disclose their campaign spending and contributors.

Ald. Sherwood Replies To Opponent's Comment

A Des Plaines alderman has issued a rebuttal to what he says were charges made against him by a candidate for the other city council seat in his ward.

Ald. Robert Sherwood (2nd) said he felt that he had to reply to "the misleading, negative statement" made in a Herald interview this week by George Olen, 1242 White St., candidate for the other second ward council seat.

"During this aldermanic campaign, I have sat by and observed the three candidates and analyzed their statements on various issues facing the city, without taking an active part in the campaign," said Sherwood, who was elected to a four-year term in 1969.

"However, in the Monday issue of the Herald, George Olen saw fit to attack me personally, even though I am not one of his opponents nor a candidate," he said in a statement.

REFERRING TO the second ward in the Herald interview, Olen said "we do need a spokesman between city hall and the people and we don't have it right now."

"This might be a job at Ald. Sherwood, but that is the situation," Olen said. "I don't think we've had an alderman who has worked for the people since Lou Wright (Sherwood's predecessor)," Olen said.

Olen also said the ward has a great need for street improvements and said the second ward is "almost ignored as far as street improvements go."

In his statement, Sherwood listed portions of 10 ward streets scheduled for resurfacing this year. He also objected to Olen's contention that Center Street residents had not been adequately informed about city plans to widen their street.

"Obviously, due to lack of issues, Mr. Olen has attempted to create issues that would be detrimental to the majority of the residents of Des Plaines," Sherwood said.

SHERWOOD SAID HE discussed city plans with Center Street residents "as long as 1 1/2 years ago." He said he has since received only one telephone call from a resident opposing the plan.

Olen presented a petition with signatures from about 50 residents who said they opposed the plans. After receiving the petition, the council's streets and traffic committee held a hearing on the plans and then referred them to the city traffic commission.

Sherwood described an alternate plan put forth by Olen to make both Center and Cora streets one-way as "totally unacceptable" because it would greatly increase traffic on Cora Street, which is used by children walking to Central School.

He accused Olen of being an "isolationist," saying the city has eight wards.

"To be an isolationist, as Mr. Olen appears to be, would not benefit the City of Des Plaines and would impede the normal progress and growth of our great city," said Sherwood.

Olen's opponents in the second ward are James Reilly, 1030 Cora St., and Kenneth Kehe, 1419 Forest Ave. The seat was vacated by the resignation in February of former alderman Alfred Prickett.

Abrams To Leave Gallery For Assigned Board Seat?

The man who's probably got the best attendance record at city council meetings in the past year is not an alderman.

He's Alan Abrams, a west side resident who wants very much to give up his regular seat in the gallery and move to the chair reserved for the junior eighth ward council member.

Abrams, 35, of 514 Westmore Rd., says both the city and his ward face "A number of subtle problems caused by growing urbanization" which he is better qualified to deal with than his opponent.

An attorney and chemical engineer, the soft-spoken Abrams has lined up a formidable group of supporters, including the mayor, a state representative, the local Republican organization and the ward's other alderman.

"The general development of this area, such as the new proposed runways at O'Hare, the proposed sewage treatment plant and the proposed development of up to 1,200 apartments adjacent to our community were important factors that led me into seeking election as alderman," he says.

Abrams acknowledges that one of his major issues, the sewage plant proposed for Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, is generally opposed throughout the ward and has been fought from the start by the city.

But even if the Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) goes ahead with the facility, which seems likely, Abrams maintains that he will be able to use his training both as a chemical engineer and attorney to make sure the plant does as little harm as possible.

HE SAYS HE has "already observed dramatic changes" in the design of the proposed plant that will help reduce the pollution content of effluent it will be discharging into Higgins-Willow Creek.

"With my background as a chemical engineer, I personally will continue to watch the progress of those plans and continue to try to make them spend the money to make that plant almost pollution-free," says Abrams.

He says he also opposes any expansion of O'Hare Airport and suggests that the city ought to get behind an effort to close the airport to all traffic at night to reduce jet noise.

Washington National Airport near Washington, D.C., has been closed at night for years, Abrams says, and there's no reason why O'Hare couldn't follow a similar procedure to give some relief to nearby residents.

Here are his stands on other issues facing the city:

YOUTH PROBLEMS: Yes, I favor more positive participation to give some support and to attempt to reach youth before a crisis is created. (Increased concern about youth problems) may go a long way toward remedying the terrible rise in youth crime we've seen in the community.

ENVIRONMENT: I do not believe the city is doing enough. It has done almost nothing insofar as implementing the existing ordinances we now have.

Home rule will give us increased penalties and at the same time allow us to bring violators into compliance with our ordinances or to stop operation.

With the broad licensing powers we should be getting, we'll have the power to make the right to do business conditional on the elimination of pollution. This will change and change dramatically in the future. The city has done little, but they have been straightjacketed under our laws which have existed for 100 years.

CITY EMPLOYE LABOR RELATIONS: The city has gone a long way in enacting its labor relations ordinance to provide for collective bargaining on the part of the employees. (In the past) the negotiations have been rife with strife and hard feelings and tragically they're still that way somewhat today.

This is hindsight, but it seems both sides could have approached each other in a more conciliatory fashion than they have, with both sides understanding the problems of the other side. Tragically, at the moment there is no real present solution to the conflict between public employees and their government employers.

NEW LOW-INCOME HOUSING in the city: There is a need for our own citizens now in the community for more adequate housing, people who live here and work here and do not have adequate housing. For those people, I think our own community could respond and should respond by providing adequate public housing. However, I am strictly opposed to the proposed plans advanced by the Chicago Housing Authority to simply relocate vast numbers from Chicago's inner city to our community. This is not a practical solution either for people here or the people who want to relocate here. Many people look at the emotional word low-income housing and fail really to distinguish the number of variations that fall under that general term. I do feel very strongly that the community and the citizens of Des Plaines regard the community as an open one, that people of different backgrounds and races are welcome here like everyone else.

HIRING ALFRED PRICKETT, former alderman, as city building commissioner: Yes, I would have voted for him. There are two features of it, one the result, having former alderman Prickett as the building commissioner and the other part of it was the method used to select Mr. Prickett. Taken alone, I have a tremendous admiration for him in regard to his awareness and his ability to catch even the smallest detail or the smallest impropriety. Taken alone, I don't believe anyone would say no, but the method employed (to hire Prickett) seems to be decidedly wrong.

CITY COUNCIL: It would seem from an observer that there is less debate than there should be on some of the critical issues that come before the city council. (what might be needed) are people with more diverse backgrounds, new ideas, new directions.

CITY MANAGER SYSTEM: No, I don't believe the city manager type of government is as effective or responsive to the needs of the citizens as the form of government involving a city council and a mayor. The city manager is an administrator but the mayor is an administrator and a politically responsive individual. You need someone who is more responsive to the citizens.

PUBLIC HEARINGS ON THE CITY BUDGET: On the budget, clearly, I do believe that a public hearing should be held.

ON THE CITY COMPREHENSIVE PLAN: Even more so than the budget. The plan will have tremendous impact for a number of years. The people must have more direct access than through their elected officials to voice their feelings on much of the proposals that are to be advanced.

Fossil Lecture Set By Geological Unit

The Des Plaines Valley Geological Society will sponsor an illustrated lecture, "Mazon Creek Fossils," tonight at 8 p.m. at the West Park fieldhouse, 651 N. Wolf Rd., Des Plaines.

Ted and Helen Piecko of Chicago, who will present the lecture, have collected for several years in the "Pit 11 Area" at Braidwood and have worked with Field Museum officials in identification of specimens.

Several fossils bear their name.

dorced by the local Voters Independent Party (VIP).

In a statement, VIP Chairman James Baker said Olen "looks like another independent man of action" who could best serve the interests of the second ward.

The VIP also announced its support for Ald. Joseph Szabo (1st) who is running unopposed. The local party had previously announced its endorsement for Ald. Edward Shillington (8th) and B. Spencer Chase, 1140 Alfini Dr., the VIP's 1969 mayoral candidate who is running for third ward alderman.

Baker said "we have been watching the second ward race very carefully and have reached the conclusion that Mr. Olen will best serve the ward."

BAKER SAID Olen "spoke out several times on behalf of the residents while his opponents for the office sat back quietly" during a recent hearing on the proposed widening of Center Street.

Szabo, he said, "has been speaking and acting as an independent alderman for some time now."

"While he is unopposed, the VIP wants him to know we endorse his outspoken approach and the fact that he is often at odds with the Behrel machine," Baker said.

The VIP has been critical of Mayor Herbert Behrel, accusing him of running a local political machine to control city government.

"The voters of Des Plaines will have good representation and opposition to the Behrel city hall machine with the election of Chase, Olen, Shillington and Szabo," Baker said.

A fire in your home is a terrifying and sickening experience. And the aftermath is filled with confusion, worry and disorientation. Many families are left homeless, without furniture, clothing, food — and very often, money. Even with adequate insurance the problems are many.

A Des Plaines family lost practically all their possessions in a fire last Saturday afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Hilliard, 1444 E. Algonquin Rd., and their five children are in the midst of putting their lives back together. And they need a little help.

The Hilliards are presently staying with Mrs. Hilliard's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy, 2321 Cedar St., Des Plaines. But living quarters are cramped and the Hilliards need a place to stay for three or four months, until their home is repaired.

The family, which has lived in Des Plaines for four years, has been unsuccessful in their attempts to find a temporary home.

"We need a furnished home, if it's at all possible," said Mrs. Hilliard. "And we need something in Des Plaines so the children can continue to go to school. Everything in our home has been completely ruined by the fire. But if we can't find something furnished, maybe we can get some furniture from somewhere."

SINCE 1:30 P.M. SATURDAY, when the fire broke out, the Hilliards have found out about the goodness of people. Before the firetrucks had pulled away, two volunteers from the American Red Cross were there to help.

Don Hageman and Ron Anderson, both of Des Plaines, were on the scene. Don monitors the police and fire radio channels and dashes out if he thinks he can be of help. This time, he was alerted by Capt. Don Corey of the Des Plaines Fire Department.

"We're there to assist people in any way we can," said Hageman. "We're trained in advanced first aid so we can assist with the injured. We also try to put the people up in hotels, get them food and clothing. Many people don't know about this phase of the Red Cross."

The two volunteers got motel accommodations for the Hilliards at the DeVille Motor Hotel. But a family of seven in two rooms just didn't work out and when Mrs. Murphy asked them to come stay with her family, they moved in.

The Hilliards were able to salvage a small amount of clothing and have been given things to use by people in the community. "People have really been nice," Mrs. Hilliard said.

BUT THEY STILL need a place to stay within reasonable distance of Maine West, where Ronald and Rhonda go to school, and Central School, where David, Joey and Steve attend. If you know of something, please give us a call. The number is 297-6633.

"It's really going to be great," said Mrs. Joseph Tucker. She was talking about the "Port Of Call" being presented, Friday, Saturday and Sunday at St. Zachary's church in Des Plaines.

Mrs. Tucker and about 400 other people from the parish have been working late in preparation for the three day fund raiser. And they're promising fun for all ages.

St. Zachary School, 567 Algonquin Rd., Des Plaines is being changed around for the event. Walk into Bill Cunningham's Pub (fondly named after Pastor Cunningham of the church) and you'll find yourself in a barrel. Visit the Club International and Dillis Phyller will entertain you. Italy will have its fiesta table, Hawaii its dancers, and France its champagne and Old King Louis doing a ballet.

Gibson Girls and a "red hot momma" will occupy the Gay 90's room and the Jefferson Theatrical Society will be on stage in the Roarin' 20's room.

MOD AMERICA WILL be catered to by a rock band, "Fat Chance" and a dance group, "The Sandettes." The sporting group can try their luck in the Las Vegas room.

Tickets for Friday and Saturday night events are $3.50 and may be obtained by calling 827-5639 or 827-3265. Sunday's festivities will include a fun fair for adults and children, from 1:30-6 p.m., and admission is free.

Proceeds will go directly to St. Zachary's to reduce the debt on the church.

Center To Be Ready In June

Except for landscaping, the Lions Park Recreation Center should be completed early in June, according to Mount Prospect Park District officials.

Monday night park board commissioners approved bids for furniture, fertilizer and a dedication plaque to put finishing touches on the approximately $500,000 building which was begun last spring.

The center at 411 S. Maple St. has been open for activity since January, but only some of the rooms have been open.

"We'll probably be moving our offices over to the building by the end of May," said Tom Cooper, park director. Currently park officials have offices at the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 S. See-Cwun Ave.

All major construction is finished, according to Cooper. He said all that remains to be done is installing lights and ceiling in the basement teen center, a divider curtain in the gym and a 75-foot sidewalk from the parking lot to the building's entrance. Once the sidewalk is completed, Cooper said, the park district's crew will start on the outside landscaping.

As soon as the lighting and ceiling are in the basement teens will paint the walls of the youth center with designs they have chosen themselves. The youth center officially opened Monday.

Completion of the center, part of a $2.4 million bond referendum passed in February of 1969, has been slated since Labor Day last year. Unmet construction deadlines, truckers' and operators' strikes and delayed deliveries have held up completion. However, the multi-purpose room and gymnasium were opened earlier this year for park district activities.

The building consists of four craft rooms measuring 20 feet by 20 feet and one large multi-purpose room at 40 feet by 40 feet.

The entire building is air-conditioned including the gymnasium, locker and shower facilities. The gymnasium includes a stage, fold-away bleachers, six blackboards, gym equipment and an electric scoreboard.

Included in the multi-purpose room are

Kids 'Would Appreciate' Maryville Volunteers

The children would appreciate it.

That's what officials said at Maryville Academy, Central and River Roads, Des Plaines. They need volunteers to expand their medical services at the Catholic home for about 450 dependent children.

Two registered and licensed practical nurses are needed to work late afternoons and weekends, to help the two member nursing staff at the academy's 40 bed infirmary.

Volunteers are also needed to drive youngsters to Holy Family Hospital, Golf and River Road, Des Plaines, and to Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge.

The extra volunteer help would allow the Maryville staff to use their time more efficiently, and it also would get the youngsters who need extra help to the hospitals quicker, officials said.

Volunteers should be mature individuals, who are good drivers, according to Mrs. Rita Jeffreys, 513 S. Edward, Mount Prospect, who is the new coordinator of volunteer services at Maryville.

Mrs. Jeffreys explained that Maryville youngsters are served by both area hospitals.

Holy Family also gives complete examinations each spring to Maryville youths. Lutheran General began a program last year of giving thorough examinations to new Maryville youngsters, and then giving them complete medical service as long as they remain at Maryville.

The school also receives aid from the Lahey Medical Center, Des Plaines. Dr. John McMahon, of the Lahey clinic, serves at the academy's medical director. He visits the school twice a week and is available in case of emergencies, she said.

The academy also is beginning a new service, which will aid youngsters with eyesight problems, Mrs. Jeffreys said.

It was found through examinations that about 30 Maryville youngsters would benefit from eye exercise. Nine area residents have volunteered to get the program started, she said.

Also organized within the last month is a tutoring program for grade school-age girls, she said.

Mrs. Jeffreys, a housewife who became interested in Maryville through the Volunteer Service Bureau, 37 N. Plum Grove, in Palatine, has been working to increase medical services with Mrs. Sharon Garrity, 8924 Kenneth, Des Plaines, supervisor of medical service, and Mrs. Robert Staggles, assistant supervisor.

Expanded volunteer service is part of the Maryville desire to increase community involvement in the academy, officials said.

About 500 Northwest suburban residents now participate in Maryville volunteer projects, they said.

The largest is a home visitation program, in which Maryville youngsters spend some time each week with a family in the area.

Students from Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights, tutor or give instruction on playing musical instruments.

A summer "get-a-head-start" program for students about to begin high school is sponsored by the academy, with the help of Maine Township High School Dist. 207 teachers. A tutoring program for students with learning difficulties is also presented by volunteers.

Reilly To Sponsor Campaign Parade

Second ward aldermanic candidate James Reilly, 1030 Cora St., will sponsor a parade this Saturday in his ward, featuring Miss Illinois and Dixieland band.

According to a statement from his campaign office, Reilly's "Get Out the Vote" parade will begin at 1:30 Saturday afternoon. Walter Morava, parade marshal, said he promises "to make this the best parade ever staged in the second ward."

Area Resident Recounts Battle At Fire Base 6

Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Sanders knew their son, Lawrence A. Patterson, 20, was at the now notorious Fire Base 6 in the Central Highlands of South Vietnam when it was overrun by enemy troops on March 31.

They were watching television when it was announced that all allied troops at the artillery observation post had been killed.

For 11 days they awaited confirmation. "It was a pretty rough period," Sanders said yesterday, his voice breaking at most imperceptibly and just a hint of a tear appearing in his eye.

Sunday at their home at 220 N. Dwyer Ave., Arlington Heights, Sanders and his wife, Mary, learned that Patterson was one of two Americans who survived.

They also learned that he and his fellow survivor, Lt. Brian M. Thacker, 25, had been awarded the Silver Star, the nation's third highest award for valor, and the South Vietnamese Cross of Gallantry.

THE LAST AMERICANS alive on the battered hilltop, both Patterson and Thacker, had been ordered to hold their own position in a last ditch attempt to turn back the enemy. Finally abandoning his position, Patterson helped rescue a downed helicopter crew before fleeing.

From news dispatches and a letter from their son, which arrived from their son, which arrived yesterday, the Sanders' reconstructed this story.

Patterson and Thacker were among six Americans accompanying South Vietnamese troops as advisers at the fire base near the Laotian border, about 300 miles north of Saigon.

At about 5 a.m. on March 31, they were hit by a vicious North Vietnamese offensive. Patterson wrote his parents that the other four Americans were killed in the first two hours of battle.

Aided by artillery strikes directed by Patterson and Thacker, the allied forces withstood the offensive throughout the day. After 12 hours of battle, Patterson wrote, "we were forced to abandon the hill."

But first, he made his way to the radio and called for an artillery barrage on his own position. In the meantime, enemy fire, downed a U.S. helicopter attempting to pick up allied troops and Patterson went to the aid of the crew.

AFTER HELPING the seven crewmen — two of whom were wounded, from the aircraft — Patterson returned the radio now manned by Thacker. He urged the lieutenant to flee and then led the crewmen through sniper fire and "five or six ambushes" to cover in the jungle.

Patterson's letter indicated he believed Thacker to be dead. He learned that after the last radio message, Thacker waited until a final artillery barrage was "on the way" and then also fled safely. He wandered in the jungle for nine days before being found by a helicopter crew and lifted to safety.

Patterson wrote his parents that he and the helicopter crew "walked in the jungle for two or three hours before being rescued by choppers."

"I am well and unharmed in any way," Patterson wrote. "I'm back on my home base (at Pleiku) and safe now."

Described by his father as "not particularly religious," Patterson added, "Your prayers and love were felt 12,000 miles away and your son lives to prove it."

He then ended the brief letter, noting, "I have letters to write to my friends' mothers."

Patterson left his studies at Arlington High School in September, 1969, to enlist in the Army. Sanders said he did not believe the youth had any desire to go to Vietnam, although "he felt strongly about the war."

"I JUST THINK he felt he wasn't accomplishing anything and he wanted to find an aim for himself," said Sanders.

After a tour of duty in Germany, where he completed studies for his high school diploma, he was sent to Vietnam in September with the 1st Battalion of the 92nd Artillery Division.

Sanders is a retired foreign management consultant for Quaker Oats Co. His wife, Mary, is a statistician for S.T.P. Corp. in Des Plaines. They have another son, Norman, a sergeant in the U.S. Air Force stationed in Hawaii.

Louis L. Luprich, 44, of 116 W. LaSalle Rd., Arlington Heights, died yesterday in Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. He was a retired pipe fitter. Visitation is today from 2:30 to 10 p.m. in Lauterburg and Oehler Funeral Home, 2000 E. Northwest Hwy., Arlington Heights. Funeral mass will be said at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow in St. Thomas of Villanova Catholic Church, 1136 E. Anderson Dr., Palatine. Burial will be in St. Joseph Cemetery, River Grove.

Surviving are his widow, Mildred, nee Klein, one daughter, Rosemary Luprich of Milwaukee; one son, Joseph Luprich of Arlington Heights; two sisters, Mrs. Rose Elischer of Wauconda and Mrs. Eleanor Daniels of Des Plaines; and one brother, Steve Luprich of Arlington Heights.

Deaths Elsewhere

Mel J. Murray, 75, of Chicago, died Tuesday in Walther Memorial Hospital, Chicago. Funeral mass will be said at 10 a.m. today in Our Lady of Hope Catholic Church, 9711 W. Devon Ave., Rosemont. Burial will be in All Saints Cemetery, Des Plaines.

Surviving are three sisters, Mrs. Bernice Johnson of Des Plaines, Mrs. Marcella Pascenta and Patrice Murray, both of Chicago.

Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, is in charge of the funeral arrangements.

'Calley Sentence Severe'

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-Ill., said Monday the U.S. Army Court Martial's life imprisonment sentence for Lt. William Calley "was vastly too severe" and added that it is "absolutely bizarre" to think that Calley could have carefully premeditated the civilian murders he was recently convicted of.

Crane, speaking at the annual luncheon of the 13th District Republican Woman's Club in Arlington Heights, said he agrees with his brother, David, a psychiatrist who analyzed Calley and testified in his court martial that Calley was not competent to plan the actions for which the Army accused and convicted him.

He said the Calley case is one of the great tragedies of the war and defended President Nixon's decision to review the case.

The President has every right to review the case, Crane said. "He has not said he would overturn the verdict and there is no indication that he will. But as the commander and chief of the armed forces, he is the highest military court and his decision is not outside his authority."

Crane discussed a variety of topics in his hour-long speech to the GOP women including the President's proposed revenue sharing program and the lack of interest and involvement by citizens in government and politics.

He said he is giving qualified support to revenue sharing because he sees it as an improvement over present methods of federal grants.

The ideal thing would be for the federal government to cut back its spending and then cut back taxes, he said. But I don't think that's very likely to happen in the foreseeable future.

He said the President's general revenue sharing program will consolidate more than 130 different grant programs into six programs, which will result in more economy and more efficiency.

"I think this will also result in more participation and more responsibility in the decision-making process at the local level," he said.

Crane said he was unsure of the chance for passage of the revenue sharing program "because there are many in Congress who feel that local governments are too insensitive to the real problems, and also that local governments are too irresponsible."

One advantage of revenue sharing, he said, is that it would be a step toward dismantling the federal bureaucracy by putting more power in the hands of local officials.

I've found in just a little more than a year in Congress that no one really controls the bureaucracy," he said. "Congress doesn't control it, the President doesn't control it. It just continues to grow like some kind of cancer. The best way to stop it is by cutting off funds."

He told his audience, which included former 13th District Rep. Mrs. Marguerite Stitt Church, that government power should be concentrated locally, rather than on a federal level and said the need for more involvement in local government was shown in 1969 when only 25 per cent of the eligible voters participated in the Republican primary in which he won the nomination for Congress.

You can get an idea of the magnitude of the problem when you realize there was such a small turnout in the best educated and most affluent congressional district in the nation," he said.

And last year, when the voters of Illinois adopted a new Constitution, it was done so by only 35 per cent of the voters.

The No Problem Company

Created to make sure that building your dream home isn't a nightmare.

If you've talked to friends who have built their own homes, they've probably tried to talk you out of building yours. There are so many things that can go wrong. The wrong land. The wrong architectural plan for the land. The wrong builder for the architectural plan. The wrong financing for the building. And, after the home is completed, there are still many little things that can go wrong. Faced with all these problems, many people reluctantly settle for a subdivision "package"—a characterless adaptation of a model home built by a subdivisor on the subdivisor's land.

That's why we created The No Problem Company—Leigh A. Wilson & Associates. We build custom homes. But we are not just builders. We prevent problems, not make them. We literally start from the ground up to provide you with every service needed to assure that building your dream home has a happy ending.

The Land Problem. No problem. We know where the best land lies in every quality suburban community. Since we own no land, we can give you unprejudiced assistance in selecting the right land for your needs at the right price.

The Architectural Problem. No problem. We have available many of the most prominent architectural minds in the Midwest, and can create an individual design which will reflect your precise taste within the confines of your budget.

The Construction Problem. No problem. Spencer Rieke, long considered to be the finest builder of quality homes in the northwest suburban area is in charge of all construction, to assure you a residence of lasting value.

The Financing Problem. No problem. Our extensive experience in quality land and construction markets has provided us with an unique knowledge of the best sources of funds to meet your needs at the lowest possible interest rates.

The Servicing Problem. No problem. Our responsibilities don't end when we finish your home. We give you a written 1-Year No Problem Guarantee of workmanship and materials. You have peace of mind. And you never have to give us a piece of yours.

If you're thinking about building a home, don't you think that you should look into us before you leap into problems? Send for a free brochure, or call. No problem.

to blacktop a man's driveway cheap. Several such operators have been reported in the Northwest suburbs.

No neighborhood, old or new, is immune.

"They'll come by in a pickup truck and tell you they just happened to be in the neighborhood and have some material left over from the job they just finished down the street. But when it buckles on you, you won't get any service. It's a lost cause."

"Get references from him. Ask for the names of people he's done work for and contact them. Call your local chamber of commerce and see what they have to say.

"CHIMNEY SHAKERS are one of the worst. They work the old neighborhoods and swindle old folks who are forgetful and unsuspecting. First a man will climb to the top of house house... shake the chimney loose, perhaps even toppling it... then tell you how lucky you are because he's willing to fix it for an enormous price. And once you sign the contract, it's too late to do anything about it."

"Then there are the furnace people. This isn't a spring racket, but you have to watch out for them. They'll ask to see your furnace, disassemble it and leave it that way unless you buy a new one."

They'll say the old one is worn out or that gas is escaping and may kill you if it isn't fixed. They have to use their judgment on which tactics to use on a particular person, but usually pull it off.

"Then there are the landscape people. They'll come to your door posing as tree surgeons and don't really know the sap from the suckers... unless that sucker happens to be you. But they'll charge as if they did and you might lose some valuable trees to boot, because they'll find something wrong and cut one down, charging you a high price. Others do landscape work, but don't do good work and aren't around in case you are unsatisfied later."

"AND STILL OTHERS will dump a huge load of earth on your front lawn and say you ordered it and you better pay now for it. The dirt is usually dumped by a pair of husky men who won't want to argue with, so your best bet is to call the police," said Ugelow.

He said most people, unfortunately, call the police or the BBB after they've been stung, after they've paid for the work or signed a contract for it. And by then, he said, it's too late.

They've already paid the piper.

Project '70s Group A Constructive One

"The Hunger Hike-Walk for Development" will be sponsored May 9 by the Project 70's organization, a group of high school and college students promoting constructive youth involvement year round. Goals for the hike are to gain community and government awareness of hunger and developmental needs locally and in the world.

There are seven domestic projects receiving nearly half the funds collected by Project 70's organization.

One is Lakeview Pantry offering emergency relief, referrals to other helpful agencies, and job and individual guidance.

The Fifth City Pre-School, on Chicago's west side, serves as a laboratory in early education in addition to helping working residents with pre-school children.

Other local projects helped by Project 70's are Respond Now, Benton Settlement House, the Chicago Welfare Rights Organization and Project Grantsman.

On an international scale the group helps sponsor agricultural training and building programs in foreign countries.

The American Freedom From Hunger Foundation, started by John F. Kennedy in 1961 receives 15 per cent of Project 70's money.

More information on the group and "The Hunger Hike-Walk For Development" can be obtained by writing Project 70, 5248 Washington Street, Skokie, Illinois 60076 or by calling 677-0979.

Two Hunger Hikes Merged

Two proposed hunger hikes in the Northwest suburbs to raise funds for the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows and Norwesco have been combined into one hike.

One hike will now be held May 16. It will start at Maine East High School in Park Ridge, and wind through Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows, and end at the opportunity center, 3411 Kirchoff Rd. The distance covers about 20 miles.

Originally, two hikes were planned for May 9, one for people in the Mount Prospect-Arlington Heights area and one for people in the Palatine-Schaumburg area.

Rena Trevor, over-all coordinator for the hike, said that the date for the hike was changed when many area young people indicated that they would not be able to march in a hike on May 9, Mother's Day.

Mrs. Trevor said the proposed hike in the Palatine-Schaumburg area was called off because it was decided that a second hike would be too difficult to organize in such a short time period.

THE "HIKE FOR THE HUNGRY" will be conducted under the sponsorship of the Walther League, an organization of the Lutheran Church, Missouri Synod. The sponsorship will enable the hike coordinators to use the publicity materials and other hike material provided by the Walther League. It will also enable them to use the title "Hike For the Hungry."

The name has been copyrighted by the Walther League.

Mrs. Trevor said the goal of the hike is to raise $75,000 from pledges of money from those sponsoring the hikers.

Of the funds raised, 50 per cent will be donated to the center and Norwesco, and the remainder to the Mississippi Delta Ministry and a Guatemalan relief project, both projects of the Walther League.

"Our goal is to get 3,000 to hike in the march. We hope to have recruiters in all the high schools in Dist. 211 and 214, plus East Maine and West Maine high schools in Des Plaines, Barrington High School, parochial high schools, and Harper College," Mrs. Trevor said.

A SIMILAR "Hike For the Hungry" in 1969 attracted 1,500 hikers and raised $17,000 for the opportunity center.

"This march should be a more in-depth march than the one two years ago. We're contacting more high schools and so we should be able to attract more hikers," Mrs. Trevor said.

Hike money donated to the center will be used to help provide a variety of programs for low-income people, including legal aid, employment and housing referrals, family planning, English lessons and sewing lessons.

Norwesco will use the funds to help run its Head Start program for pre-school children from low-income families. The program is designed to give the children extra help in preparing for elementary school through nursery-school related activities. Head Start centers are located in Palatine, Wheeling, Arlington Heights and Des Plaines.

Persons desiring to participate in the hike should contact Mrs. Trevor at 255-7352, the opportunity center at 255-3456, youth coordinator Hilda Severs at 392-2846 or adult coordinator Doug Mosel at 259-5163.

The hike is part of an over-all fund raising drive being conducted by the opportunity center and Norwesco. The two organizations hope to raise $50,000 by Sept. 1 to help fund their programs.

Scott Pollution Talk Planned

Illinois Attorney General William Scott will be the keynote speaker at a businessmen's seminar on the "Economic Implications of Pollution Control" May 7 in Wood Dale.

The seminar will include discussions on innovative solutions to pollution control by three Chicago area business executives.

Lorenz Aggens, public service director for the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission will comment on "Planning for Environmental Quality."

S. A. Bortz, senior engineer in Ceramics Research for the Illinois Institute of Technology, will explain the theories for the "Recycling of Waste Material."

Dr. Kenneth Ries, assistant manager of the Corporate Environment Control Department of Armour and Co., will discuss "Reducing Cost of Water Pollution Control" and Dr. Donald C. Kleckner, president of Elmhurst College, will speak on "Higher Education and Its Environmental Challenge."

The seminar, which starts at 9 a.m., will be held at the Elmhurst Country Club. It is sponsored by Elmhurst College and will be the fourth annual President's Council of Business Associates' Seminar.

Three Candidates Seek 7th Ward Chair

Three men are vying for the city council seat from the north side seventh ward of Des Plaines in next Tuesday's aldermanic elections.

Ald. John Seitz, who is running for his second four-year term, is being challenged by George Brubaker, 886 N. Golf Cul-de-sac, and Arthur Kowalewski, 559 Waikiki Dr.

Seitz, of 731 Polynesian Dr., is an advertising executive for United Air Lines and serves as an advisory board member for Clearbrook Center for the Mentally Retarded. He heads the council's library committee and has been endorsed by Mayor Herbert H. Behr, City Clerk Eleanor Rohrbach, and Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi (7th).

Brubaker is an assistant professor of chemistry at Illinois Institute of Technology. He is a five-year resident of the city and has served as treasurer of Cumberland East Civic Assn.

Kowalewski, a business representative for the Painters and Decorators' Union District Council, is president of the Des Plaines Terrace Civic Assn. He has been a Des Plaines resident for six years and has been active in Little League.

In the interviews with the Herald staff, the candidates were asked a number of questions, ranging from their views on ward problems to new low-income housing in the city to whether or not they will disclose their campaign spending and contributors.

Ald. Seitz: 'I've Fulfilled My Campaign Promises'

Ald. John Seitz is happy to stand on his record of accomplishment, which he says is a good one for the first-term city council member.

"I've done what I said I would do four years ago," says Seitz, 40, of 731 Polynesian Dr. "I think I've served the people and I've certainly learned a lot in the four years experience on the council."

In 1967, according to Seitz, he ran on a platform promising to fight apartment zoning at the Rand Road-Wolf Road intersection, to establish two-way communication with ward residents and to eliminate half-streets from the seventh ward.

"That's three campaign promises made and kept," he says.

THE RAND-WOLF rezoning has now been carried to the Illinois Appellate Court, where the city is challenging an adverse circuit court ruling.

According to Seitz, the future of the three corners involved in the suit could determine what development will take place north of Cumberland School and north and east of the Cumberland Manor subdivision. He says he will continue to oppose high-density apartment zoning there whatever the outcome of the court case.

Seitz says he's fulfilled his other campaign promise by starting a newsletter ("Alderman Seitz Reports") to let ward residents know what's going on and how he votes on issues before the city council.

As for the half-streets, Seitz says, between efforts by him and Ald. Daniel Bonaguidi (7th), all but one of them has been eliminated from the ward. Seitz also takes credit for helping pressure state highway officials into approving a traffic signal for Rand and Third Avenue.

Seitz also says he's glad to see that a much-needed north side fire station has been included (on Central Road east of Wolf) in the city's proposed comprehensive plan.

ACCORDING TO HIM, the effectiveness of an alderman can best be measured by what he gets done for his ward, not by how much time he spends speaking on the council floor.

"Leadership," says Seitz, "is finding ways to get the job done. I think I've gotten a lot of things done in the ward as well as a few things for the city as a whole."

"If everybody went into city council and stood there and talked about what they've done, those council meetings would go on until four o'clock in the morning," he says.

"It's good press, but as far as getting a job done, you get it done by talking things over with the other aldermen," Seitz maintains.

Here are his views on the other issues facing the city:

YOUTH PROBLEMS: I don't think the city has the primary responsibility here. I think the parents face the responsibility. I'm certainly in agreement with the Place for People thing. Some people want the city to do it all because the parents don't want the responsibility.

ENVIRONMENT: I think there are some things that can be done. I'm on the air and water pollution committee but unfortunately most of the pollution laws almost have to be done nationally or statewide. We're talking about an ordinance for phosphate-free detergents, probably modeled after the one passed recently in Chicago. I'm all for everything we can do and I'm sure we're going to become more aggressive as we learn more.

CITY EMPLOYER labor relations: I think we were one of the very first to pass an ordinance providing for fact finding and mediation. I think that puts us a step ahead of a lot of other communities. We have to be fair to the employees. But we also have a responsibility to the taxpayers. All in all, they're probably paid as well or even in a few cases, better than private industry and have better security.

HIRING ALFRED PRICKETT, former alderman, as city building commissioner: Let's put it this way. Why didn't I vote against him? There wasn't any reason to vote against him. Sure there were some questions but there's no bad answer to those questions. We all asked those questions and they've been satisfactorily answered. If he had quit as alderman and stayed in the ward, then I think there could have been some ethical questions but everybody knew he had intended to move to his retirement home in Powers Lake (Wis.) that he's had for years.

NEW LOW-INCOME housing in the city: Senior citizen housing, yes. I've seen low-income housing that's both good and bad. I'd probably be opposed to it until I was pretty sure that it's worthwhile. (It depends on where you want to build it, how do you want to build it, is it basically for local residents and is it in violation of our zoning laws. I certainly wouldn't have any objection to investigating who these (local low-income families needing better housing) are but I'm certainly not going to say I'm for low-income housing flat out.

CITY COUNCIL: I think most of them are pretty independent. I believe there are a number of (aldermen) who exercise leadership.

PUBLIC HEARINGS on the annual city budget: All the committee meetings are open to the public. The budget's certainly not any secret thing, and anybody who wants to can come and see it.

ON THE CITY Comprehensive plan: It's been explained pretty well in the papers. Is there a need for them? Maybe when the final proposal comes up we should have a public hearing. I don't see why any elected official would object to it. We're certainly not trying to exclude anybody from knowing about it.

CITY MANAGER SYSTEM: I've given this thing a little study and I've seen good city managers. They're professionals and they're trying to pursue a career. They're trying to use each city as a stepping stone to the next one. They're not responsible to the general public, whereas an elected official is. It would take a lot more persuasion to convince me that we need one.

HUMAN RELATIONS in the city: I think we all agree that the human relations commission needs a little new blood or regeneration. But I'm not aware of any problems in this area now.

WILL YOU DISCLOSE campaign spending and contributors? I would disclose the amount I spend and everything, but the contributors for the reason that there might be people who have given who would not want it known because of possible harm to some personal relationship.

IF ELECTED, will you disclose your income and economic interests? I don't object to people knowing but because I'm not a full-time official, I don't think my private affairs should be made public.

Just to go out and make a public disclosure and put it out in the open, I see no reason to do it. I've bent over backwards in city council to avoid any possible conflict of interest. I would gladly show any of my income tax returns to any responsible party who has any questions.

Arthur Kowalewski Bills Self As The 'I Care' Man

Arthur Kowalewski says he's the 'I Care' candidate in the three-way race for seventh ward alderman.

Though he avoids criticizing the incumbent, Ald. John Seitz, or the other challenger, Kowalewski maintains that he can do a better job than either of them.

"I think I can get more things accomplished for the people in our ward and in the city," he says. "I care about any little thing that happens. I also think I can service the people better. I'd like to see more personal contact between the aldermen and the people."

"I'd also try to handle all the complaints and gripes, even if I couldn't accomplish much, the people at least deserve an answer of what you tried to do to help them," he says.

Kowalewski, 37, of 559 Waikiki Dr., cites the dispute over rezoning for apartments at the Rand Road - Wolf Road intersection as a major concern of ward residents. But he points out that all the city can do at this point is continue its appeal of an adverse circuit court decision there.

ACCORDING TO KOWALEWSKI, if the city would have agreed to a compromise with the property owners before the suit, it could have settled for a smaller number of apartments than has been imposed by a ruling of the circuit court.

"My stand is that we should have compromised in some way instead of going to the courts and letting some judge decide for us what the number of apartments would be," he says. "We could have compromised and gotten a better deal."

As of now, the city is facing the prospect along of having 350 apartment units built on one of the three corners involved in the suit. "If these corners go that way everyone's afraid of what's going to happen to the rest of the vacant land around there," Kowalewski says.

Seventh ward residents are also concerned about the fate of the 450 acres of land owned by the Catholic Church that was annexed to the city last year. A 100-acre portion is expected to be sold for development with single-family houses but some residents fear the introduction of low-income housing there, he says.

Other than the worries over rezoning, says Kowalewski, the seventh ward has no major problems. Some streets need repairs and repaving, he says. Kowalewski also favors a more strict policy with the Son Line, whose trains block roadways for long periods of time, he says, and should be ticketed.

"IT'S ALWAYS ROUGH when you're running against an incumbent," he says.

Arthur Kowalewski

"I have nothing against Jack Seitz. I think he's doing a good job, but I think it could be done better."

Kowalewski, who pledges to "only take credit for what I myself am able to accomplish," says "all an alderman is is a servant of the people. He works for the people and tries to get done what his people want accomplished."

Here are his views on other issues facing the city:

YOUTH PROBLEMS: The youth are our future leaders and they need the right guidance. They need more programs for youth in the summer in the parks and all over. One thing they could do that they do in Chicago is to show outdoor movies in the parks. I'd support (a youth center). I think you could also get outside sponsors. You have a lot of merchants who are concerned about our youth. The money has to come from somewhere. The city will have to (support it) if we can't obtain it anyplace else.

ENVIRONMENT: We're making gains. I don't know how much progress there is, but we're working on it. (Kowalewski said he favors paper garbage bags instead of the proposed plastic bags and suggested that the city consider some sort of screening device to help remove pollution and debris from the Des Plaines River.)

HIRING ALFRED PRICKETT, former alderman, as city building commissioner: I don't know. At that well, but I know the other aldermen speak highly of him. He must have been qualified or the people (of the second ward) wouldn't have elected him so often. I would like to see Al living in Des Plaines if he's going to be building commissioner. If the mayor had all those interviews with other people, he must have been the best and I would have taken the mayor's word for it.

NEW LOW-INCOME housing in the city: Where's the money coming from? I don't think we need low-income housing

... If we took a survey of the residents' incomes, I'd say we were a little above the average for a middle class community. If people here can afford regular homes and apartments, I don't think we need low-income housing. We need housing for the elderly but I would say something should be done to get investors here to invest in elderly housing ... when you start involving yourself with federal money, they could be putting up a lot of housing and they could tell you to rent it for low-income housing. They would dictate to you on this housing for the elderly and low-income housing, they would dictate sites, when they should go up and who would live in it.

CITY COUNCIL: I think they're doing a real good job, not that there aren't a few who don't need replacement. I like the way the mayor handles things although I wouldn't agree with him all the time. I think overall, they're doing a good job but everything could always be better.

PUBLIC HEARINGS on the annual city budget: I don't see where they would hurt or that they would help, either. I think we need an elected full-time treasurer. I don't think a part-time treasurer can devote enough of his time. It's a big job and you have to have a lot of time to do it all.

ON THE CITY comprehensive plan:

Yes, I think they should. People who were interested could come out and voice their opinions and the mayor and the aldermen could take it from there.

HUMAN RELATIONS in the city: I haven't heard of any dissenters or any complaints.

CITY MANAGER SYSTEM: A mayor type of government with the aldermen the way it's set up now should remain. I think they're doing a good job and it should remain this way.

DOWNTOWN REDEVELOPMENT: We've got to get more stores, more modern stores and bigger stores. Where's the big shopping center in Des Plaines? They've got Randhurst in Mount Prospect but there's no big shopping center in Des Plaines. If it's possible, give them a tax break to entice them to come here. If we have to make a little concession here and there to get more dollars in here, let's do it.

WILL YOU DISCLOSE campaign spending and contributors: Certainly. I'll disclose everything I receive. I haven't anything to hide.

IF ELECTED, will you disclose your income and economic interests: Certainly. If anybody wants to know, I'll tell them. It's all on record anyway in the by-laws of the union what my salary is. Ten thousand people know already so it won't hurt to add a few more.

George Brubaker Has A PhD And $50 From His Wife

George Brubaker has a beard, a PhD, and spends a lot of time thinking about complex issues and problems, which most people would agree is an unlikely combination for an aldermanic candidate.

But the fact that he doesn't look like an alderman or talk like an alderman hasn't bothered this 3-year-old chemistry professor who is running practically on his own for a city council seat from the seventh ward.

Brubaker, of 886 N. Golf Cul-de-sac, is putting on a one-man campaign. But he says he's being well received by residents from all over the north side ward. According to Brubaker, he's found a number of voters and issues that have been neglected by the ward's two aldermen.

"First off, it's been a lot of fun to me to point out that I'm not running against anyone," he says. "I'm running for a public office." And true enough, Brubaker can talk for hours about the problems of his ward and the problems of Des Plaines and not have a word of criticism for either of his opponents.

"I'm basically an academic," says Brubaker, who teaches chemistry at Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago. His approach to problems, he says, "takes a different flavor" than what people have come to expect from the city council members.

"Looking at the city council, looking at the people who participate in the various actions of the city government. I have come to believe that my approach could be extremely useful," he says.

With his wife, Inara, as his main sole campaign contributor ("She gave me $50 and told me not to spend it all in one place"), Brubaker has been doing all his own campaigning. He doesn't have to rely on help from campaign workers, he says, who could misrepresent his views or make promises that couldn't be kept.

"The only thing I've gotten consistent feedback on is concern over higher density zoning," he says. "And then there's the usual problems of people who want a stop sign or say they don't get their garbage picked up regularly."

"As I interpret it, they are concerned primarily with their own ward, in fact most of them are concerned primarily with their own block, which I suppose is somewhat disarming. But that's okay," says Brubaker.

If the residents aren't interested in thinking about city-wide matters, it's all right with Brubaker, who says one of his spare-time interests is studying planning and urban problems.

He regularly writes lengthy letters to local newspapers on complicated issues facing the city, such as mass transit, downtown redevelopment, planning and zoning.

Brubaker has shown considerable interest in the city's proposed comprehensive plan and issued several campaign statements critical of it. He says the plan is inadequate as far as transportation is concerned and fails to deal with the problem of "doggie stand" commercial development.

Mass transit in this area is "deplorable," Brubaker says, and an integral plan for mass transportation is "conspicuously absent" from the city's proposed plan, which would guide development until 1980.

Brubaker, who has been highly critical of drive-in and franchise-type restaurants, says they should be designed out of the comprehensive plan. "Why should a building that doesn't have a 20-year life appear on a comprehensive plan for 20 years from now?" he says.

Though he opposes apartment zoning in outlying residential areas on the city, Brubaker says the taller apartment buildings are needed in the downtown area.

The city would get higher quality downtown apartment buildings if it would raise the five-story height limitation, which prohibits development of profitable elevator buildings, he says. This would end the complaints about crowded three-story non-elevator buildings that brought a recent moratorium on downtown apartment development, according to Brubaker.

Here are his views on other issues facing the city:

George Brubaker

YOUTH PROBLEMS: This is the kind of thing that probably requires extensive inter-governmental cooperation. I don't think the city should support (a youth center) in whole. The city should probably be a contributor. (but) I think this is a function for private charitable organizations and not a municipal government.

ENVIRONMENT: The city derives its name from the river and I think it's incumbent upon the city to protect that river. They should lean on all the existing intergovernmental agencies actively to establish standards and enforce them. All the communities that front on the river share the enforcement duties with the county. The city should perform routine checks on effluents going into the sewer system from all of these local plants. It's really kind of simple to find out who's doing what in town. To find which ones are likely to produce noxious effluents and to check on them and monitor them regularly.

NEW LOW-INCOME housing in the city: Let's make sure we distinguish low-income housing from minority group acceptance. I abhor discriminatory practices based on race, religion or national origin. I believe the acceptance of minorities is necessary in order to make the city an interesting and vital place for all of its residents. I feel, however, that the city automatically discriminates against the poor and I do not believe that low-income housing per se will solve the problem of a relatively high cost of living in the northwest suburbs. Low-income housing in an area of high unit land costs would of necessity be either fantastically cheap in construction or heavily subsidized, and I doubt that we need either. I think we should attack the transportation problem first, since it will benefit the present residents as well as the labor force which is imported into Des Plaines every day.

CITY EMPLOYE labor relations: I think an adequate job is being done, frankly. We've certainly got to be competitive and I think the city thus far has managed to do that.

HIRING ALFRED PRICKETT, former alderman, as city building commissioner: I'm not going to condemn anybody who did it. Politically, it was not astute.

In many respects, Prickett is quite a good candidate, but it really looks rotten. I think Al is probably technically competent and is very willing to do his homework.

HEARINGS ON THE annual city budget: I'm not sure, looking at the way things are run, that we need them. Looking at the way things are run, I don't really think these things are necessary.

ON THE CITY comprehensive plan: I think this is something that might be mandatory. I think we should have as many as are needed. The hearings should be broken down in the same way the comprehensive plan is broken down, on a downtown redevelopment, transportation and the land use map.

WILL YOU DISCLOSE campaign spending and contributors: Sure. I'd be glad to.

IF ELECTED, will you disclose income and economic interests: Yes. I see no reason not to.

Norsemen Tie Niles East, 2-2

Maine North had fine pitching, tight defense and hit the ball well but had to settle for a 2-2 tie with Niles East's varsity baseball team Tuesday night
Righthander Gary Halls went the distance for the Norsemen and fanned 14 batters while yielding just three hits... "He did a real good job for us," said Maine North coach Dave Kennedy... "It was by far his best game of the season."

The Norsemen committed only one error in the contest, but, unfortunately, it led to a Niles East run... Maine North batters did not strike out a single time during the contest, but, again unfortunately, the ball seldom fell in for base hits since the Norsemen accumulated only three...
Maine North took a 2-0 lead in the second inning when Ken Spain and Jim Kozlowski singled before Marty DiFlavio's two-run base knock

Maine North Posts Golf Win

Maine North evened its first golf season's record at 1-1 by beating Schaumburg 182-207 at Golden Acres' golf course Tuesday night
Norm Lau paced the Norsemen with a 44 followed by Pat Conrad's 45, Mike Greenberg's 45 and Bill Prevellet's 48... On the sophomore level Maine North defeated Schaumburg 209-216
Maine North, in its first meet of the season, lost to Notre Dame 164-184... For the Norsemen Lau scored a 42, Greenberg a 44, Conrad a 49 and Prevellet a 49 on the Rob Roy golf course.
Maine North will go against Niles West Thursday at Chevy Chase.

Niles East tallied a run in the bottom of the fifth with a Maine North three-base error being the big play of the frame... In the sixth inning Niles East scored with a double, a fielder's choice and a sacrifice fly

"I thought the boys played a real good game," Kennedy said... "We got good wood on the ball, we didn't make many mistakes on the field and we got good pitching... It was one of our better games of the season..."

The Norsemen, who now have a 1-3-1 record, will go against Glenbrook North on Saturday at home at 11 a.m. The Norsemen have a few accounts to settle with Glenbrook North since Maine North has lost to the Spartans 5-4 and 11-4 already this season

by MARIANNE SCOTT

No woman in her right mind really wants to look old — and this bit about age adding character to a face may be true, but who wants character if you can have youth?

Just about to hit the market is an instant face lift that will smooth out crows-feet around the eyes and give a smoother, firmer contour to the jawline and neck. No, it's not permanent, but it will last up to three or more days — perfect for that high school reunion or even for everyday glamor.

It is the same type of beauty device used by actresses of stage, screen and television to give a youthful look to the face: also by younger women to slim plump cheeks or smooth smile lines. The kit contains clear, plastic, adhesive tapes which are placed at the temples and in front of, or behind, the ears. To the tapes are attached elastic bands with hooks and eyelets, which when drawn up across the back of the head literally pull out wrinkles and sags. The elastics are concealed in the hairdo and the tapes are hidden by hair brushed forward.

AMONG THE FIRST in the Midwest to see a demonstration of the Traynor Lift were members of Northwest Suburban Chapter of the Illinois Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association. Demonstrator was Rocco Bellino of Chicago, a member of the national Official Hair Fashion Committee who specializes in make-up.

Using Mrs. George Breust of Arlington Heights as his model, Mr. Bellino explained that "skin is never old, just experienced!"

The non-allergenic tapes are applied to a scrupulously clean skin; edges are coated with eyelash glue to seal out moisture. Using just enough tension so as not to alter the facial structure, he smoothed the skin by gently pulling the elastics, fastening them together and securing them under the separated back hair.

Besides moisturizer, Bellino used a cream base applied slightly heavier over the lifts. For Mrs. Breust he also included a carefully-measured eyebrow arch applied with a brush, eye contouring, shadow, liner, upper and lower lashes, and facial contouring with darker cream to reduce the jaw line and lighter cream to point up the chin.

ROUGE, POWDER and lip gloss were the final steps in making an already pretty Eleanor Breust look even prettier.

The lifts are said to be comfortable and to tauten rather than stretch the skin. "Unchecked sagging only gets worse," explained the make-up artist who believes that temporary face lifts will one day share the popularity boom now enjoyed by wigs.

The Traynor Lift will be selling in selected area beauty shops for around $5 per kit; extra tapes will be sold at $1.75 per dozen. There will be an additional service charge for women who wish to have the lifts applied by their beautician.

FASTENED UNDER the back hair, elastic bands supply tension to clear, plastic tapes which have been applied to temples and jaw line in a new temporary face lift.

FACE SCRUBBED. Mrs. Breust is ready for a temporary face lift that will smooth away wrinkles around her eyes and firm up her jaw line.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

A MORE YOUTHFUL and glamorous Eleanor Breust is given a light dusting with powder as a final step in make-up application that included an instant face lift. Tapes at temples and behind the ear will be covered by hair, brushed forward.

Hospital Offers Institute For All Engaged Couples

Couples planning marriage this spring are invited to attend a four-week pre-marital institute at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, beginning Monday, May 3, at 7:30 p.m. The lecture-discussion series consists of four consecutive Monday evening sessions.

A physician, psychiatrist, social worker, hospital chaplain and financial adviser conduct the institute. A sex knowledge inventory and recommended books and periodicals will be employed to amplify the lectures.

Lectures will include "A Theology of Marriage," "Finding Strengths and Adjustments in Marriage," "The Meaning of Sex and Love in Marriage," "How to Budget in Marriage," "Emotional Differences of the Sexes" and a panel presentation and general discussion.

THE PRE-MARITAL institute is designed to supplement pre-marital programs already being conducted in area churches. It is sponsored by Lutheran General's pastoral care department. Tuition is $20 per couple which will include the cost of text books and the "Sex Knowledge Inventory" test.

Area couples may enroll through their clergyman or through the Pastoral Care Department at Lutheran General Hospital.

The pre-marital institute is another community service provided by Lutheran General Hospital.

Divorce Reform Groups Talk Union

Leaders of more than 40 divorce reform groups representing thousands of divorced men across the country will be convening this Saturday and Sunday at the Holiday Inn in Elk Grove Village.

Purpose of the convention is to unite the country's divorce reform organizations. Speakers will include a Federal Court specialist from Massachusetts, who is reportedly suing for more than $800,000 for the tampering and destruction of his home and family by attorneys and judges, and the executive director of Wisconsin Institute of Divorce who allegedly was called a "meddler" by a Milwaukee judge.

Hosting CADRE (Coalition of American Divorce Reform Establishments) will be Chicago area chapter members of ADAM (American Divorce Association for Men).

Guild Sponsors Rummage Sale

Jewelry, home baked goods and assorted rummage will be featured at the Rummage and Bake Sale sponsored by the Woman's Guild of Good Shepherd Community Church, 9000 Home Ave. at Ballard Rd., Des Plaines.

The sale will begin at 9 a.m. and will close at 3 p.m. this Saturday.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

The column about the Scripture Cake brought many variations of the recipe and, as bonus, many lovely interpretations of the good life in poetic form. This one from Rhonda Klumb, because of her age, is particularly apt. "Dear Dorothy: Am only 11 years old and after reading about the Scripture Cake thought I would give you my version. Measure a cup of friendship and thoughtfulness, cream together with a pinch of powdered tenderness, beaten very lightly in a bowl of love with a generous cup of faith and hope. Add a spoonful of gaiety and laughter, moistened with the sudden tears of heartfelt sympathy, and bake in a good-natured pan. Serve often so that from our homes will emanate serenity, faith, discipline, an awareness of the brotherhood of man and the fatherhood of God."

Thank you, Rhonda. It's a recipe all of us grownups need reminding about.

re-dye should it be necessary.

Having one of those "maybe" experiments work when the man of the house requests it can sure make the day. His nibs received a leather (or it could have been made of one of the magic materials) folder which looked ideal for papers to carry to meetings. However, all over the front of it was an extravagant "commercial" message. I wonder if they know how much this "turns off" those who receive these things? Anyway, could all this printing be removed? Poured on some nail polish remover and barely scrubbed it with the kitchen vegetable brush. It was off in less than 30 seconds — as if the printing had never been there. He didn't say anything but it registered.

Dear Dorothy: While cleaning out my jewelry box, I discovered quite a few two-and three-strand necklaces that I no longer wear. I bought some carpet-button thread, then used it double, making sure that the needle would go through the beads. I restrung them all in various designs and now have five long "ropes" that are so popular now, especially to wear with pantsuits. Was able to use some of the clasps and just tied the others together as they are long enough to slip over my head. —Mrs. Elsie Lucas.

DECORATING ADVICE is the specialty of Miss Yvonne, left, of Crossroads Interiors, who recently appeared in the Des Plaines Park District spring lecture series. "SILHOUETTES FOR SUMMER" is the theme of the luncheon fashion show sponsored by the Maine West Mothers Club, Thursday, April 22, at Hendrick's O'Hare Inn. Proceeds will go for scholarships for graduating seniors. Among the models will be, foreground, Laurel Waecker and Sue Anderson, Maine West students. Tickets: 824-0200.

Lunch, Fashions, Bridge For AOPi

Members of Northwest Suburban Alumnae chapter of Alpha Omicron Pi are adding flourishes to "Fashions 'n Flowers," a bridge-luncheon-fashion show to be held next Tuesday at South Park Fieldhouse in Park Ridge.

Some members are busy baking assorted nut breads to be served with the homemade chicken salad, while others are whipping up springtime desserts or creating yellow and orange flowers for table decorations. Fashions will come from the ETC Shop of Chicago. Tickets are $2.50 and may be purchased by calling 823-4243.

Proceeds of the benefit will be distributed to the national philanthropic project, the Arthritis Foundation, and to the Illinois Children's Hospital School, a local chapter project.

Next On The Agenda

FIFTH WHEELERS

For "alumni month," celebrated during April by Fifth Wheelers, eight former members will lead a panel discussion Sunday on "Remarriage — Peaks and Pitfalls." The group will be meeting at 7:45 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church, 675 Algonquin Road, Des Plaines.

All former, current and prospective members are invited to this program. Fifth Wheelers are a social group composed of persons who are widowed, divorced or legally separated.

DELTA PILOTS' WIVES

The Hamlet Restaurant in Carol Stream will be the site of next Tuesday's meeting of Delta Airlines Pilots Wives. Mrs. Donald Henkel and Mrs. Harry Andrews will be hostesses.

The program, "An introduction to First Aid," will be presented by a representative of the Red Cross. A social hour begins at 11:30 a.m. with luncheon at 12:30.

Mrs. Robert Lussow, 529-4582, is taking reservations.

Women Speak Out For Peace

Northwest Suburban Women for Peace invite all women, regardless of viewpoint, to attend peace rallies being held Friday at two area churches.

St. Paul of the Cross Church, 320 S. Washington, Park Ridge, and Kingswood Methodist Church, 401 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove, are the two host churches. The Rectory Hall of St. Paul's will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Kingswood will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Both rallies will feature "Speak Out for Peace" tapings, in which any local women are invited to communicate their feelings about the war. Tapes will be sent to congressmen.

Noted pacifist Fran Mettling, who visited the peace talks in Paris recently and had an interview with the North Vietnamese and other involved parties, will lead discussion groups at 10:30 a.m. at St. Paul and at noon at Kingswood Methodist.

Area groups involved in peace have designated this day as "Don't Buy the War" Day. A tape on that subject by Bess Myerson will be played.

Children are welcome. Coffee, conversation and counsel will be available all day. Free stationery with which to write to congressmen will be provided. Any further information may be obtained by calling 255-4418, or by writing Women for Peace, Box 79, Prospect Heights, 60070.

For A Happy Life

It's Fun in April To:

1. Decide upon awakening tomorrow the two tasks you want most to accomplish.
2. Splurge! Buy everyone lamb chops for dinner and chocolate eclairs for dessert.
3. Ask yourself when you are feeling low, if you are indulging in self-pity.
4. Learn all of the words to "The Star-Spangled Banner."
5. Make appointments for dental check-ups for everyone in your family.
6. Save your Easter lily. Plant it in the garden — expect another bloom.
7. Rub olive oil over your entire body before your next bath.
8. Console yourself with this: "The mind reaches great heights only by spurts." — Vauvenargues.

Summer School Session Is Slated

Dates for High School Dist. 214's summer school session have been announced, though a brochure listing course offerings will not be available until May.

Generally, first semester will begin Monday, June 14, and end Friday, July 9. Second semester will begin Monday, July 12 and end Thursday, Aug. 5.

Registration for most summer school courses will be open in May, but Driver Education will have a special limited registration period for both summer school sessions from April 20 to 30 in the district's six high schools, according to W. L. Randle, director of summer school.

As was true last year, summer school in Dist. 214 will be tuition free. Limited bus service will be available for students enrolled in classes scheduled from 8 a.m. to noon and will operate from Friday, June 18, to Friday, July 30.

Bus transportation fee is $5 per semester. Bus routes will be announced after it is determined where students who have paid live.

A small book fee is the only charge made for summer school, since the district receives state reimbursement for most costs from the Office of the Supt. of Public Instruction. Transportation reimbursement is not available from the state for summer school.

LAST SUMMER more than 6,000 students registered for all phases of summer school. Reuben Conrad, associate director of summer school, is working with staff members to offer more experimental and innovative programs this summer.

About 200 teachers are expected to be teaching in summer school this year, including 35 for driver training. Adults and students from outside the district can attend the Dist. 214 summer school. Cost is $30 per semester.

Most students receive one unit of credit for summer school, though it is possible for a student to enroll in afternoon and evening classes.

Additional information about summer school will be released as plans are finalized, Randle said. For answers to specific questions, residents can contact the summer school office, 253-1700.

Township School Officials Elected

Township school trustees were elected by suburban voters last Saturday during their regular school board elections.

Trustees were chosen in Elk Grove, Palatine, Wheeling, Schaumburg and Maine Townships.

In Elk Grove Township Thomas Mayernick of Elk Grove Village defeated Ned Basile, also of Elk Grove Village for a six year term. The vote was 1,870 to 1,153.

In Palatine Township James Johnson Jr. of Palatine, who ran unopposed, got 1,187 votes. He will serve six years.

Wheeling Township voters voted for two unopposed candidates. Frank Alexander of Mount Prospect received 3,648 votes. He will serve a six-year term.

Raymond De Maetelaere of Arlington Heights got 3,311 votes. He will fill out two years of an unexpired term to which he was appointed.

William Fitzgerald of Schaumburg beat out incumbent Richard Ritchie also of Schaumburg in the Schaumburg school trustee election.

Fitzgerald got 470 votes to Ritchie's 427. Fitzgerald will serve a six-year term.

ELECTION RESULTS are not yet available in the Maine Township school trustee election. Incumbent George Scharringhausen ran unopposed for a six-year term.

Township school trustees sit on a board which holds title to property owned by schools within their township. Each board holds scheduled meetings twice a year.

The trustees also select a treasurer who is authorized to sign checks for school expenditures within their townships. In some townships they co-ordinate school district accounting.

Hospital Bonds Are On Sale

Northwest suburban residents can now buy hospital bonds from the nation's largest financier of hospital bonds in a new office opening in Arlington Heights.

B. C. Ziegler and Co., in its new office at 217 S. Arlington Heights Rd. is now selling $2.75 million in bonds for St. Therese Hospital in Waukegan.

The hospital is owned and operated by the Missionary Sisters of Techny in Northbrook, who have guaranteed the notes.

DENOMINATIONS OF $1,000 to $5,000 and $10,000 or multiples thereof are available, and pay interest ranges from six and one-half per cent to 8 per cent on Aug. 1, 1971 and semi-annually after that on Feb. 1 and Aug. 1 to maturity.

Ziegler and Co. is the firm which sold $1.35 million in bonds last August for expansion at Northwest Community Hospital.

Investors can purchase two and three year notes at six and one-half per cent, 4 and 5 year notes at 7 per cent, 6 to 9 year notes at seven and one-half per cent, 10 to 13 year notes at seven and three-quarter per cent and 14 and 15 year notes at 8 per cent.

According to Warren Coultas, Arlington Heights resident manager of B. C. Ziegler, five previous issues of St. Therese Hospital have always received excellent national reception. With credit dating back to 1928, the notes of St. Therese are rated "AA" by Fitch Investors Service, New York.

No commissions are charged to the buyer and the notes sell at par plus accrued interest from March 1, 1971.

The present renovation and construction program at St. Therese is estimated to cost $8.75 million and is expected to be completed by late 1973.

For more information, investors should contact Coultas in the new Arlington Heights office, 394-4524.

3 Homeyer Kids Taken From Home

The three children of former Wheeling policeman Ted Homeyer have been declared wards of the state, and have been removed from the Homeyer home.

Homeyer, 32, of 738 N. Mitchell Ave., Arlington Heights, was charged by Arlington Heights police with aggravated battery and cruelty to children Oct. 28.

The Cook County Grand Jury March 16 declined to indict Homeyer, who had been free on $25,000 bond.

Family Court Judge John P. McGury, in a "dispositional hearing" April 7, declared the children wards of the State of Illinois Department of Children and Family Service.

In taking the action, Judge McGury reportedly accepted the recommendation of a psychiatric report resulting from the examination of the children, who range in age from 10 to 13 years.

Two of the children reportedly have been placed in foster homes while the third has been placed in a foster home temporarily, awaiting placement for psychiatric treatment.

THE FAMILY COURT proceedings, which were conducted separately, but simultaneously with the criminal court proceedings, were continued to May 5 for the finalization of Judge McGury's orders.

In the original criminal charges against Homeyer, police alleged he beat his 10-year-old daughter so the child could not sit in school for two days. The police further alleged the children had been locked, occasionally for extended periods, in a small wooden box in the basement as a form of punishment.

The box was confiscated by Arlington Heights police.
